L.a.C. Says: 'Shall Make Us Do What We Can'

"Our chief want in life is somebody who shall make us do what we can." As I read this quotation by Ralph Waldo Emerson, I wondered how many parents accept their responsibility to make their children do what they can. It is tragic to find so many high school and college students with no idea of what they are to do when they complete their education. And yet, most of them have definite talents that should be developed to provide them with a skill that would assure them a job in this rapidly changing economic

We find many young people who are outstanding in mathematics. It is apparent they would be well adapted to accounting, engineering, or other vocations requiring a mathematical mind. But, because no one makes them apply these abilities to particular courses, they are confused and cannot make up their minds -what to major in during their senior high school or college years, Result is they graduate-or drop outwith nothing useful to offer when applying for a job.

Then there are countless young people who are not good in mathematics. But they have a drive and personality that would assure them a job in selling or business management. Many of them are so wrapped up in school activities they do not specialize in marketing or business administration. They depend on their personalty to get them a job. But when they enter the job competition they find themselves competing with young people who have specialized-and either do not get the kind of job they want or fall behind in advancement. *

Many parents have their hearts set on their children going to college, but with no real goal for them. Some of the young men are talented as mechanics who could be trained for specialized work and jobsthat are seeking such skills. But the parents disregard what the young person is best fitted for in their insistence that only a college diploma is important. They do not insist on education for what the youngster can do best-and allow them to spend their educational years in vocations for which they are not fitted, or to end up with no vocational training.

We should not blame the teen-ager or young adult for not thinking out and deciding on a specific vocation. They live in an atmosphere of ease and often glamour of school activities. Their parents give little consideration to the terrible frustration that may come in later years when the poorly trained young person must support a family. It may then be too late to become skilled. They are then tied to some job that gives them little satisfaction—and to which they have little to offer.

If the parents would insist upon the young person specializing in a vocation to which they seem best adapted it would be easier on the young person. It would not mean they would spend their life in that vocation. But it would give them a security that would be rewarding all their working years. It would give them the opportunity of advancement into supervisorial and management positions. It would be a starting place for them when they were ready to enter the

There is nothing more frustrating than the high school or college student applying for a job to be asked, What can you do? and have to answer, Nothing. That occurs many times a day every day. "Our chief want in life is somebody who shall make us do what we can" should cause each parent to realize only they can bring this about. If they fail to do so, they are not discharging their responsibility to the children whose welfare should be their major concern. ---L.A.C.

Two Miss International beauties went to the circus Saturday and stopped the show—at least backstage.

Miss Germany (Monika Brugger) and Miss France
(Brigitte Pradel) took a few minutes off from exhaustive rehearsals to take a look at the Ringling Brothers, Barnum & Bailey Circus now playing in the Arena.

And the circus-animals and all-looked back.

But it was when Miss Germany jumped aboard an elephant that the circus show almost stopped.

One of the clowns missed his cue.

An animal trainer led a group of chimps the wrong way. And five of the ballet performers tripped on stage.

Only one to follow orders-and enjoy himself-was the elehant, and-of course-an overjoyed Miss Germany. "This is the biggest luck of all," she claimed, giving the elephant a big hug.

The 20-year-old free-lance photographer's model and mannequin carries a small porcelain elephant with her wherever she goes.

"But this one," said elephant-trainer Hugo Schmitt from Hamburg, Germany, "she can't put in her pocket." So the veteran elephant trainer did the next best thing.

"He gave me two elephant hairs," a happy, squealing

"I'm going to wear them around my ear during the final judging—I know it'll help."

The 5-foot-7½-inch beauty nearly stopped the show when she asked if she could ride the lumbering pachyderm.

"Sure," said circus officials, "if she's game we are. But it's not easy."

But to Miss Germany it again

"SHE CLIMBED aboard like a pro-and 1 know just how scratchy their backs are, said one male elephant rider. "And she's in a bathing suit!"

But while an elephant-rid-ing Miss Germany was ca-vorting around the Arena exterior, Miss France was having "old home week" in the interior.

"There are enough Frenchmen around her to really make her feel at home," one çircus performer said,

And there were.

But the one that fascinated the 21-year-old Parisienne model the most was Christine Holt, an aerialist.

"Did you see her—she was hanging by her hair from the top of the building," the ex-cited French miss exclaimed. "And she was throwing and catching things at the same

But these were in the minority within the small Western community here and most observers are of the opinion that Castro's confidence and gall are undiminished.

In this and successive articles, no attempt will be made to resolve that question. But within the experlence and the time that was available to this reporter an effort will be made to describe the Cuba. that exists as Castro tries to negotiate new passage into safer waters.

The Cuba that greets travelers today is a con-tradictory blend of Marxism and mangoes. Havana, once proud to describe herself as "The Paris of the Americas", is now a shabby parody of that claim.

The paint peels off the glittering hotels where Americans once gambled and played, exposing the tawdriness of their design. The ornate grillwork of Miramar's mansions rusts in the Caribbean's moist breezes while 100,000 peasant children on scholarships occupy the salons once graced by an aristocracy long since fled to the United States.

Food shortages and rationing coexist with a night life reminiscent of the bad old days.

The government claims production is up, but a grossly mismanaged distribution system devours or wastes much of the gain.

By HAL McCLURE

XEROS, Cyprus (P) - The first air-sea fight in Cyprus started with a single Turkish Air Force plane screaming in from the sea across the harbor and little town of Xeros.

For 10 minutes, the Super Sabre jet wheeled and swooped across the harbor where a tiny Greek Cypriot patrol boat was anchored about 500 yards offshore.

Land Swap Ends Dispute Over Aid Rider Homes Near Navy Jet Runway Defeated

By WILLIAM JONES

In a revolutionary approach to a ticklish land dispute. the U.S. Naval Air Station at Los Alamitos has swapped land valued at more than half a million dollars with a private landowner.

The net effect: prevention of home-building near the main jet runway of the airfield.

Announcement of the land swap Saturday brings to close the controversial land battle between the Navy and housing developers which resulted in two special elections in Los Alamitos and recall of three councilmen.

Simply, the land exchange means that the Navy acquires private land near its runway and gives in return the same amount of acreage distant from its landing. strip to Dairyman Henry Van Ruiten.

the northwest corner of the station.

Capt. Tanner said each of the parcels is worth

$506,000 according to real estate appraisals.

Van Ruiten said he hopes to sell the Navy land to a private developer for home construction. The Navy said it has no immediate plans for the Van Ruiten

The swap, approved by the Defense Department and Congress, resulted after Van Ruiten planned to build homes on his dairy, bordering the jet runway.

After the Navy strongly objected to the development because of the noise nuisance to future residents and the crash hazard, private citizens of Los Alamitos took the matter in their own hands.

They successfully called for a special election to defeat rezoning of the property for multiunit housing and in a subsequent election recalled three city councilmen who favored construction of the development near the

Watusi Dance Completes Cycle for Primitive Man; Adults Love It

Oregon Has Reapportion Job All Done

SALEM, Ore. (UPI)-Like a child who took his medicine carly, Oregon is smugly watching as other states now face the agony of having to reapportion state legislative districts.

The recent "one man, one vote" ruling by the United States Supreme Court had no impact on the Beaver State. Oregon implemented the system in 1961.

The high court's decision requires states to realign legislative districts so that each legislator represents approximately the same number of people.

Tossed out was the system used by many states that divided the lower house into districts on a population basis, and the upper chamber into districts based on land

THE SUPREME COURT said the so-called federal system gave unfair representation to sparsely populated rural regions and denied populated urban areas an equal say in government.

Oregon went through the throes of reapportionment during its 1961 legislaturejust one year after the 1960 census. The 1961 legislature redefined the boundaries of both state Senate and House districts.

The new plan was challenged in the courts, and later overthrown by the Oregon Supreme Court.

Appling Jr., a Republican.
Appling redrafted district boundaries along the "one man, one vote" rule set down by the state constitution.

Then, as required by the state constitution, Appling's reapportionment was reviewed by the state Supreme

The court approved, the reapportionment was de-clared a matter of legal fact, and that was that,

BECAUSE OF THE constitutional requirements, Oregon was spared the agony of a bitter reapportionment hassle. Because the state court had the final say, no partisan gerrymandering was evi-denced in Appling's reapportionment.

The whole potentially explosive procedure was accomplished in a matter of weeks, and without partisan harangues. As a result, Multnomah County which includes Portland, the state's largest city, elects 17 of the state's 60 representatives, and eight of the state's 30 senators.

On the other side of the state, where people scarce and sagebrush and tumbleweed occupy vast reaches of open land, one state senator, Anthony Yturri, represents a fourarea of nearly 28,000 square miles-an area equal to that covered by Vermont New Jersey, New Hampshire and Rhode Island combined.

IN THE SAME PART of Oregon, State Rep. Robert Burns represents a twocounty area of 20,000 square miles—an area nearly the size of Maryland, Hawaii and

Connecticut combined. On a land-area basis, the comparison seems wildly un-

But Yturri represents about as many people as each of the eight Multnomah County senators. And Burns' vote is backed up by about the same number of people as each of Multnomah County's 17 representatives.

It does give legislative weight to the cities. But that's what it's supposed to do, because that's where must Oregonians live.

U.S. Missionaries Arrested, One Slain

NEW YORK (A)-Four Methodist missionaries and their wives are reported under house arrest in the Congo and a fifth missionary has been killed there, the Methodist Board of Missions announced.

All but one couple are Americans, including the dead missionary. The missionaries and their families said to be under house arrest are Dr. and Mrs. William S. Hughlett of Cocoa, Fla.; the Rev. and Mrs. Douglas Leon Crowder and their two children, of Randolph, Neb.; the Rev. and Mrs. Larry G. Pleimann of Lake Charles, La., and Dr. and Mrs. Nicholas Siksay and one child, Canadian missionaries not otherwise

BOSTON (UPI)-Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald, grandmother of the late President Kennedy who was born the year President Lincoln was assassinated, died Saturday without knowing that her grandson also had been assassinated. Mrs. Kennedy, 98, died at her home here,

A family spokesman said funeral service probably would be Tuesday. Final arrangements were delayed, the spokesman said, because several members of the family were in Europe and could not be reached immediately.

In Europe were Mrs. Rose Kennedy, daughter of Mrs. Fitzgerald and mother of the late President; granddaughters Mrs. Peter Lawford and Mrs. Stephen Smith, and Mrs. John F. Kennedy, widow of the slain President, BIG BEAR LAKE (A) -- Sheriff's deputies removed a 10-year-old girl Saturday from a car in which her father and brother had died, apparently of carbon monoxide poisoning.

The girl, Linda Mosgar, still was alive, officers said. They took her to San Bernardino County Hospital, where she was reported to be recovering.

Charged with second-degree man-slaughter were John J. Desmonde and Thomas James Slover, both 22 and both of Middletown, N.Y.

They were arrested when they showed up at Middletown's Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church where Desmonde was to have married Miss Linda Erickson of Middle-

OFF TO THE ISLAND is Signal Hill Police Sgt. Arthur G. Le Blanc. Cigarchewing Le Blanc, married Saturday, was "kidnapped" by fellow officers, handcuffed and placed aboard a plane for Catalina Island. Le Blanc's wife, the former Virginia Higgins, knew nothing of the abduction and had to leave on the honeymoon without her new hubby.

Signal Hill Police Sgt. Arthur G. Le Blanc married Miss Virginia Higgins Saturday morning, And Saturday night, Sgt. Le Blanc honeymooned on Catalina Island and the new Mrs. Le Blanc in Las Vegas, Nev.

And there's going to be a whole new bunch of policemen walking graveyard beats in Signal Hill in the coming months.

It all started when officer Bob Astenius decided that his Sergeant should have a wedding to remember. Astenius - who probably will be reduced in rank to janitor next week -set about to stage a "kid-

ENLISTING the aid of fellow officers, Astenius hatched his plot.

At 10 a.m. Saturday Sgt. Le Blanc said "I do" and Miss Higgins said "I do" at St. Matthew's Church and everything was just peachy-

A wedding breakfast was held, then a reception at the bride's home, 3119 E. Eighth St.

Virginia's father, retired New York police officer Thomas Higgins, remarked on how nice the young officers on his new son-inlaw's staff looked.

"Just a bunch of cleancut guys," Tom Higgins pagne was flowing and the gifts were being "ooh'ed" and "ah'ed" over when the "clean-cut boys" went into Astenius asked Le Blanc to step outside. Le Blanc did and seven officers handcuffed and threw him into the back seat of a car. Off they went.

Inside the house, the party flowed merrily on. But Virginia began to miss Art.

At the airport, a screaming, cigar-chewing, pro-fane, newly-married police sergeant was stuffed into a seat on a Catalina Channel Airlines amphibian.

Madrid Says Royal Couple Expects Child,

Efforts to contact Irene and Carlos-Hugo for confirmation of the report proved fruitless. Sources close to the royal couple said they are believed

Building a Japanese Garden in L.B. Isn't So Simple

By GEORGE ERES

There wasn't too much of a problem in landscaping the 140-foot in diameter "inner circle" on top of the Lincoln Park garage as long as it was just a sort of "Oriental type garden."

The problems started cropping up when it was decided to dedicate the area in Lincoln Park as "Yokkaichi Garden" in honor of Long Beach's sister city in Japan.

There had been a few comments that some of the items in the "inner circle" were not exactly Japanese.

CHANCE HILL, assistant director of parks for the city, admits it's not authentic Japanese. "However," he said, "it does give a Japanese feeling."

There is water and there are rocks-which are, after all, basic to a Japanese garden. There is a lagoon and small trees and bushes and there are Japanese and "Japanese type" ornaments. There is a little bridge that goes over the lagoon-and that's one of the things that had to be crossed immediately.

CITY HALL GOT the message that perhaps the bridge wasn't exactly Japanese and thought it had better look into it. Roy Shiba, a member of the Japanese American Citizens League who operates Long Beach Nisci Landscaping, was asked about it. He said it was Chinese—not Japanese. There was too much ornamentation on the bridge for it to be authentically Japanese.

So the City's Public Service Department went to work and removed ornamental panels to make it more simple, in keeping with Japanese feeling, It's not exactly right yet—a Japanese bridge would be less gaudy in color and the railing would be lower, but Mr. Shiba understands some compromise is necessary. If the railing is too low there is danger someone might fall into the lagoon—9 inches at its deepest point, according to Tom Marchese, of the City Engineer's office which was in charge of construction of the $16,000 project.

"Of course," said Hill, "if we knew originally that it was to be a Japanese garden we would probably have done it a little different originally-but on the whole it has a Japanese flavor. The trees, for instance . ."

AMONG THE TREES in the Garden are a coral, a flowering peach, an olive, a Monterey pine, some ever-green elm, junipers, and a weeping willow. The ground area is planted in Scotch and Irish moss. A sort of "international flavor," one might say.

Hill says climate conditions primarily are against authentic Japanese greenery-cherry trees, for instance. However, he thinks most of the vegetation—the willow, for instance—has the right flavor. "Except the olive tree. I definitely wouldn't have done that if I'd have known,' he said.

Some of the trees will have to be replaced after a time, Hill believes. "The willow tree will get pretty big after a while and we'll have to take it out. After all, we don't want the garage roof caving in."

THERE HAVE BEEN several suggestions from citizens for adding to the Japanese flavor of the garden, since it was definitely decided that it would be Japanese. One enterprising individual offered a proposal for installing a Japanese Tea Room in the park. That would have lent atmosphere—Japanese lanterns, girls in kimonos and maybe a few Geisha maidens.

City officials, however, thought the idea was too commercial and that the citizenry wouldn't approve.

But there will be some changes as time goes on to make the garden more authentically Japanese, city spokesmen say.

MEANWHILE, AT ABOUT 4 p.m. today, the mayor of Yokkaichi, Japan, who is here for the International Beauty Pageant and the Garden dedication, will officially open the Yokkaichi Garden. If he stands on the little bridge over the lagoon he will have a clear view of the little garden and a big sign—"Lincoln Park Parking; 76 Union."

WASHINGTON (UPI)-An angry man made a speech in Casper, Wyo., last week in behalf of thousands of independent domestic oil pro-

What he said in effect was that the big American-owned international oil companies have an economic stranglehold on the small U.S. producer and are slowly choking him to death with cheap foreign oil.

Firing these words was H. A. True Jr., president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America. True blamed the big importers for a steady crosion of domestic crude oil and gasoline prices while the small producer, with only limited resources, is helpless to fight back.

TRUE SAID his remarks reflected a deepening sense of frustration in many produc-ing areas. Some of this, he added, is being manifested in proposals for punitive action in self-defense — presumably through Congress. But some producers simply don't have the wherewithal to fight and are throwing in the sponge.

The independent oil group has been warring against foreign oil imports since long before they were put on a quota basis. It also has been pleading with the Defense Department, which spends a billion dollars a year on pe troleum products, to help prop up the domestic indus-try by "buying American." But both problems are tied closely to U.S. foreign policy, and are weighed by the government in that light.

TO DATE the plus side of the association's ledger shows practically zero. But that doesn't mean it is calling it quits. True made it plain that the war has only begun; that it will be pressed until some-thing gives; but that this calls sound industry statesmanship and leadership of the highest order."

The trade organization has stirred up quite a bit of heat in Congress and it is not improbable that the import system will get a new and sharper look in the next Congress. It is too late for any action this year.

One facet of the issue will he explored this week by a Senate small business committee headed by Sen. John J. Sparkman, D-Alabama. Or Wednesday Sparkman wil open hearings on import allo cations as they affect small independent refiners.

THE COMMITTEE has been digging into such matters fo two years. On July 9 it re ported an alarming decrease in the number of U.S. refinered and related this to the conductor (Tkr) 167 September 149 September competition of the big importers. UNIQUE CONTRACT

In Case of Strike, Workers Stay On

By HORTENSE MYERS

BERNE, Ind. (UPI)-The 300 workers of the Dunbar Furniture Co. of Berne will make labor history if they ever again decide to call a strike.

They'll keep working—but for half pay—under the terms of their unique contract.

Half the employes' usual salaries or wages will go into a special account of a Berne Bank and the company will deposit the same amount in the bank.

Thus, if there is a labor dispute, the furniture workers' pay will be cut in half and the company's payroll costs will be increased by one half.

THIS WILL CREATE economic pressure on both sides to reach a settlement—and fast.

For if the settlement is reached within six weeks, the employes and the company will get their money back in full from the trust account.

But failure to work out a new contract after six weeks would set in motion a graduated plan by which increasing percentages of the trust fund would go to some community or charity project.

If agreement comes in the seventh, eighth or ninth week, 75% of the money would be returned. If settlement is not reached until the 10th or 11th weeks, the refund would be only 50%. A 12th week agreement would bring a 25% refund.

If the dispute is not settled at the end of 12 weeks, neither the employes nor the company would get their money back. It would go to a community charity project acceptable to both. If labor and management could not agree on the beneficiary, the local ministerial association would pick one.

★ ★ ★ IF BOTH SIDES can not agree after 13 weeks. a traditional picket-line strike could start.

If the employes ignored the contract provisions and pulled off a picket-line strike before the 13th week, they presumably could be subject to a breach of contract suit. The contract bans lockouts, slowdowns or outside financial aid for either side.

The contract was designed to temper the cost of a strike. The Dunbar payroll represents 13% of Berne's total payrolls, and a strike would hurt the entire community. Dunbar has had only one strike, in 1959. It lasted six weeks.

The 'strike-work' plan will not be tested until May 1, 1965, when the contract expires, and, of course, not then if a settlement is reached between the company and Local 222 of the Upholsterers' International Union (AFL-CIO), which represents 200 of Dunbar's 300 employes.

Asia: An Explosive Danger Spot

By HARRY SHARPE by United Press International

Southeast Asia became the world's most explosive danger spot last week, with the United States and Communist China facing each other across the abyss of American - supported South Viet Nam, a part of the old French colonial empire under attack by Communist North Victnamese troops armed by Red China, was the vortex of events which sent shudders through peace-loving nations, President Johnson told the American people that, like his predecessors, he was determined to keep this non-Communist gateway to all Asia from falling to Red Chinese subjugation.

DEVELOPMENTS came swiftly when Russian-built North Victnamese torpedo boats vainly tried in two forays to sink American destroyers on patrol duty in international waters off Viet Johnson's thundering response was a deadly bombing reprisal against North Vietnamese ports, with promises of still more massive blows if U.S. naval vessels were further molested.

The carrier-based American planes destroyed or damaged 25 PT boats, wrecked port facilities, flat-tened seven anti-aircraft batteries, and bomb-fired a big oil depot. Two American planes were lost to anti-aircraft fire. One pilot was reported captured.

The assault was the President's reply to Red China's taunting "paper tiger" appelation for U.S. military might - a response quickly backed up by movement of massive air, ground and naval reinforcements to the perimeter of North Viet Nam and China.

Peking blustered back with threats, charging the U.S. had gone "over the brink of war." But it made no immediate retaliatory move. Moscow, split idealogically with Peking, also fulminated, but stopped short of promising North Viet Nam men and weapons.

AMERICAN officials said the President's action appeared to have answered its purpose for the time being. But a wary eye was kept on

Congress swept aside partisan politics in a display of unity and gave Johnson a "fight if we must" resolution-a virtual blank check to halt Communist aggression in the area, Ambassa-dor Adlai E. Stevenson went before the United Nations and accused North Viet Nam of "acts of deliberate aggression which cannot be tolerated."

U.S. officials said the scentingly senseless attacks on the American warships | may have been designed to whip up world sentiment for a conference to neutralize Southeast Asia-a project French President Charles de Gaulle has been pushing. Johnson has rejected this, holding that there would be peace anyway if the Communists would pull back to their own territory. So far, at least 264 U.S. servicemen have died in the Viet Nam conflict, 180 of them in combat. Another 17 are missing and more than 1 000 have been wounded. More than 16,000 Americans are supporting South Viet Nam's bid for contin-

Grant Sharp, the overall Pacific military commander: Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, Pacific Fleet commander, and Lt. Gen. James K. Woolnough, deputy Pacific Army commander.

Before ordering the North Viet Nam strike, the President solicited and won the support of GOP presidential nominee Barry M. Goldwa-years of the great depression have passed into history, and Herbert Hoover has outlived the opprobrium heaped upon his administration. Now the grand old man of the Grand Old Party is honored by an affectionate nation on his 90th birthday, and remembered as a dedicated servant to the world, whose good works benefitted millions. A birthday portrait.

Washington to Honor Hoover on 90th Birthday

By JULES LOH

NEW YORK (A) - In his 90th year the old Federalist, John Adams, observed that his health was not what it once was but that he still could "walk three miles over a rugged rocky mountain,"

On the eve of his 90th birthday Herbert Hoover, the grand old man of the Grand Old Party, would enjoy nothing better,

D (for Decision) Day for the California World's Fair is

That's the day when the City Council must decide whether or not to put a 25cent tax increase on the ballot for November.

The tax, if passed, would be effective in 1965-66 and would begin to provide some $35 million needed to get street and other necessary work started before the fair comes in 1967-68-or 1968-69 -and to provide underwriting for actual fair construction.

LAST TUESDAY the council, after six hours of intense deliberation, passed a motion approving the controversial lease-back provision in principle and providing seven conditions that must be met by the fair organization before final endorsement of the

However, the real problem facing the councilmen was whether the voters should decide on the tax increase. This they put off until Tuesday, realizing that, in order to get it on the ballot, the decision must be made Tuesday. There is no time left.

AN INDICATION of how the councilmen felt the voters would react to the tax increase proposal came with the resounding 7 to 2 defeat of a motion by Councilman Robert Crow to put a $25 million general obligation bond issue on the ballot.

A general obligation bond issue requires a 66%% majority for passage; a tax override requires only a simple majority.

No Fair Tax Boost Without Voter OK

NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN the City Council and officials of the California World's Fair organization have reached the point of considering financial commitments by the city involving a tax levy and a tax liability on Long Beach taxpayers.

At Tuesday's Council meeting, the councilmen are expected to decide whether to put on the November hallot a 25-cent tax over-ride connected with the Fair. This, if approved, would do two things:

- 1. Provide money for municipal improvements, such as highway and bridge construction, much of which would be ultimately done anyway, but made immediately necessary for a fair.
- 2. Give the city money to start paying rentals under the leaseback program while the Fair is still in a deficit position. This complicated program is proposed for Fair construction financing.

The first is an outright outlay. The second involves an indeterminate commitment, depending both in time and money upon the financial success of the fair. If the fair is a financial winner, leaseback outlays by the city would be relatively low and brief, and probably would be paid back. If the fair is a failure, it would be necessary to continue the levy for a number of years to cover the fair's losses-with an ultimate possibility, though not a likelihood, of 25

At the very minimum, the levy would continue for two years, raising $2 million a year.

The City Council has the authority to make these commitments without a vote of the people. But it is DAVID LAWRENCE unthinkable that it would do so. Without a special tax override, it would be hard put to find the finances to carry out the program. But more important is the moral issue-any such commitment of the credit and obligations of the taxpayers of Long Beach should be WASHINGTON - President volve war. That is a sentidecided by the voters of Long Beach.

But it is that very growth of population that makes the committee's campaign so important for future Americans.

The main stated purpose of the group is to prevent machines from taking over the wilderness back country in our nation, particularly the trails histori- ship" has been associated cally reserved for use of horsemen, pack stock and hikers.

As Fred Eissler of Santa Barbara, California regional chairman of the group said: "Roads have been overrunning a million acres of undedicated wilderness each year and now motor bikes designed to travel over rough terrain at the roads' end are penetrating the remainder of the unprotected trail country at an alarming rate."

The committee proposes that state and federal land agencies adopt regulations in line with the National Park Service policy which requires vehicles to stay on the roads and off the trails. Eissler points out that in a few years there will be a half million miles of roads in wilderness areas available to machines so it isn't a question of their drivers having no place to

A wilderness area is a wilderness area only because of the fact that it is remote. Machine access destroys this remoteness. This is one case where we'll take the raucous cry of a bluejay over the raucous sound of a motor bike. There should be someplace where people can get away from machines.

Trial Man's Destiny

"THESE ARE TIMES, that try men's souls."

There is in America today a rising tension. Much of the news is bad news. Race riots in pleasant, middlesized cities. Extremism of various kinds in politics. A rising crime rate. A chaotic morality, Naval battles off Southeast Asia.

Nor can the thoughtful man be very optimistic about international affairs. There are too many powder direct kegs with burning fuses: the population explosion, added: the spread of communism, Red China, Russia, Africa, Latin America.

It's no wonder that so many are paralyzed or hysterical with fear.

The antidote to fear is a sense of history. When one realizes that trouble is no new thing, but has been the common lot of all mankind, he can face the present day with a little more courage.

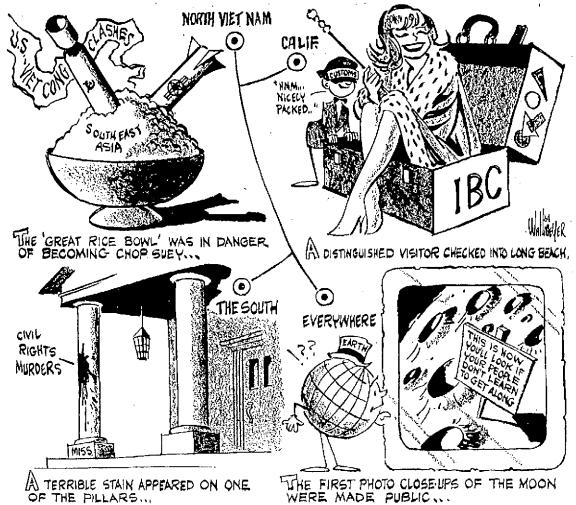

The late Eleanor Roosevelt was asked, a year or so before her death, what she thought of the John Birch Society.

She answered something like this: "I used to worry about such matters. I am an old woman now and I don't worry. I have seen so many movements come and go. I try to think now in terms of human values, of individuals."

Trouble can be lived with and lived through. Everyone-and especially the very young-should realize that trouble is the climate of this planet. Without trouble we could not walk tall like men.

"These are times that try men's souls"—but all

Dulles Line Serves U.S. Again

Johnson and the Congress of the United States have given the world a dra-matic example of "brinkmanship" that reflects the determination of the American people to use military force, if necessary, to repel aggression.

The joint resolution authorizing the use of American land and air forces in Southeast Asia to prevent further aggressive acts is exactly in line with the policies advocated by the late John Foster Dulles, ecretary of state in the Eisenhower administration.

Yet the word "brinkmanwith criticism of Mr. Dulles and has repeatedly been taken out of context to imply that those who support the Dulles idea are "triggerhappy" people bent upon starting a war.

magazine, Mr. Dulles was quoted as having said:

"You have to take chances HENRY SHAPIRO for peace, just as you must take chances in war. Some say that we were brought to the verge of war. Of course we were brought to the verge of war. The ability to get to the verge without getting into the war is the necessary art. If you cannot master it, you inevitably get into war. If you try to run away from it, if you are scared to go to the brink, you are lost. We've had to look it square in the faceon the question of enlarging the Korean war, on the question of getting into the Indochina war, on the ques-tion of Formosa. We walked to the brink and we looked it in the face. We took strong action."

Naturally the above quotation attracted worldwide attention, and in a press conference on Jan. 17, 1956, Mr. Dulles said that the statement was not exactly a quotation, but he

"I have said the substance of that, I think, on a good many occasions: That I believe that peace is not won by seeming to retreat when an aggressor threatened; that it was important to make clear the fact that we were going to stand firm even though that might in-

MR, DULLES said he up one point—that we had been "brought" to the verge of war, not by our own choice, but only by "threats which were uttered in relation to Korea, in relation to Indochina and in relation to Formosa."

newspaper, was quoted as having said:

"My ideas for a successful American foreign policy correspond generally to the policy of the Eisenhower government and Secretary of State Dulles. You must always show yourself ready to threw in everything if you want to be respected and you are fighting for

"Yes; the only person who is respected is the one who clearly says - when necessary-that he is determined to go to extremes. That is a policy that your country and all successful countries have followed wished, however, to clear throughout the past thousand years."

THE MISUSE of the word "brinkmanship" arises from the mistaken theory that the American government would deliberately create a crisis in order to rattle a Senator Goldwater a few sword or threaten another weeks ago, in an interview published in a German published in a German of "brinkmanship" is a polymeropae was sword or threaten another country. The true meaning of "brinkmanship" is a polymeropae. icy of readiness-a willingness to fight if necessary and to indicate clearly to the other side that aggression will be repelled.

The erroneous impression is often conveyed that efforts to solve disputes by peaceful means are a reflection of unwillingness to fight or a craven attitude. Secretary of State Rusk, in a television interview on In January, 1956, in an He was then asked: "So, ABC's "Issues and Anarticle published in Life a policy of 'up to the brink swers" on July 26, said:

is to make it very clear that the vital interests of the free world will be defended with whatever is necessary. But the problem also is to defend these by peaceful means if possible. . . Therefore we've got to act with prudence and sobriety and judgment, certain patience and persistence . . .

"Our problem at the present time is that Peiping is pursuing this world revolution dogma with a militancy that is threatening the peace, and our immediate problem is to bring Hanoi (North Viet Nam) and Peiping to the necessary decision to leave their neighbors alone before it is too late.'

IT IS interesting to recall that when President Eisenhower and both parties in Congress united on a resolution to authorize the use of military forces to protect Formosa, the Red Chinese took note of the action and discontinued their aggression. It is hoped that there will similarly be a cessation now of acts of aggression and military threats in Southeast Asia.

Normalized Soviet Relations May Hinge on U.S. Elections

MOSCOW-The Russians have just marked the anniversary of the tri-power Moscow nuclear test ban treaty which when signed a year ago was hailed as a turning point in the history of the cold war. A year later Moscow still considers the agreement a 'turning point" although it has not lived up to the most optimistic expectations voiced that August day in the Kremlin when Dean Rusk, Britain's Alec Douglas-Home and Nikita S. Khrushchev clinked champagne glasses in its honor.

THE SOVIET Premier has hailed the treaty as an important step toward the relaxation of international tensions. Similar sentiments have been officially expressed in Washington and

ASIDE FROM the obvious universal benefits of the test ban agreement, to the Russian man in the street it has been an even more important result-the slow but steady normalization of American-Soviet relations.

Soviet agreement to the partial nuclear tests ban as well as the general policy of coexistence with the West has been a serious bone of contention between Moscow and Peking.

There is reason to believe that the Russians would have agreed to the ban carlier had it not been for Chinese opposition.

But now that the Russians have written the Chinese off and are pursuing a steadily more Western oriented policy they are openly worried that a change of American administrations might enable the Chinese to flaunt anew "we told you so" taunts.

They may therefore be expected to mark time and await the outcome of the American and British elections before they make any new commitment in international affairs.

Woman GOP Head Scores 'Purge' by Barry Leadership

SOME OF THE GOLDWATER leadership in California lost a battle at the GOP State Convention in Sacramento last weekend, but it was by no means a loss for Sen. Barry Goldwater, in the view of Mrs. Dorothy Goodnight of Long Beach, state president of the California Federation of Republican Women.

The crucial test was the vote for the state vice chairmanship of the Republican Party. The candidate of the Goldwater delegation leadership a group still flushed with its victory in the national convention coup for Barry, was Vernon J. Cristina of San Jose.

Christina was defeated 518 to 374 by James W. Halley, chairman of the San Mateo County GOP Central Committee.

Cristina was nominated by Goldwater's state chairman Bill Knowland. His seconders included Ann Bowler, of Long Beach, and Gardiner Johnson, of Pied-mont, Goldwater delegates and the new national committee members for Cali-

DOROTHY GOODKNIGHT

Mrs. Goodknight objects strenuously to the "purge" attitude assumed by the Goldwater leadership, "the dictatorial attitude of some Republicans who profess to speak for Senator Goldwater and who set themselves in judgment over other Republicans and mele out punishment to those they can't control."

This election, she says, was not a pro or anti Goldwater issue. "We're all Goldwater Republicans . . . but we resent domination from the top, the leadership riding rough shod over other Republicans....It's not right to try to indicate over other Republicans.... It's not right to try to indicate that a vote for Mr. Halley was a vote against Senator Goldwater and it's a grave error to put the Senator's prestige on the line. Senator Goldwater was not repudiated by this vote; we're all enthusiastic supporters of the ticket."

MRS. GOODKNIGHT gave examples of a continuing effort of charter members in the Goldwater movement, those who were on the record early and those who were members of the national convention delegation to purge or punish other Republicans.

She noted that Mrs. Lucile Hosmer, past state president of the women's federation, and Assemblyman Don Mulford, chairman of the Assembly's GOP caucus, both Goldwater delegates, voted for Halley. As a result, both were removed party electors.

Among Republicans being looked down upon, she said, are those, such as herself, who could not take positions on candidates before the primary election. However, Dr. Gaylord Parkinson of El Cajon, the new state chairman, did not take a preprimary stand and was elected with firm support from the Goldwater leadership.

THE ROLL CALL vote on the Cristina-Halley race also revealed, said Mrs. Goodknight, that the bulk of incumbent GOP legislators were for Halley, as were county GOP

There was a feeling among the Goldwater leadership, she said, that "anyone not out of Goldwater Headquarters or not on the delegation, were just not real Goldwater Republicans. While I could not take a stand before the primary, I often quoted from a Goldwater speech. The idea of purging Republicans is completely wrong. There's room for everyone who wants and would like to vote for our candidate; none should be pigeonholed.

Invites Bircher War Solution

President Johnson has just "warned China to keep hands off," according to your front page today. Obviously he is going to be a strong president, though not necessarily a wise one.

One has to sympathize with him in the Viet Nam problem. The battle ground is 5,000 miles away from us, and only a few feet from China, the real enemy. The terrain is so unfamiliar that we have had little or no ex- EDITOR: perience with it, whereas the Vietnamese and Chinese call it home. If we get embroiled with China, a nation of 600,000,000 people well armed and skilled in guerrilla techniques, we will become rapidly and permanently bogged down all over the Chinese mountains in a bloody war in which the present casualty list of 180 dead Americans will be altered to hundreds of thousands. If we finally win it after a decade or so of exhausting warfare, we will be faced with a fresh Russia, untouched by conflict; we will have eliminated Russia's biggest competitor in the Communist world at a frightful cost in American lives. Where is the Bircher or Goldwaterite who has the answer for this fearful dilemma??? And yet, if Johnson by some miracle of statesmanship manages to keep out of the war (which would, of course, he called "Johnson's War" by the Goldwaterites), he will then be accused of being "soft-on-Communism" (oh, they've got a phrase for everything!)

this fateful moment in human history to tell us their grand solution for the American dilemma. It would be very shabby of them to remain silent to see what Johnson does, and then to criticize him for it. Let them speak out now-or forever hold their peace. We await their suggested solution with bated breath! R. GREENGARD

War, Death, Taxes But No Voting

Today in this country there are millions of disfranchised voters. Some belong to minority groups; the greater portion however, do not. The millions I speak of are young American citizens in the 18 to 20 age group. Many of these younger men and women are in the colleges of our nation. Several thousands are serving in all branches of the armed services. In the third category, that of the private tax paying citizens, the number is great.

It is disappointing and regretable that those in the above mentioned groups may fight and die yet can't vote. Others suffer taxation with-out representation. Even those who are studying to be the leaders of tomorrow are restricted by the arbitrary number 21. Should not something be done to free these citizens? They also have civil rights. Is the responsibility of voting to be denied those same people who shoulder the task of defending this country and to those who pay taxes just like adults over twenty-one? WAYNE KALAS

Sharp Political Risks for LBJ in Viet Nam Policies

Johnson is experiencing the sharpest political risks inherent in the presidential power,

His Southeast Asia policy will be in the campaign, of course. If it's working well, he will put it there. If its course does not run smoothly, his position will put him on the defensive about it. The President has taken a somewhat different and sterner direction than his immediate pre-

It is still no very cynical asperity to add that his Republican rival, Sen. Barry Goldwater, also considers himself a military expert and has demanded a "can win" policy. The President is always aware of the political angles.

He will note that Goldwater did not appear for the debate on the congressional resolution of support for the Johnson military moves, but he will understand that

They won't make him a

No sooner had Edwards, 24, been given that responsible position in the police parking lot than he asked to go to the rest room.

Shortly afterward, his denim jail uniform was found in the tunnel through which prisoners are brought to the station to be booked.

Somehow, he had managed to get his civvies, put them on and slip out unnoticed.

Edwards had been sentenced to 60 days in jail July 27 on a shoplifting charge.

added funding of financial Is Con Man added funding of financial costs and require the city to commit itself for an annual rental payment of $4,006,580 or a 22-year period.

Mansell says legal require-ment under a lease-back program would allow the city to underwrite only $24,870,000, requiring the issue of $30, 135,000 of bonds and an annual rental payment of $2,-103,000, or a 26.4 cent tax evy. In addition the city would have to raise new tax. money to take care of some $10-$12 million in street and other active improvements before the fair opens.

CONSEQUENTLY, he says, it will be necessary for the fair organization to come up with approximately $20 million in private financing to put the fair on a sound financial basis. This, the fair organization says, it can and will do, if the city approves the lease-back proposal.

So, the myriad other probems still to be solved before the fair comes close to reality in abeyance, the City Council must decide Tuesday

Third Blank for Angels in One Week

Gatewood & Lee Duo at Best, 3-0 By DOUG IVES

That high temperature the Angels were running a few days ago, which was diagnosed as the start of a headache after Friday's is indeed pennant

Thanks to the aspirin tablets that Bob Lee throws, the Seraphs started their 'assault against the tailenders Saturday night with a 4-0 win over Washington.

Lee registered his ninth save in relief of Aubrey Gatewood (3-1) and Big Smoke, as he is often called, blazed his way nearer the team pitching record of 28 consecutive scoreless innings.

In blanking Washington on one hit the final three innings, Lee now has not allowed a run in 27 frames, covering his last 12 games. Detroit last tallied on Lee on July 15.

FOR THE Angels, it was their 19th shutout, tops in DODGERS DECISION BRAVES, 5-4 the majors, and for Lee it was the seventh time he has finished a whitewash. He has done it twice for Gatewood.

Lee's earned run average dipped to 1.30 and the Angels as a team now are 2.91, also tops in the majors. Since the All-Star break, the figure is an amazing 1.94.

Washington righthander Buster Narum was making overtures toward a shutout of his own, and in fact he had a no-hitter through four innings before the Angels struck for two runs in the fifth on backto-back doubles and an error by Don Zimmer.

BOB RODGERS lashed a two-bagger off the 380-foot mark in right-center and Bob Perry followed suit with a high drive that barely escaped being caught on the dirt track at the 390-sign.

After hesitating at second, Perry tried for three bases but Zimmer had the ball in plenty It's Official-of time. Perry presumably kicked the ball from Zim's glove because it trickled just far enough into leftfield to Angels Sign Pact enable Perry to score.

The Willie Brown Mystery

CHICAGO-Grabbing the brass rings after the College All-Star vs. Chicago Bear classic:

No one seems to have the answer why Willie Brown didn't see action Friday night in more than a couple plays. A second-stringer, Brown took a definite back seat to Ohio State's Paul Warfield. Some press box experts, who had watched the collegians an entire week, claimed Brown "wasn't blocking his hat, while Warfield went all out ALL the time." Willie's coach, Otto Graham, sald after the game only that "Warfield was doing a fine job. I felt there was no need to replace him." . . Whatever the reason,

Willie may take solace in this item: When they played in this same All-Star game, the great Jim Brown and Tommy MacDonald performed briefly also. (And you can't say they've been exactly bums in pro ranks, can you?)

. . Another graduate of Long Beach Poly, Johnny

HOLLINGWORTH Morris of the Bears, had an interesting evening. He snagged five passes, one a 39-yard beauty that triggered the key Bear touchdown . . . garnered another in the end zone that was recalled because little Johnny was playing tic-tac-toe on a defending collegians' head . . . and let the All-Stars' Mei Renfro (Oregon) pick a completed pass right out of his paws. Commented Morris on the latter event: "I never knew a college boy knew THAT trick."
... Renfro knows some other tricks, too. He was a late arrival at the All-Star camp because somehow he was "detained" at the Dallas Cowboys' training head-quarters in Thousand Oaks. When he didn't show up at the collegians' camp in Evanston, Ill., following one lay" after another, Graham made a formal protest to NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle. After a call from Pete, Renfro was on the next plane.

... Graham's comment on Renfro, after viewing the Oregon All-America in two days' scrimmages: "He is the best defensive back I've ever seen in the All-Star camp." Johnny Morris will agree.

THE ALL-STAR charity game is a worthwhile affair, but don't go out of your way to see it unless you're a dyed-in-the-wool football bug. First, who wants to see a football game that starts at 9 p.m.? (It's nice if you're able to watch the local TV at 7 o'clock, but horrible if you're on the scene.) Then, the chance of getting a decent seat is minute. I've seen terrible seats in my career, but the ones some poor patrons received are pathetic. (They're situated on the sidelines-on a straight line-30 yards past the end zone in Soldiers Field here. Those fans have to be either circus freaks or souvenir collectors.) Finally, the weather is terrible-unless you're a Zulu.

. Item: An overwhelming number of Atlanta people were here during the past week and I don't think just to view a football game. The rumor is that they're going to make a strong pitch to nail down an Atlanta franchise in the National (baseball) League Monday, when both major leagues hold special meetings in this city. The franchise they're after is the one now in Milwaukee.

. . If the White Sox don't win the American League pennant it won't be because of fielding. I saw outfielders Jim Landis, Floyd Robinson and Mike Hershberger make three spectacular one-handed glove plays in ONE INNING Friday afternoon when the Sox were blanking Boston 2-0. Each blast should have been at least a double

AN INTERESTING part of the Soldiers Field game was the surprising two-quarterback backfield employed by Graham. Miami's George Mira gained 56 yards rushing in four attempts and accrued his total off a formation that Otto used at the Coast Guard Academy in its game in the Tangerine Bowl.

. . Mira played in the flank behind two linemen with a receiver even wide of this trio. USC's Pete Beathard was the regular quarterback.

This "Graham Cracker" formation was unfortunately used only late in the game and the collegians moved 80 yards the sole time they employed it. "We practiced this formation just three times behind closed doors," said Graham, "and my only regret now is that I didn't employ earlier." (Well, it sure confused the Bears when Otto

Truthfully, Mira's real effectiveness came after he took those overhand laterals from Beathard. As I reported yesterday, Mira was a real crowd-pleaser. On 24 hours' thought, however, I think he may have to be classified as a baseball pitcher with a 17-16 record. When Mira's good, he's very good. When he's erratic, he could be real bad-especially in the no-margin-for-error NFL.

... Leave it to George Halas to let you know there's nothing new on the football horizon. He commented on that double-quarterback spread in this fashion: "They worked that pretty good. But do you know I used that same gimmick in the 1930s? Bernie Masterson was one of the quarterbacks. This is the first time Graham used this since he's been coaching the All-Stars, so it came as a surprise. You might say it was a 30-year surprise . . . but it sure wasn't new to me, just surprising. If I hadn't gaped for the first six plays, we'd have stopped it.'

There is a beach in San Diego delight-tully named "Wind and Sea."

It is a gathering place for the young surf-ing set and the favorite of one of the loveliest lasses ever to wear the accolade of Miss California in the International Beauty Congress.

And if "Wind and Sea" had nothing more to recommend than Linda Ann Taylor, it still must rank with the zoo as the border city's No. 1 attraction.

Miss Taylor, an 18-year-old freshman at San Diego State, is 5-8, 127 pounds with a 351/2-231/2-351/2 figure, and best can be described as "Wow!"

Do you surfboard, Linda?
"I have tried it, but this summer I've mainly watched. It's a matter of getting up enough nerve. It's dangerous you know. Would you say danger is the main attraction to surfing enthusiasts?

"It's part of it. You just want to accept the challenge of being out there on a board and able to feel the waves and the water. It's a great thrill. I know I have boyfriends who would go nuts at the beach without a

What sport do you like to play the most? "I played a lot of basketball in high school and loved that."

Were you a high scorer?

"Not exactly. Girls don't score many points. They spend most of the time chasing the ball. I think I made 6 or 7 one

What other sports have you played? "Volleyball at the beach, a little golf, water skiing, tennis. I used to love track and once made a standing broad jump of 7 feet. I also enjoy pool."

Swimming pool? "Shooting pool. I play quite a bit. One of my boy friends takes me to the pool hall with him. It has 31 tables and is very nice. Shooting pool takes more skill than most other sports and I really enjoy it." What sport do you like most to watch? "Football. It moves fast and is exciting.

I'm a big fan of the Chargers. I hope we don't lose them. I watch almost every play when they are on television. I used to play football when I was a kid. But one day, my cousin—he's a boy—and his friends tackled me a little too hard, and I quit right then."

Do you think the Chargers could beat the Rams?

Most girls would like to marry a football hero. Would you?

"I'd say that most of the fellows I know who play football are nice, but so are other fellows. I do prefer men who are athletes. I like outdoor people,

Is there one professional sports star you would like to meet the most?

"I don't think so. I don't know too much about them. If you would ask me one actor would like to meet, it would be Jeffrey Hunter, I guess my favorite in sports is the quarterback for the Chargers, Tobin Rote. And who is that baseball player who does everything so well? Willie Mays. I'd like to meet him."

Would you rather attend a fashion show or a football game?

"That's an unfair question. I like them both. I'd have to toss a coin."

Do you wear a Bikini bathing suit?

"Yes. Most girls are wearing them now in San Diego. You get a better tan."

Do you think topless hathing suits ever will become the fashion?

'Not for me they won't if they paid me all the money in the world. Girls are naturally exhibitionists, but you'd have to really enjoy being looked at to wear something like that. Anyway, most girls aren't equipped for them. It would be terribly unattractive.'

Are you certain the Chargers would beat the Rams?

"As certain as I would never wear a topless bathing suit."

Some of Boyd's remarks are well worth printing, even at the expense of some sportfishing boat skippers here, who only know how to say, "That crazy $#*X% Culipepper, he doesn't give us any publicity." And I can truthfully answer, "Since

Oh, yes, quite often a skipper who has a big mouth and can't close it gives me hell for mentioning San Diego's catches, the hunting seasons and fresh-water fishing. Even a distraught passenger called me one day recently and said that if I didn't give the fish totals, boat by boat, he would cancel his subscription. Perhaps he did, but I'll bet that stop order didn't last long. That boat-by-boat bit he suggests is unfair to all concerned.

Any way, getting down to Mr. Boyd:

He says that my columns recalled great memories of the fabulous north country, which he and a companion, Slim Withers of Michigan, explored at the turn of the century—1910 to be exact.

THEY TOOK UP A HOMESTEAD on Chief Lake, 18 miles from Fort George (it's now called Prince George). Let's read what Boyd has to say:

"In June 1912 when rivers were at their highest and mosquitoes at their worst we started up the Nechaco River in a 12-foot cottonwood dugout canoe, bound for Stuart and Takla Lakes. We had to make numerous crossovers to find water that wasn't too deep for poling, our only motive power.

'After spending five days lining our canoe up the rapids of Stuart River, we arrived at Fort St. James on Stuart Lake three weeks after our start. We went to the Hudson Bay Company's store where we met an old Scotsman with a large red and blue nose, the result of too frequent libations of 120-proof rum.
"He had just come in from trolling in a sailboat, and the Indian in the boat with him tossed out a dozen steelhead that would average about 20 pounds each.

"'Come with me, boys,' he said, 'and we'll have a wee h-o-r-n after your long journey.' We had a wee horn all right; it was something like blue lightning.

We went up that lake and into the Trembleur River, then into Trembleur Lake, where you could look down into beautiful clear water and see what seemed to be moving masses of trout of all sizes. We also saw the wreck of a large boat brought up the rivers and lakes by gold seekers in the 1870s.

"WE FINALLY SAW a tribe of Siwash Indians who had just killed a grizzly and were skinning it. A young huck came running down to the shore apparently to talk to us, but the chief followed and hit the boy on the head with a chunk of firewood. He fell, well, like a piece of firewood, and we got out of there in a hurry.

"When we got into Takla Lake, a heavy surge was running and we had to hug the shoreline clusely in order not to be swamped. We had very little freeboard. When we arrived at Takla Landing, a hig potlatch was in progress. An old trader had most of the Indians drunk on lemon extract.

"We made camp near there and panned for gold in the nearby streams. All we ever got was color. The fishing was so terrific that it wasn't even fun. I had an old aluminum lure with barbless hooks that virtually floated on the surface. Fish would rise and knock it three feet out of the water.

"Finally we cached our canoe and hiked along an old Indian trail for 80 miles to Manson Creek, where a hydraulic outfit was getting gold. We were offered jobs, but the work looked too hard, so we declined and kept on hiking.

"Several miles up that creek we found some coarse gold in a sandbar and took out eight ounces. That was all. Later, when we got back to Fort George, we sold it

"AFTER REACHING FORT GEORGE and selling the gold, we bought our winter supply of food just as the snow started to fly, then headed for the homestead on "About this time we saw the first outboard motor ever Jused in that country. As modern outboards go, it was a ., poor excuse for propulsion. "I went to Prince George two years ago and the only thing I recognized was the big cuthank on the Nechaco, to opposite the town. I found myself in several of the old pictures taken in the early part of the century. Those are now in the Chamber of Commerce at Prince George.' Boyd started his career in the gold mines of Colorado, then went to Mexico City for more mining work. However, the lure of British Columbia was so great that he left Mexico and headed for Canada. He spent four years there before returning to the United States.

He says that fishing at Stuart and Takla may not be as good now as it was in 1910, but from my description of the sport in recent columns, those old mackinaws and rainbows he knew have left a legacy of fish that will be enjoyed by many generations to come.

Native Diver Speeds to 4-Length W

Native Diver, an odds-on favorite at 70 cents to the dollar, came through as expected in the $22,300 San Diego Handicap at Del Mar Saturday. Native-Diver, in front all the way after the gates opened for the eight-horse field, won by four lengths over Final Command. Drill Site was third.

The winner, after taking the lead, saved ground throughout most of the up in the stretch to win easily. Time was 1:411/2 and Native Diver pald $3.40, $3 and $2.40. Final Command returned $5 and $3.60 and

GUN BOW turned in his second consecutive spectacular performance when he won the $54,000 Whitnev Stakes at Saratoga by 10 lengths and came within one-fifth of a second of the track record. In his last start in the Brooklyn Handicap at Aqueduct two weeks ago Gun Bow won by 12 lengths and set a track record of 1:59 3/5 for the mile and onequarters.

Saturday he streaked across the finish line in 1:49 1/5 with Montpelier's Mongo second, hopelessly outrun in the mile and oneeighth race. The record of 1:49 flat was set by Middle win the $114,000 Arlington Brother five years ago.

Gun Bow, picking up a winner's purse of $35,295 in winning his sixth race in 11 starts, paid $3.80 and $2.70. Mongo, ridden by Wayne Chambers, paid $3.00. There was no show betting in the field of four.

Tosmah, the 1963 champion 2-year-old filly, coasted down the stretch with a five-length lead to handily

Classic over nine challenging 3-year-old colts.

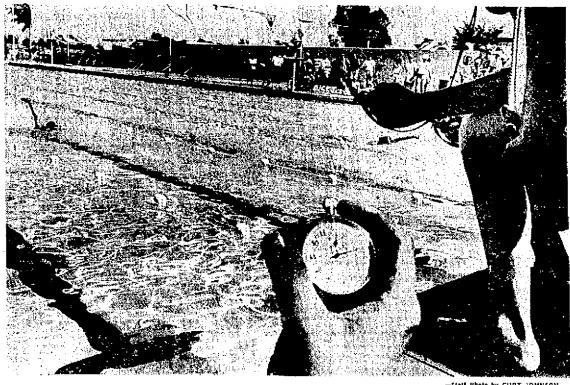

Tosmah, ridden by Sammy Boulmetis, was lightweight in the field with 115 pounds and was clocked at 1:36 1/5 for the one-mile dash.

Tosmah, a daughter of Tim Tam, paid $17.80, $10.40 and $7.60, Lt. Stevens returned $11 and $6.50. Close By paid $7.40.

Wheatley Stable's Bold

Lad, a son of Bold Ruler. blazed over six furlongs in 1:09 2/5 at Monmouth Park to win the $102,575 Sapling Stakes by half a length in record time. The speedy chestnut colt lowered the stake standard of 1:10 2/5 set by Hail To Reason in 1960 by a full second as he scampered to his fifth triumph in seven races this year. The crowd of 40,543 made Bold Lad a prohibitive favorite and he paid $3.40, $2.20 and $2,20.

Camper Industry Shifts Into High Gear

INDUSTRY

Independent-Press-Telegram LONG BEACH, CALIF.,

By VERN ANTHONY Editor of Progress Section

Scampering in their campers over highways and byways, thousands of American families are giving travel and recreation an ever higher priority in their way of life.

Thus, manufacture of camper living units-which are attached onto truck chassis for traveling-has created a major industry. This is especially true for resort-type sections of the country, such as the Long Beach and Orange County areas.

Typical of the numerous camper builders in the Southland is Keith R. Boswell, owner of Pilgrim Manufacturing Co., Inc., at 2429 E. Artesia Blvd.

BOSWELL ACTUALLY STARTED making campers only five years ago, working in a garage at Compton. At first it was a oneman factory. He moved to his present plant two years ago.

He built 125 campers the first year; and expects to produce up to 750 this year. He has huilt and sold more than 2,000 units. Boswell has about 20 men working for him now, and hires up to 30 at peak periods. His crews complete four or five campers

Business is good, he says, estimating a 20% upturn over last

Boswell is on the board of directors of the Portable Camp Coach Association (PCCA). Treasurer of his camper company is Myrtle Boswell, sales manager is Martin Benson; and plant superintendent is Wendel Morehouse,

Conveniences of camper travel have won over countless women who formerly balked at accompanying their husbands on outdoor trips. It no longer is necessary to "rough it." That is optional today.

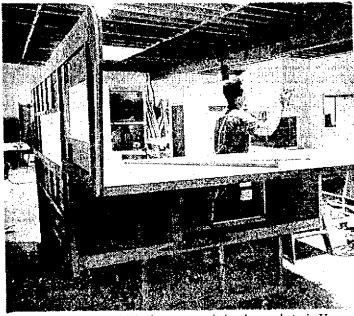

SO NOW WHOLE FAMILIES go camping "in style"—many keeping their campers stocked with supplies so they can take off on a weekend jaunt at a moment's notice.

With Americans on the move more and more as the economy allows them more time for recreation and travel, the auto industry is playing increased attention to meeting the needs.

But, meanwhile, demand for campers is keeping Boswell and his fellow manufacturers busy. And for the fishermen, the hunters, the vacationers, the retired couples "seeing the country," the weekend jaunters-it's happy days ahead on that "long, long

to More Holidays

The trend is toward more paid holidays a year for manufacturing employes, according to a National Industrial Conference Board survey just released. The survey—based on information obtained from 548 companies in a broad cross-section of industries 1956 and 1963 to more time off with pay. Eight paid holidays a year have become more common; six or fewer have become less prevalent. Many firms note that the traditional holidays now are taken for granted. The most effective holidays, from an employe relations standpoint, are increasingly

Business Tops '63 in Hawaii

Hawaii's business this sum mer is very good, well above 1963 levels, according to Bank of Hawaii's monthly. Review of Business and Economic Conditions. Armed Forces expenditures increased and so did construction, tour ist activity, retail trade and manufacturing.

Military spending, especially by the Navy and Air Force, increased markedly in the second quarter of the year, and it now appears that 1964 spending will be well ahead of 1963. The increases came in federal civilian payrolls and military payrolls.

Construction completed is well ahead of 1963 levels, and a large number of new projects were announced during the past month.

those that offer the longest weekend, many companies point out.

ONE MAJOR TREND is toward the "floating" holiday, generally timed to fall on a Friday or Monday to provide a long weekend. This "floater," the NICB -shows a significant shift—survey discloses, is now used to some extent in all business except banking.

Six holidays have be come standard practice and are given by almost all firms in almost every type of business. These holidays are Christmas, Thanksgiving, New Year's, Independence Day, Labor Day and Memorial Day.

In the last five years, however, at least four "new" holidays have gained popularity: Good Friday, now a paid holiday in 38% of the manufacturing firms surveyed,\ up from 12% in 1956; Christ-mas Eve, the Friday after Thanksgiving, and the "floating" holiday.

THE SURVEY notes these differences between the various industries examined:

Banks and insurance companies generally offer more holidays than other types of business. Nearly 50 per cent of the banks and 40 per cent of the insurance firms now grant more than 10 holidays a

Manufacturers and public utilities generally give seven or eight paid holidays a year.

Trade firms commonly offer six and seven. While the recent trend is clearly up, the Conference Board survey notes that the total still is far behind the approximately 115 holidays observed in the Middle

Survey Shows Trend Agriculture Closely Related to Industry in L.B., Orange County

More than many Southlanders realize, agriculture plays a tremendous role in the business and industrial prosperity of the Long Beach and Orange County areas.

Educated estimates, based on Department of Commerce figures, are that industries related to agriculture in Los Angeles and Orange counties have combined annual payrolls in excess of $1.5 billion, according to the Council of California Growers.

AND THIS FIGURE may be too conservative, declares Cliff Schlegel, Southern California manager for the

About one-third of all rail transportation and half of the truck hauling in California involves fresh and processed agricultural products. More than 23% of the seaborne freight handled in the Long Beach-Los Angeles Customs District consists of agricultural products, Schlegel's figures

materials and services seldom tied in with agriculture such as advertising, electricity, petroleum fuels, paper, steel, plastics, transportation and even glue. There are many more.

It was to emphasize the importance of agriculture in the California business picture that the Growers Council recently sponsored a tour in Orange County for business and civic leaders and the press. The tour visited the Mutual Orange Association packing plant at Placentia, the St. Regis Paper Co. plant at Fullerton and the Minute Maid plant in Anaheim.

RECENT RAPID SPREAD of housing and shopping center developments, especially in Orange County, has given to many the impression that agriculture seems doomed in this area. The contrary is the case,

In Orange County, gross farm income in 1964 exceeded the 1953 figure by a million dollars despite conversion of 62,000 acres of agricultural land into urban use.

In 1963 the county had 93,428 acres planted to crops. Million-dollar enterprises were topped by Valencia orange production, at $25.5 million. Next came the dairy industry, at $16.5 million; eggs, $12.5 million; strawberries, $9 million plus, etc.

THE GARDEN GROVE district holds top honors-as a strawberry growing center.

Canneries and allied services provide employment-in the county for more than 18,000 persons a year, with payroll topping $8 million.

So for big, big business, tag agriculture in Califordia: Last year, farmers in the state produced a record of $3.43 billion worth of farm commodities. And they in turn bought $2.2 billion worth of goods and services.

The average California farmer has at least $50,000 invested in equipment. More than 200 crops are grown in California, a greater variety than in any other state.

OS ALTOS SHOPPING CENTER EXPANDS

Philippines, Italy 'Need U.S. Capital

By VERN ANTHONY Editor of Progress Section

Two "on the spot" men or the Bank of America—one from Milan, Italy, the other from Manila, were visiting in the Southland today renew-ing their impressions in this country and reporting on conditions abroad.

Bank representative from Italy is Dr. Luca Magugliani; from the Philippines, Ralph D. H. Wilmer.

Both emphasized need for American investment capital in their respective areas abroad.

Speaking of Communism there, he said 75% of the people in Italy were not Communists; and he predicted there would be no further spread of Communism in Italy, and that the country would stay with the Western blue of nations.

Magugliani added that Italy is in the process of changing from an agricultural to an industrial country.

He said the movie industry in Italy is in a "bad way" financially and is worried over revival of film production in Hollywood.

The sweetest homes in town are telephone planned...

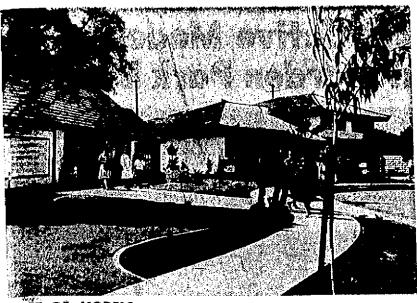

And their occupants have the sweetest dispositions among new homeowners. No wonder-telephone service started on move-in day for them. Separate phones were swiftly installed in spare bedrooms and dens the same day-without "nibbling" at walls and baseboards. And not a wire showed! All because Telephone Planning anticipated the immediate wants and future needs of growing families-outlets were conveniently placed and pre-wired during construction. So nobody wound up in a stew. The first day Helen Howell, new subscriber, read the Press Telegram, she saw an appeal for volunteer workers by Long Beach Community Volunteer Office.

Mrs. Howell, a recent arrival from Buffalo, N.Y., answered the call the following day and has been a busy clerical worker for CVO at Psychiatric Clinic for Children and Travelers Aid ever since.

An employee of Disneyland ("á dream come true") from 4 p.m. to 12:30 a.m., the vivacious matron bubbles with enthusiasm over her

"FASCINATING," she said. "I have lots of room for more. I don't have to have much sleep and I like to be among people. I don't know what to do with myself unless I'm busy. And in a new town, what better way to get acquainted?"

Individual volunteers, placed by CVO, gave 151,000 hours to 88 agencies and organizations in the fields of health, welfare, recreation, civics and culture in 1963.

"CVO volunteers are of all ages and interests," said Clara Andrews, executive director.

"A great many people have time when their families are grown and want to be active and independent," she continued. "These people have so much to uffer."

"WHY, PROFESSOR," gasps Lois Bean to Dr. Ken Shanks in faked emazement during the cast party at Pacific Coast Club for Civic Light Opera's recently concluded, "Sound of Music" show.

"Who'd have dreamed it," said she to him. He did.

Ken, professor at Cal State, LB, played a leading role in show, as did Lois. Her reaction, in photographic foolery above, was to his delightful spoof of show. He did an analysis, with heavy Freudian overtones, of musical comedy's meanings to the delight of all at party who roared in appreciative laughter at his

The big crowd of cast, production crew and opera sponsors enjoyed a delightful early evening cocktail party, 8:30 p.m. dinner and then skits, including Ken's bit, followed by dancing. A few present were Dorothie and Lloyd Mallin, Bee and Don Wilson, Lou and Ray Griffliths, Betty and Clyde Palsley, Rose and Gene Bishop, Grace and Clarence Knox, Muriel and Harv Wehrman, Dave Selcer and, of course, John Sarver, president of the board.

MOST DEWEY EYED bride of the week-and the most surprised—was June Dilday. For their 25th wedding anniversary, husband, Bob, arranged to have a church wedding in First Baptist Church.

Bob told her he wanted her to be all dressed up for a picture date. Then, supposedly on way to photographers, he said he had to stop at church for a moment and for her to come on in with him. Waiting there were members of immediate family to witness the 4 p.m. re-exchange of vows.

Not only that, but their son, Burr, and his wife, Linnell, had another surprise in store. A festive recep-tion afterwards. Then off the "newlyweds" went on an anniversary trip to San Diego in company with Rosemary and Eldred Dietz, who were also celebrating their 25th anniversary. The two couples met, have remained staunch friends, on their original honeymoon trips-on the boat going to Catalina.

PAR AVION, a post card winged its way my way from Ethel Severson. Ethel and her parents, "Artlo" and Al Stevenson, are in Zurich, Switzerland, during current, annual travels to far places—this time around the world.

Wild Waves Say ...

Having a fabulously good time, they've been fortunate to have good weather EXCEPT being caught in a monsoon as they left Bangkok and being in New Delhi, India, during scorching heat. While in Rome they did as not too many Romans are able to. Stayed in a castle, built in 1000 A.D., and owned by Count di Sarsina, Al's attorney in Italy. To add even more glamor, Charlton Heston is filming "Agony and the Ecstasy" at this castle.

THE "TIRED BLOODS" (that's THEIR name for themselves, not mine!) which stands for the battle scarred members of the Downtown Optimist Club's softball team, had a social workout when the athletes and wives gathered at Hope and Jack Collins' Seal Beach home for a pool party. Party was one of the real hits of the season for the gang.

Bob Waldron was resplendent in a long, two-plece swim suit, Gay 90s era. His answer to the topless, wife Doris, explained. Others having a ball were Bindy and John Vosburg, Bette and Don Barden, Mary Alice and Will Rivard, Paul and Jeanne Williamson, Barbara and Fred Dominski, Mitzy and Len Wiedrick and Grace and Clarence Poole.

As one of the player's wives confided, they play every Wednesday . . . sometimes even win.

ANYBODY WHO wants to see a good show, all for free, of legerdemain and magical hocus pocus, should head for Recreation Park—in the area of the bandstand-today about noon.

Members of the International Brotherhood of Magicians, Ring 96, of Long Beach will have their annual picnic and perform stunts to stun the eye.

Semi-pros, the gang gathered at Betty and Pat

O'Donovan's residence for a practice session and pool party the other day and are ready to outwit, asionish and entertain with tricks by the dozens. A few performing and picnicking will be Dave Alexander, Ray Hafler, Merlin Eifert, Bill Ulrich and Jim Muszalski.

The fellows suggest audience members bring their own lunch for affair. That's the one thing they won't produce out of thin air for watchers!

PLANNED FOR informal post-show gaiety was the cast party Saturday given by Dottie and Clint Conatser at their home, following performance of Community Theater's current production of, "Green Grow the Lilacs." The Conatser's daughter, Pam, 16, has the young lead role of Laurie in the play.

By time they invited, not only Playhouse people, but friends of Pam's and their own, they had about 150 present for the bountiful, bouncy affair.

SEEING SOUTHERN Cal as they haven't in some time will be sightseers, by necessity, Jessie Lee and Dr. Don Malcolm during the last two weeks of the month. Her nephew, Richard Utne, is arriving from New Orleans and the Malcolms are determined to give him the grand tour—from Hollywood and Vine to Disneyland and points in between.

IN THE fifth edition of Who's Who in California, Long Beach has a sturdy representation. Among those listed from here are Clyde Dunlap, Dr. Russell Brougher, Judge Maurice Sparling, Dr. J. Orient out of San Francisco Tuesday.

They not only have the Imperial Suite, with huge living room, playroom, bedroom and two baths, but they have an additional bedroom, with bath, as well!

The suite's playroom even boasts electric refrigerator, grill and electric coffee pot just in case they choose to have late breakfast after regular serving hours. They'll be gone about 59 days, visiting numerous ports in the Orient.

GARDEN LUNCHEON, served at umbrella shaded tables, backgrounded one of summer's favorite events-a bridal shower Saturday. It was in honor of Jan Van de Water who will become the bride of Louis Pollard Jr. of Whittier next Saturday. Party was cohostessed by Margaret Stimson, Marge Conley, Baba Graham, Rod Strong and Betty Barbee and was given at the Stimson's home.

TURNING A work session into a party date was no chore at all for Sandlarks. It was a taste-testing and cook-up-a-storm night at Barbara and Jack Lon-don's home when the women and their husbands judged the results of recipes submitted for the I, P-T's special Cook Book edition.

Smiling approval of the night, below, are hostess Barbara, Shirley Jones, Maria Stevens and Mary Pard, who like all members, prepared the special dishes in their category of judging-barbecue foods.

They had four huge braziers set up in the yard to prepare those dishes which required the good, old charcoal treatment, plus an electric oven going indoors to put final touches on other gourmet treats.

One of those braziers belonged to London's neighbor, Joe Shuff. Poor guy arrived home night of party with hearty steaks to cook, only to discover his barbecue equipment gone. So, he joined the party. Not such a poor guy after all, considering wife, Marilyn, (also a Sandlark, thus the free-wheeling borrowing without a by-your-leave) has been in the East visiting her family. It saved Shuff from chefing for children who, in turn saved from dad's cooking, turned with glee to a kid's best friend, nearest hamburger heaven.

Last minute dash of salt and the feast was on.

He Chose the Way, Let Him Follow It

DEAR E.:

Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I am 22 years old and have four sweet babies. Three months ago my hus-band ran off with another woman, When I found outabout it, I didn't want to go on living but I finally got a divorce and it's over.

A few days ago he called and wanted me to come back. I told him "no." I'm living with my sister and have been working. As far as money goes, I'm not too bad off but what should I do about him?

He is the father of my babies, but how do I know he won't do the same thing over again if I go back to him. Everyone says they can't tell me what to do-DEAR P.S.:

I don't need any rosecolored glasses to describe the way I see things: any man who would leave to young wife and four babies hecause of an infatuation with another woman is about something I think about as low and undependable as they come-and certainly no good, solid bet as a husband or as a father.

Right now you have youth on your side. You have a job and can fend for yourself and the little ones. Give this ne'er - do - well another chance, and you'll likely find yourself with a larger family, less will to forge ahead on your own, and absolutely no pillar of se-

Some Straight Talk on Hair

Permanent Sets Style

Hair designer Wm. Walter Southern does almost everything with a bangalso a wave, a dip, a curl and a swirl. Always eager to meet life head-on, this broad-shouldered adventurer has,

in fast order, cut quite a swathe in a variety of pursuits. A Hollywood product (his father designed sets), he sold newspapers as a kid (Will Rogers was a regular customer), dated Alexis Smith while both were students at Hollywood High ("I lost her to my favorite TV actor, Peter Gunn"), did a stint in the Navy, turned out cartoons for Walt Disney and learned to mix a mean martini while bartending in Reno.

But once he discovered his flair with hair, that was that. Southern's occupational explorations ended, then and there.

HOW DID THIS World War II vet happen to enter the hair fashion business? This is his explanation:

"It happened on Guadalcanal. A bunch of us were crouched behind an LST 213 trimming each other's heards and hair with—of all things—a pair of tin snips, when somebody started talking about what we'd all be doing after the war.
"I decided right then and there that I'd seen enough grubby men to last me a lifetime. As I snipped away at a fellow Navy man's hair, it seemed the only sensible solution would be to work around beautiful women."

SINCE THEN, Southern has created

trend-setting coiffures for more than his share of beautiful women.

As stylist for a Hollywood salon that caters to movie stars, as owner and operator of his own salon in Beverly Hills and as traveling consultant for a national beauty chain, his patrons have included such luminaries as Kim Novak, Pat Wymore, Ann Miller and a host of others.

But he finds his greatest challenges in turning Plain Janes into gorgeous creatures with the swish of a new hairdo or the excitement of a new hair color.

Currently, as training director and advisor for all May Co. beauty salons, he schools hairdressers in his unique "I-learned - it - by - experience" techniques and makes personal appearances at May Co. salons for individual customer consultations.

HE CURRENTLY is holding forth at the Lakewood store, training staff members in new color techniques and the latest hairstyles (pictured). From Aug. 17-29, he will be on hand for customer consultations, to individually prescribe hair-coloring formulas, give advice on hair problems and answer queries on the salon's new

"soft-wave" permanents.
"New hairstyles, with their soft and fluid lines, make a permanent almost imperative to give body, line and the perfect end result to modern hairstyles," he said.

The new look, Bill Southern-style, is shorter at the nape, lifted at the crown and longer at the sides.

Hairstylist Southern

NEXT TO DEMISE of yesterday's full-blown hairstyles and the necessity for body permanents to give today's coifs an unteased lift, Southern said the most important news is in hair coloring.

"With today's faster methods, more expertly trained colorists and new products on the market, he predicted that, in the near future, almost every woman will have her hair bleached, tinted or dyed."

But, whatever products are available, experimenting for better results will never be a past-tense thing with hairstylist Southern.

He plunges into hair coloring preparations with the enthusiasm of a chemist, uses a one-minute tint tech-nique seldom seen, and surprises patrons by applying bleaches and dye to wet hair ("you can tell the true texture of hair only when it's wet").

Like we said — tall, jovial Bill
Southern gets a bang out of his work. The patrons do, too!

BEFORE AND AFTER: a cut...a curl...a comb out...a new coiffure

styles designed by Mr.

Southern for May Co.

Palos Verdes Exhibit Is Student Showcase

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Palos Verdes Community Arts Association is a showcase of paintings by recent graduates of California State College at Long Beach, and Los Angeles State College, Pomona, and the University of Southern California. The gallery in the Palos Verdes Library, one block above the Plaza, is open daily from 1 to 4 p·m. and Sundays from 3 to 5 pm.

It is evident that these student artists have risen admirably to the challenges of significant problems in technique, composition, and vision. There are flashes of brilliance among the 25 works, mostly oils, with a ground is a cluster of indrawing.

The latter, by William Tumberg, is a large work in pencil of a man in Western dress; it is both sensitive and sophisticated. He suggests as much as he puts on paper, "Mother and Child" by Paul Robles is rich and painterly with fine control of freely brushed pigment. The empathy between the two figures is almost pal-

K. CHURCH is represented by "Two Figures" and "Seated Woman." While the composition in the latter is much the stronger, the very pale tones of the first are more intriguing.

Among the watercolors, Don Swintech's "Mexican Village" masterfully develhomes and gardens by the white.

Interesting oil techniques have been developed by, among others, Robert Kobaski and John Austin. The latter's "Still Life" is a drawing in color over a semi-dry background. Kohaski's "Seated Figure" is enigmatic and monumental, emerging in a million strokes of closely-related color.

TO ME, the most arresting work in the show is the large "Untitled" oil by William Seebert, On a white few watercolors and one triguing forms, boldly brushed in primary and tertiary colors. "Yankee Doodle" presents an expressive figure which conveys the simulicity and cry of terror of Kollwitz. While Kenneth Overholser has yet to control his forms, "Red Image" in blue and red is something to conjure with.

JERRY GROSSBERG'S "Adam and Eve" (and another figure, unidentified) stand out in shocking white against deep blues of reds of the Garden. The most skillfully resolved work is, perhaps, Nancy Reineman's oil, "Journey" in which two figures are suggested amid mists of yellow shimmer. Crisp, fresh, and tight is Judith Wacha's "Leafy Deops a strong environment parture" with lozenges of for a valley full of small color accented by black and

Park Concerts Stir Pride

By RACHEL MORTON

As I sat in Bixby Park the other night listening to a "Starlight Serenade" concert given by the Long Beach Symphony orchestra, a wave of emotional pride and gratitude came over me. How cats have been portrayed in art has reflected man's changing appraisal of them down through the ages. Cats were held in high esteem in ancient Egypt, hence were depicted handsomely. Disparaged in the Middle Ages, few cats appeared in the arts and were of evil demeanor. In the long course of human events, cats regained favor as a companion of mankind and, consequently, came back to popularity with artists. In modern times, cat shows have been organized and the camera has become a tool of popular art. Cats were discovered to be highly photogenic, widely variable in mood. Today's cover photo by Louis and Virginia Kay of Princess, non-pedigreed but loved household pet of Mrs. Diane Buechler, catches the delightful mood of a kitten. For more about cats and an upcoming cat show, turn to Page 10.

James Bond's New Girl

Merville:

Playing role of Pussy Galore, Honor Blackman takes James Bond (Sean Connery) off guard in "Goldfinger," new lan Fleming thriller, a plot to rob Fort Knox.

TONOR BLACKMAN, a curvaceous blonde English actress, is the newest and most dangerous James Bond girl. Now before the cameras in "Goldfinger," Miss Blackman portrays Pussy Galore, the provocative blonde whose views on men are drastically changed (for the better) after a series of intimate encounters with Secret Agent 007, played by Sean Connery, This is Connery's third excursion into the peritous world of James Bond, having survived "Dr. No" and "From Russia With Love." All three films are United Artists releases.

In Miss Blackman, Bond meets a female worthy of his attention. Until recently, she was famed throughout the British Isles as Cathy Gale, the black-booted, leather-clad, judo expert of the popular "Avenger" TV series. Many a villain decided to go straight rather than match judo holds with Honor, who is the possessor of a Yellow Belt, denoting her prowess in this form of combat.

HER ONE ATTEMPT to use judo against Bond in "Goldfinger," has some unscheduled romantic results.

By way of introduction to American audiences, the accompanying photos reveal some of the fine points of the exciting English star,

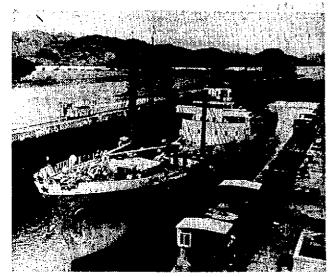

In "Goldfinger," Possy Galore is the personal pilot of Auric Goldfinger, one of Ian Fleming's most fascinating and diabolical villains. He plots nothing less than the robbery of America's gold reserves at Fort Knox.

The film, in Technicolor, is being produced by Harry Saltzman and Albert R. Broc-

United States capital, skill and initiative built the Panama Canal and opened it to all nations shipping, as witness this Russian vessel en route through a lock.

By Marjorie C. Peacock

FOR HALF a century the Panama Canal has been a water bridge between two oceans, carrying the seagoing commerce of the world, Next Friday will be the 50th anniversary of the opening of the "Hig Ditch" and the observance of the milestone will be of special note in view of Panama's recent unfriendly relationship with the U.S.

A few figures serve to illustrate the canal's importance to world shipping. In one fiscal year, 1962-63, for instance, the cargo amounted to 62,247,094 tons; transit of ships, 11,017. Tax collections in 1963 were $56,368,073.

For 400 years man had had visions of a great waterway across the Isthmus. Many propositions and investigations were made by various people and different countries but to no avail until 1903. President Theodore Roosevelt had realized the worth of such a canal, not only to the United States but to all the countries of the world. Ever since assuming the presidency he had pushed the construction of the canal.

Granting by treaty of the Canal Strip to the United States was ratified in February 1904 with compensation set at $10,000,000, annual payments of $250,000 after nine years and guarantee of Panama independence, It was recognized by Roosevelt Nov.

This recognition of the treaty gave the United States the sole responsibility of the canal, From the beginning of its active interest in an Isth-mus canal the United States government contended that if such a waterway was to be opened it should be free to all nations on equal terms,

ACTING FOR the United States government, Roosevelt bought out the bankrupt French company that had been trying to build the canal. This caused a great storm of pro-test from Congress. Later, Roosevelt said: "If I had acted strictly according to precedent I should have turned the whole matter over to Congress; in which case Congress would be idly debating, at this moment, and the canal would be 50 years in the future. Accordingly I took the Isthmus and left Congress to debate ME. But, while the debate goes on the canal does,

At last the way was cleared for "an American canal, built by Americans, and controlled by Americans."

In 1906, Roosevelt went to make an inspection of the canal and set a precedent by becoming the first president to leave the boundary of this country while in that office. In order that he might land on United States territory, a special station was erected on the Panama Railroad near the boundary of the Canal Zone at Panama.

The cost of the canal was more than $375,000,000, including the $50,000,000 paid to France and Panama, and 135,000,000 cubic yards earth and rock were excavated,

IN THE WORDS of Secretary Bishop of the isthmian commission: "The canal is a huge waterway bridge, the first in the world's history. It is about 34 miles in length, 87 feet high with the channel in the center varying in depth from 45 feet to 87 feet and the width at the bottom 300 feet to 1,000 feet. Divided into two sections, Gatun Lake and Culebra Cut, the latter an arm of the former." All Iocks are duplicate—6 pairs, 12 in all, The average transit is 8 hours,

No vessel is permitted to enter or pass through the locks on its own power, thus avoiding accidents which might be caused by an engineroom misinterpretation of bridge signals.

In 1962, additional con-struction at the canal cost nearly $70,000,000. Thatcher Bridge over the Pacific entrance of the canal cost $20,-000,000 and was built and paid for by the United States. The bridge is important as it forms a strong link in the Inter-American Highway and is a boon to Panama's farm and market economy.

PANAMA CANAL, at the present time, is the subject of much controversy. It already has a traffic problem, Rep. Craig Hosmer of Long Beach says "a second 'Big Ditch' 1980 and the year 2000." He suggests that statchood may be the answer for Panama.

Congress is now reviewing all the possibilities. The best way to preserve the United States relationships with Panama and to protect the Uni-

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90812, for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, DEAR MISS RULE: May we have genealogy on GUTHRIE. — A. G., Long Reach.

A, G.: GUTHRIE originated in Forfarshire, Scotland. Its source was a locational term, the Gaelic word "Gaothaire" meaning "windy place." The Guthrie shield is divided into tour sections. The upper left and lower right sections are gold, decorated with a red rampant lion; the other two sections are blue with a gold wheat sheaf in the center. The inspiring clan motto "Sto prop veritate" translates from Latin as "I stand for truth." Descendants include the eminent Scottish historian William Guthrie, 1708-1770,

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the origin of DAHL-QUIST.--Mrs, I., Morro Bay.

MRS. I.: DAHLQUIST is Swedish with the unusual meaning "valley tree-branch." This is one of a group of Swedish surnames that were formed from pleasant sounding words without regard to description or historical sig-nificance. This type of name was adopted within the last 300 years to replace the profusion of Scandinavian names such as Anderson, Jensen and Peterson.

DEAR MISS RULE-Would you analyze the surname of WHITE.—T. W., Long Beach, H. W., Los Alamitos, F. W., Garden Grove.

T.W., H.W., F.W.: WHITE is from an English nickname characterization for a man with light blond hair. In the 11th century English Domes-day Book, White was listed in its original form "Wit." Two hundred years later William the White is in the Close Rolls parchaments of King Edward III, 1340. The shield of the Whites of Derby, Dorset and Hampshire, England is red emblazoned with a silver chevron between three silver goat heads. William White and his wife, who arrived on the Mayflower in 1620, are considered the New England family ancestors.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly give data on CANNON .- J.L., Garden Grove.

J.L.: CANNON of Ireland is descended from the Irish clan O'Canain, This family was the progeny of a chieftain called Canan meaning "young wolf," in allusion to his stalwartness in hattle. The Irish Cannons were natives of Galway. In England and Scotland Cannon traces to an ancestral church dignitary titled "Canoine." The Scottish Cannon shield is red, decorated with a large two-handed sword placed on a diagonal stripe between three silver spur-rowels. English fore-fathers include William Le Canon in 1273.

DEAR MISS RULE: What

WELL .-- F. D., Lynwood; R. K., Beliflower.

F.D., R.K.: KIDWELL had two early sources in Britain. One was geographic, from the Saxon "Kidde-wiella" mean-ing "kid-goat spring." The other evolved from Calwaladr, an old Welsh term for "battle ruler." This second origin became the town-name Kiddal in Yorkshire, The Kidwell shield is blue, emblazoned with a leaping gold

DEAR MISS RULE: What have you on VON HOENICKE –H. H., Garden Grove.

H, H.: VON HOENICKE is a German nobility surname. This was originally Honicke with an umlaut accent on the letter "O," The source word was the ancient Gothic German "Huno" meaning "exalted," coupled with the nick-name suffix "--icke" for "young." I do not have the shield for this family.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please publish data on KERSHAW .--N. K., Long Beach.

N.K.: Kirk-shaw portrayed "church in the forest." Lancashire forefathers include Matthew de Kyrshagh, 1281. The Kershaw shield is silver, decorated with three black crosses.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the origin of ANNA-LORA.--V. V., Bellflower.

V.V.: ANNALORA is a south Italian dialect surname from Sicily. This name evolved from the ancient Latin words "Annale-Lorum" meaning, ironically, "tied for a year." This described a tenant farmer who was held on yearly contract.

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you genealogy on TILLEY .--H. T., Long Beach.

H.T.: TILLEY was made famous by Geôffrey de Tilli who donated a large amount of money in A.D. 1020 to-wards building the Abbey for Men at Caen, Normandy, France. Geoffrey took his surname from his large estate "Tilli" meaning "at the linden tree grove." Some of his descendants accompanied William the Conqueror to Britain in the English conquest of 1066. One of them, Henry de Tilli owned Marshwood Manor in Somerset during the 1100s. Edward and John Tillie or Tilley and their wives were among the valiant Mayflower passengers who landed at Plymouth Rock in 1620.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly analyze FRIENT.---C. K., Garden Grove.

C.K.; FRIENT is French. This surname, formed many generations ago, is from the personal characterization "Fri-ent" meaning "young is the background of KID-10 and peaceful," compact of

First monorail built in Southland in 1907

Fawkes' Folly

By Jan Heminway

THEY LAUGHED when Joseph W. Fawkes demonstrated a monorail in 1907. Like a roller-coaster it appealed as fun for a day. He called it "Fawkes' Aerial Trolley Car," but they dubbed it "Fawkes' Folly."

Born during the Civil War, Fawkes grew up during a period when transportation was also developing. He loved speed. In smartly tailored clothes, and sporting a waxed mustache, he raced around in a carriage drawn by a pair of spirited horses with two Dalmatian dogs running behind. He was not a farmer, but he owned a small "ranch" in the then rural community of Burbank, and his two-story house was a landmark. He wrote poetry and painted in oils and dreamed.

But his dreams had a practical side. The farflung oases of human habitation from the mountains to the sea were maturing into Henry Huntington's "family of cities." They would need a means of rapid transit. His crystal ball may even have given him a view of the Golden State Freeway that would one day run past his property, with its heavy traffic and resulting smog. Good public transportation might have made that unnecessary.

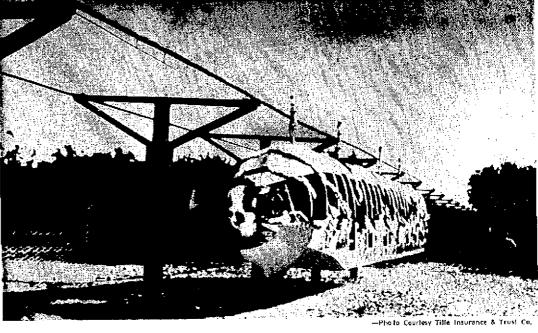

IN EUROPE, several monoral systems were proving successful, and he went to Germany to study them. He came back with imagination soaring. Pegasus was just what Southern California needed! A brilliant man with an inventive turn, he had already produced an electric sign that was drawing fat royalties. Now, protected by a patent and using his own money, he cut a wide swathe through his apricot orchard and erected a quarter-mile track. His cigar-shaped test car was streamlined for speed and covered with a silvery sheeting.

"Aluminum!" stated one old-timer, positively.

"Couldn't be. It rusted away before Joe died," objected another. "Anyhow, sheet aluminum was mighty expensive in those days, and that thing was only meant to be a model."

A white-haired man shook his head. "He was born 50 years too soon. He sure was sold on that rig! It only had a Franklin automobile engine, but Joc claimed it could do a mile a minute with a bigger one."

Just as Goodell and Alweg urge pilot lines, to show what the monorail can do, Fawkes pressed for a track linking Burbank to Los Angeles. So far, he had turned his shining dream into a tangible thing without help. To go on with it, he needed financial and moral support.

Early day photography failed to do justice to Joseph Fawkes "Aerial Trolley Car," also known as "Fawkes' Folly." Car ran on overhead monorall in a swathe cut through inventor's orchard. He failed to sell the idea.

FOR SOME REASON, Americans didn't warm to the idea. In St. Paul, Minn., a suspended monorail had been started from a suburban area to the civic center but the city fathers had refused to allow it where they had jurisdiction. Hanging impotently 20 feet above the ground, it looked like a horse-car without a horse.

Fawkes, the artist, had built a thing of beauty—a burnished tube that moved with the pace of poetry. An Irishman named Brennan had experimented with a gyroscope to maintain balance, but his car was unable to negotiate a curve on its single track. Those in Germany were suspended from an overhead track they couldn't leave. Joe suspended his, with interlocking wheels, and adapted Brennan's whirling gyroscope. It moved smoothly and safely. But the car was open, as most trolleys were at the time, and for a people with no wish to fly, the blades of the propeller created too gusty a wind.

While he labored frantically at raising capital, the Pacific Electric red cars spread their network over the metropolitan area that Fawkes had hoped to serve with his system. In 1910, the Southern Pacific bought out Henry Huntington and the powerful spider threatened to include Burbank in its steel web. Most of the 400 citizens saw this as a means to the delights other communities enjoyed, such as day-long trips to the sea. Fawkes campaigned vigorously against it. The right-of-way and $40,000 guarantee demanded by the electric railway was all he needed to build his monorail into the city. He was outnumbered. Within a year, a spur was extended from the Glendale line to which a stage had connected.

BOWED BUT not beaten, Fawkes came up with a three-day fiesta over July 4, 1912. Brochures explained what the monorail could do and what it could mean in the future. There were firecrackers, dinners and free rides in the weird car swinging from its curved track. Passengers mounted by way of portable steps like those now used at airports. For the little test track, he hadn't invested in a switch, so the car had to be pushed back to the starting point by hand.

"Back me, and with this setup I can glide straight over Mount Hollywood if they won't let me go along the river," he declared, "Once we build a line into Los Angeles it'll revolutionize interurban travel. I can cross creeks and arroyos without bridges. It'll be a gold mine! In 10 years it'll put the P. E. in a museum."

Burbank shrugged, Santa Monica opened negotiations but thought his right-of-way demands excessive, and interest waned.

In public fancy, inventors, poets and artists are odd-balls. Joe was all three and had never been a conformist. Now, watching his shimmering Pegasus corrode and collapse in wind and rain, he began to cultivate his quirks.

EVEN THOUGH he owned a car in the early days, he preferred his carriage with the proud horses. It was 1912 before the first paved highways were built in California, and through long use the mud and dust had assumed the shape of a rutted roadhed. Automobile travel was uncertain and often humiliating. Yet, when the town decided to pave Olive Avenue, then little over two miles long, he fought it. His property lay along Olive, and macadam was hard on a horse's hoofs! Each time they moved to accomplish it, he defied them with an injunction. He lost when work was started one Friday night and kept going in day and night shifts, reaching the finish line before the court opened on Monday morning. He opposed incorporation of the town; he objected to the municipal fire denariment that replaced the volunteers: he became a committee of one to promote annexation to Los Angeles.

Now and then through the years, he agitated fruitlessly for recognition of his monorail. In Germany, monorails were successful. At least one, the Wuppertal line with its overhead track, built in 1901 and updated 40 years later, is still running. In 1952, Alweg demonstrated its system—riding on a single rail—in Germany, and built the one at Disneyland a few years later. About the same time, Goodell opened a pilot line in Houston with an overhead track.

Fawkes died in 1928, his dream unfolfilled and the trolley disintegrating in the orchard. His family left Burbank soon after, and the ranch was absorbed by the growing industrial district. During World War II, Pegasus' pathetic skeleton was scrapped.

Today, 74 cities stand check-to-check in the metropolitan area, and the monorail is being considered for rapid transit. But only a handful of his contemporaries have lived to ponder the possibilities in "Fawkes' Polly."

OES THE surrealistic landscape on this page look vaguely familiar? It should; it is a scale reproduction of one of the Southland's most famous locales, Santa Catalina Island.

This Catalina, however, is in cardboard.

The paper-and-paste version of the "Magic Isle" was put together in the Newport Beach-Irvine Ranch offices of famed plannerarchitect William Pereira.

Pereira and his staff are using the contour study of the island, composed of thousands of meticulously arranged sheets of cardboard, to work out a longrange plan of development for Santa Catalina.

The project was commissioned by the Santa Catalina Island Co. which owns the entire 47,000acre island with the exception of the one-square-mile City of Avalon.

(PEREIRA'S PLAN, which envisions a permanent island population of 16,000 within 10 years (it is now about 1,500), calls for development of the Wrigley isle as a place of wide open spaces.

Seventy per cent of the land area will be left undeveloped, he says, with 80 per cent of the population concentrated in the communities of Avalon and Two Harbors

Two Harbors comprise the two coves at either side of the Island isthmus. The isthmus is a narrow section of lowland that connects the island's two distinct mountainous sections. The isthmus is a terrain feature which often leads the viewer on the mainland to believe Santa Catalina is two islands sitting in the sea off Long Beach.

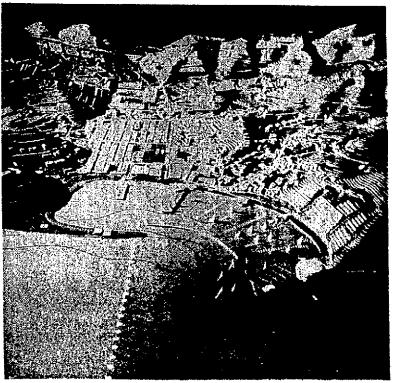

Two Harbors is virtually at the opposite (or western) end of the island from Avalon, the isle's only true city and oldest settlement.

Pereira wants to build on the high slopes behind Avalon and at the Isthmus, using funiculars (vehicles which operate on much the same principle as the San Francisco cable cars) to furnish transportation up the steeper grades.

HE ALSO HOPES the use of electric trains, narrow guage rail-ways and privately owned electric cars will keep the automobile population at a bare minimum.

Autos, in fact, won't be allowed in downtown areas at all.

Two Harbors, now the site of only a few scattered buildings, is being planned as a water-oriented community with strong educational and cultural ties—not unlike a "little Santa Barbara."

The half-mile isthmus will be converted into a landscaped esplanade paralleled by a smart town center of quality shops and businesses. The hillsides will be covered by residential areas, arranged in 10-acre village units, each with its own small park, and reached by means of funiculars and electric carts. There will also be schools, a championship golf course, anchorages, yacht and boat clubs.

ALSO PROJECTED for Two Harbors is a Marine Biology Station which is to be built at Fisherman's Cove. The MBS "may eventually become the nucleus of a larger institute center which in time would attract related research and development facilities."

The Middle Ranch area, in the higher reaches of the island between Avalon and Two Harbors, will be largely maintained in its natural state with provision for only a relatively few families living on large ranch-size parcels. Altogether not more than 2,000 residents will live in this region of more than 20,000 acres of highland.

Hunting preserves and clubs will also be established in the wilderness areas.

SMALL POPULATION centers may be established at some of the island's coves, but the plan is to keep most of the Catalina's inimitable bays and beaches for recreation purposes.

Painstaking research, Pereira says, has convinced him and his staff that "the most successful isalnd communities were those that did not depend entirely on tourist trade, but developed as well their own native industries."

Accordingly, plans are being laid for year-round employment opportunities, including the creation of an industrial park at Pebbly Beach. These would be socalled "light industries" and would probably feature such indigenous crafts as pottery and tile manufacture.

Other industries might include mining, quarrying, boat building, fishing, lapidary and ceramics. ISLAND construction wherever possible will employ native materials including Catalina rock, clay and hardwoods.

Education and research will play a big part in island work world and among other projects currently in the discussion stage is a private preparatory school at Toyon Bay that could be utilized as a university conference center during the summer.

Tourism will remain an important factor in Catalina's economy, according to the Percira view, and long-range thinking calls for the development of a convention center on the island. Emphasis will also be placed on the construction of moorings for thousands of visiting boatmen.

Pereira and his planners are also searching for means to economically cut the travel time to the mainland. Under consideration are transport systems utilizing helicopters, hydrofoils, and ground effect (air cushion) machines.

THE PLAN proposes an architectural mood for the island which will be distinguished by use of warm colors, pitched roofs, generous employment of balconies, overhangs and other integral sun-control devices.

This suggested "Catalina Style" also calls for use of tile, breezeways and materials impervious to salt spray. The aim is to create an atmosphere generally Mediterranean with a big dash of Californian.

The land will be leased, not sold.

"In this way," Pereira says, "the intimacy, the integrity and the induplicable charm of Catalina can be maintained."

WATER—with speedy, dependable year-round and economic transportation from the mainland—is a key factor in any significant development of Santa Catalina.

The island does have some natural reservoirs and at least one "running stream," but neither is adequate to present, let alone, projected needs.

When plans for the development were first announced it was disclosed that a sizeable source of potable water was found by drilling wells to a depth of 1,000 feet.

This water source apparently is adequate for immediate future needs.

Other possible solutions include construction of a desalinization (de-salting) plant on the island, or the laying of an underwater pipeline to the mainland,

Antiques Furnish a Home

In this bed-sitting room, carved Victorian rosewood furniture provides an aura of charm often lacking in more modern fittings. Many of pieces are of foreign origin.

DURING long years of Navy life with her doctor husband, Mrs. George Franklin Cottle traveled to many far corners of the world. She now lives with her sister, Mrs. McDowell, in a treeshaded home located at 2191 Eucalyptus Ave., although she declares that her miniature shepherd dog, Boy, and poodles, Garcon and Blanco, are also part owners of the residence. Forty-nine assorted birds that reside in a large aviary in the solarium lead such luxurious lives that they, too, might be considered coowners.

Virtually every piece of furniture in the house is a treasured antique, not of the store variety but of the true family heirloom kind. Items of the knicknack class were acquired from various other sources.

The blend of types is interesting: there are pieces from South America; those which are old English, mid-Victorian, French and Oriental, for example,

A floor-to-ceiling mirror at the far end of the living room surrounds the fireplace and doubles the apparent size of the room. There are many conversation corners.

A FRENCH SOFA is particularly interesting. The round arms at either end are hollow, with round pull - out drawers. No one knows what they were originally intended to hold, but silverware or other treasures might be a speculation. The sofa faces a round Oriental coffee table.

By Ruth C. Ikerman

THEN the spout broke on my favorite blue Eng-lish china teapot with the pink roses, I couldn't bear to throw it away. So I used it one morning to hold an as-sortment of garden flowers until I could put them in a vase, and they looked so nice I never got around to re-arranging them. Then there is that little pink sugar and creamer set which is too small to be practical for everyday use, the way people shovel in the sugar at coffee time at our house. Hence the two small bowls have become vases in which to float the heads of flowers broken loose from tall stems. It is especially good for hollyhocks, bringing them down to eye level enjoyment.

A neighbor tells me I am not alone in this idiosyncracy. But she really prefers using the newest packaging con-tainers received when she goes to the super market for foods. She makes vases out of mugs in which cheese spreads, peanut butter or jellies are packed. There are tall syrup bottles in interesting shapes and squatty ones with sauces. She does amazing things to them by the addition of a little enamel in colors to match her kitchen or the children's bedrooms.

THERE IS one thing we both have in common. Our vase cupboards are crowded untouched while we make new vases for old from broken crockery or new packaging. Some day we will have to give the proper vases their turn at holding flowers for the enjoyment of the family.

Meanwhile, I broke the handle from a yellow chintz teacup and I know it will make a perfect vase for greenery. Of course I'll have to be careful to keep the chipped portion toward the wall, but it will make a lovely container for a piece of fern or a branch of fir.

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

Time to Be Patient

By Howard E. Kent

normal.

The child isn't a delinquent, and this conduct does not forecast delin-quency. A 2-year-old has a very short memory, and not much conscience. Often he is naughty simply because he can't remember that he shouldn't be.

By Vera Williams Southland Magazine Book Edited

ELAINE chases John. John chases Ariel. Caliban flees. Elaine says "NO." It's off. It's onl

Fans who were around in 1935 and were old enough to remember, will recall the vivid and highly sensational love affair of the late John Barrymore, the "Great Profile" and Elaine Barrie nee Jacobs who became his fourth and last wife.

"ALL MY SINS REMEM-BERED" is the title of Elaine Barrymore's first attempt at being an author. Her bi-ography co-authored by San-ford Dody, New York writer and actor (Appleton-Century, $5.95) is available at book stores.

Elaine Barrymore, who with her mother now lives just outside Mexico City, admits in her very frank autobiography that she, a New York Jewess born Jacobs, as-sumed the name "Barrie" because of an adolescent infatuation with the entire Royal Family of Barrymore.

Prior to Elaine, three beautiful and brilliant women had failed in the attempt to be a wife to John Barrymore, Each of his former marriages had lasted seven years . . . exact length of the Elaine Barrie-John Barrymore marriage. When Elaine said her Do's" with John Barrymore in Yuma, Ariz., in 1935, it cannot be said that she went into the marriage as an innocent child . . . she also had an eye on fat dramatic roles as the wife of the great Shakespearean dramatist, which, incidentally, never materialized.

In "All My Sins Remembered" Elaine reveals more of erratic husband's sins than her own. It is perhaps natural that she would be-

FOR THOSE LONG, lazy vacation days when a good book and a cool spot plus a cold drink have the greatest appeal, Carol Brink's latest novel, "SNOW IN THE RIV-ER," (Macmillan, $4.95) is recommended reading. author is known for both her children's books and her fic-tion, including "Strangers in the Forest" and "The Head-land." Her "Caddie Wood-lawn," a book for children, won her the Newberry Medal, "Snow in the River," written in the first person, tells the story of three brothers who left their native Scotland in the 1890's to come to America. They settled in Idaho, then a young exploit-ed spot of wild mountains, trees, bitter winters and hot summers. Outstanding was Angus, oldest of the three Brothers McBain. He is protrayed as the studious, God fearing father of the author. Her favorite uncle, Douglas, the youngest of the three, was driven by ambition but tripped up by his insatiable desire for beautiful women. The middle McBain brother, Willy, was a happy-go-lucky youth who wasted his opportunities in a disastrous attempt to rescue a young waitress from a pregnancy occasioned by unwise love of an unworthy adventurer.

Miss Brink writes with a deep understanding of hu-man foibles.

READERS of the popular Claude Mauriac will remember Bertrand Carnejoux, Bertrand was married then-although not exactly "settled down.

In "ALL WOMEN ARE FATAL" (Braziller, $4.95) the reader meets him before he was married, in Parts, on the beach at Rio and in New York in the days when he was a fancy journalist.

The novel is one man's philosophy of and experiences in love. Women will be interested, but probably not agree. Translated from the French by Richard Howard.

ISAAC BABEL hit the Russian literary scene like a meteor with his "RED CAV-ALRY" and Odessa stories in early 1920s. His stories were brutally frank, and they were diamond hard masterpieces. Then, at the height of the reign of the monstrous King Stalin, Babel disappeared. Af-ter Stalin's death, it was learned that Babel had been shot, probably by a firing squad. "THE

"THE LONELY YEARS: 1925-1939" (Farrar, Straus $6.75) edited by his daughter Nathalie Babel, is a collection of eight stories by Rabel and a goodly number of his letters never before published anywhere. Some of the stories haven't been published in Russia.

The letters are loving domestic notes, to his mother and his sister, who had left Russia to live in Belgium. They do not touch to any great extent on Babel's literary work, but through them runs an undercurrent of worry as to the fate of an honest writer under Stalin. The last letter was sent May 19, 1939, and from then on his family heard no word from him.

Two stories are in fact sections of a planned novel on life on the collective farms; others clearly are in the Maupasant style loved by Babel in his youthful days. Impending doom shadows the letters, yet Babel tries to be sunny with his family. His daughter has done a great favor to lov-ers of the best in Russian literature in publishing this book.

In true colonial fashion, the sink top hutch can become a serving center, display space or indoor plant holder.

By Bill Meyerriecks

If YOU'VE ever shopped for an authentic-looking sink top hutch, copper-lined, one with that warm inviting early American look—how did the price tag strike you? It probably struck you square between the eyes. Yet if your decor is Colonial, the sink top hutch is one of the prize pieces that is a must—so useful and good looking for entertainment and display.

One practical way to have a beautiful butch (such as seen in the Sketchbook photo) in your home is to consider design plan S-171 of the Sketchbook do-it-yourself series. With this detailed plan in hand, some careful but moderate purchases of pine lumber and a sheet of copper lining, plus the will to do the job over a reasonable length of time—and you can have the butch right in your dining room. If the man of the house is any way handy with tools and can stick with easy to understand instructions and drawings, it can be done well.

And that's some of the fun of making this type of colonial piece. It doesn't take the experienceed skill of a cabinet maker. Working with pine stock, which is relatively soft, cutting the same size patterns for the filigreed top and

sides from standard lumber sizes is not difficult. There are bevels to be cut for the front of the hutch and drawer and the plan shows a same size guide to help you with these. The fancy looking doors are explained fully; actually their construction involves only average woodworking know-how, the lining leakproof and snug.

INCLUDED in the Sketchbook plan are instructions on how to fold the copper lining to fit into the approximately 17x30-inch dry sink area on the table top of the hutch. The plan shows how, without epoxy or any filler, to make the lining leakproof and snug.

The length of the hutch is 44 inches, its depth about 20 inches and it stands some 50 inches in height at the rear,
Its table top area is the comfortable height of 32 inches on top of drawer, 27 inches at sink bottom. All sizes of parts, the number and description as well as all materials needed are listed. Finishing tips and general information are also given in the plan.

Sketchbook's Sink Top Hutch Plan 2-171 may be obtained by sending 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif, 90812.

ANTIBIOTICS may be used some day to combat tooth decay, predict two dental researchers.

therapy. However, the researchers, Drs. Nor-man W. Littleton and Carl L. White of the National Institute of Dental Rerearch, Bethesda, Md., say that penicillin would not be a practical antibiotic for prevention of tooth decay.

"Limitation on the use of available antibiotics in man are well known, but new compounds are being developed constantly," they say in the Journal of the American Dental Association.

A HARVARD physician says that 50% of the diabetic patients in the U.S. currently being treated with insulin could be transferred successfully to oral drugs.

Dr. Samuel Beaser, clinical associate in medicine at Harvard Medical School, bases his estimate on an eight-year study of 115 diabetics.

Dr. Beaser has pioneered the use of combination of oral drugs as the strongest possible oral treatment. The most effective combination has been pairing of phenformin (DBI) and chlor-propamide (Diabinese), he says.

A new antibiotic, daunomycin, iso-lated by Italian researchers, has a high anticancer activity and relatively low toxicity.

In animal experiments it has caused "significant inhibition" of 12 of 13

A NOTHER new antibiotic, pimaricin, improved the lot of 7 of 10 patients with a fungus infection of the lungs, report two British doctors in Pimariçin was administered as a spray two or three times daily. In those who were helped, improvement oc-curred after an average of six weeks of treatment.

Most of the patients had pulmonary infections due to the fungus Aspergillus fumigatus.

GIVING the pain-killing drug phenylbutazone to patients already taking the anti-clotting compound warfarin is inadvisable, reports a New York pathologist.

Using the drugs in combination may lead to bleeding complications, he says.

Dr. Milton J. Eisen of Yonkers, reporting in the AMA Journal, cites five instances in which phenylbutazone beefed up the action of warfarin, to threaten bleeding complications.

Children with cystic fibrosis often display degrees of relarded growth. But the hormonal drug stanozolol (Winstrol) may increase hone age to ultimately improve the stature of CF patients, says Dr. James L. Dennis of the University of Arkansas Medical

The Job of Guarding the President

By Hoyt McAfee

WHEN A U.S. President suddenly goes into a milling crowd to shake outstretched hands, does that expose him to unnecessary risk? Former President Herry Truman thinks so. Hence the reason for his recent advice to LBJ — "Be careful."

An intensity of public interest surrounds the subject right now. And another onetime White House occupant, Dwight Eisenhowser, offers this thought: "On his public appearances the president impulsive should make no moves which might upset pre-arranged security measures," But it would appear that the Secret Service and those thoughtful Americans concerned over the president's safety face many enxious moments in the months ahead.

For LBJ has made it clear that he intends to mingling with my fellow Americans and be a people's president."

Even the Warren commission must grapple with the question of presidential protection. In this instance, pro-vide as clear and forthright an answer as possible to, among other questions, whether Secret Service and FBI security precautions for John F. Kennedy's ill-fated visit to Dallas were lax or short-sighted.

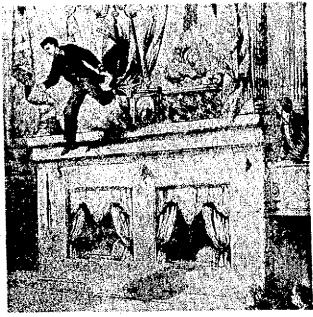

HOW ABOUT other American presidents who've been shot at or assassinated? Did they, by their free-wheeling and fatalistic behavior, make wide-open targets for crackpots, the demented, and dan-gerous individuals? Or was the near-tragic and tragic fate which overtook them due to lax Secret Service protection?

Let's take a searching look at the little-known record on that score. First, the White House years of Abraham Lincoln. An asionishing fact about him was this: He, a man who truly savored moments of solitude and aloneness, loved to prowl about the streets of Washington at night.

He'd go off on these nocturnal strolls alone and un-guarded! Sometimes he'd slip away quietly without telling anyone — his wife, son, or some member of the White House staff — where he was headed. On these night-time excursions he went unarmed.

Sorely beset by daily cares and the heartaches brought on by civil war, Lincoln found these long strolls relaxing and refreshing. All about him were the sights, sounds, smells, and voice of the nation's capitol. From the best available evidence, Lincoln moved about on his nocturnal prowls without attracting special notice or recogni-coln's 6 feet, 4-inch figure (crowned by a top hat) presented an inviting target. That is, for an evil-door or wouldbe assassin.

Evidently there was one stalking Lincoln that night, and a shot suddenly rang out, sending his top hat spinning to the ground! That incident upset Lincoln somewhat at the time; but upon his arrival at the White House he dis-missed it as "a chance the president must take when he goes out to look around on his own."

Certainly Lincoln proved one of the hardest presidents to guard: since by nature, instinct, and impulse he was very much a loner. No one knows, for example, why he suddenly dispatched his own bodyguards to Richmond on April 13, 1865.

ART AND SCIENCE have joined forces to create a decorative wall plaque.

Like many modern developments in the home furnishings field, this new wall decor had its origin in Southern California.

Kalon Products, 2107 S. Lyon St., Santa Ana, is now offering 21 varieties of plaques, ranging from a reproduction of the Winged Victory of Samothrace to an original avant garde abstract.

The plaques have the three dimensional quality of bas-relief sculpture and can dress traditional or contemporary rooms, according to Kalon's president, Paul E. Kilian.

Though the plaques have the look of metal, wood, stone or plaster, they are made of Kalonite-expanded urethane foam combined with a polyester surface.

Kilian says the plaques can be hung on walls simply by pressing them against three small finishing nails.

The plaques are available in an assortment of sizes ranging from 13x13 inches to 44x52 inches. Prices run from $10.20 to $250.

Q. Is honey that has been on the shelf for several months still edible?—D. N.

A. Honey that is stored for several months may darken and have a stronger flavor but is still usable. If crystallization (a natural process) occurs, the honey is not injured. To bring crystallized honey back to liquid form, place the container of honey in a pan of warm water. Extracted and comb honey are best kept in covered containers in a dry place at room temperature. Outside House Painting Eliminated for 10 Years

The Missile Age has produced an exterior wall coating so tough and durable that it's Absolutely Guaranteed to eliminate a need for painting outside walls for 10 years. This outstanding product is called GUNTEX. When applied it is 20 or more times the thickness of ordinary paint and actually functions as a new surface.

U.S. GOVERNMENT

The U.S. Government uses GUNTEX for its many military installations. Thousands of gallons of this remarkable exterior surfacing have been applied to provide weatherproofing and beauty FAR outlasting ordinary paint.
GUNTEX has been applied on thousands of homes, industrial and commercial buildings throughout the world, many of those in Southern California alone remain in perfect condition after more than 10 years exposure in all weather extremes.

SCHOOLS REDUCE COSTS WITH GENTEX

GUNTEX has been applied to scores of school buildings in Los Angeles and other parts of the United States and thereby saving the taxpayers many thousands of dollars by reducing maintenance costs.

SHOT FROM A GUN

The GUNTEX coating is actually "shot from a gun" with heavy duty spray equipment under extreme pressure without muss, fuss or odor. It fills holes, cracks and covers building defects, yet does not conceal the original architec-tural lines.

WHY IS GUNTEN SUPERIOR?

Unique among GUNTEX qualifications is its insulating properties which is obtained from its basic components of asbestos, mica and perlite which are noted for their insulation and durability. GUN-TEX also contains a rubber elastomer which does not evaporate or migrate into the foundation or surface of the building as is the case with many coatings and plastics. This gives GUNTEX a life expectancy of 15 years or more.

Fun Boat for a Party

By Lorena Fleissig

BOATS ARE most popular these days and we find they provide a happy theme for party time, symbolizing the excitement of sailing places, new experiences and the possibility of there being surprises stored away in the hold.

Party needs in the way of table decorations need no t be expensive items. Clean pressed egg cartons (the long ones) can do double duty in this respect for the children's party boat.

Perhaps scow would be a better term for this long, square-ended boat made of the lids of three cartons and the cup sections of two,

To give the hull sturdiness, glue two egg carton lids together, one inside the other. The third lid is glued upside down under the hull to give the scow height. This boltom lid will be the base for the foil waves which are added

TO FORM the top of the scow, use the cup sections of two cartons. Cut lengthwise through the center of the cups that are next to the inch-wide closing lab of the egg carton. Now you have two half-cup strips joined to the inch-wide tabs.

With white liquid glue, join the bottoms of the cups, cupside up and secure with clothespins until thoroughly dry. Bend the tabs down and glue to the hull on either side. Trim to shape into a point at the top.

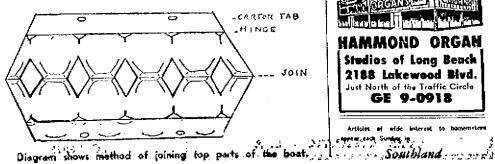

To paint the boat, use any color of spray paint, or gold, silver or perhaps white using thick gesso. Gesso is a water paint already white mixed for use.

Wet the brush before dipping into paint and rinse at once after using or keep in a can of water.

THE BIRTHDAY candles will set in large red caps from detergent bottles. If the caps on hand are of various colors, paint them with red nail polish. Put glue on the plastic caps and force them into the triangular openings on the top of the scow. Smaller caps glued inside these larger ones will better hold the kitchen candles. These ordinary white candles are found at any market, so many in a small box.

For the waves, cut foil, either blue and silver, or both, an inch or so larger all the way around the base of the boat. Glue boat base to the center of the foil and crush the material up around the sides and front of the scow companied by an engaged companied by an engaged couple, Maj. Henry Rathbone and Clara Harris, went to Ford's Theater in Washington, D.C., to view a performance of "Our American Cousins." Only one man, a hard-drinking Washington policeman named John F. Parker, stood guard outside Lin-coln's unlocked presidential box that fateful night.

THIS SCOW should have flags flying, such as paper pennants glued to round tooth picks, gay decorations hanging along the sides, lifebuoys, flowers or tinsel. There is ample room in the hold of this 12x4-inch scow for surprise gifts. They might be caukies in the form of lifesavers, or lollipop paddles, or small packaged gifts tied to long ribbon streamers.

"When Parker left his post to visit the nearest bar (at 10:15 p.m.), John Wilkes Booth, actor and Southern sympathizer, suddenly sprang into action. Slipping into the presidential box, he found Lincoln half-asleep in a haircloth rocking chair. One shot from Booth's derringer entered President Lincoln's head. He died in William Peterson's rooming house across the street at 7:22 a.m. the following day (April 15, 1865)."

Less than 20 years later, annother free-spirited president occupied the White House James A. Garfield. Early in his administration, a "pesky character" named Charles Guiteau began to bombard the new chief executive with pleas.

AT THE HEIGHT of this relentless campaign, the jobseeker appeared repeatedly at the White House gate. There he argued with the guards to let him in for a face-to-face talk with President Garfield. He became such a nuisance, in fact, that he was barred from the entrance to the White House on pain of arrest for "disorderly conduct!"

No check was kept on Guiteau's movements from that day forward. But as he with-drew into the Washington shadows, his grievance against Garfield became a festering sore of bate. On July 1881 the holiday-bound president entered the Baltimore and Potomac Railway station in Washington. Strangely enough, no White House guards accompanied him.

One policeman did step forward to act as an escort. From a nearby corner Guiteau suddenly darted out, his pistol pointed directly at Gar-field. Shot and seriously wounded at the time, the President lingered on for 80 days — during which ineffective surgery weakened, rather than benefited, his condition. He finally died of blood poisoning at Elberon, N.J., on Sept. 6, 1881.

THUS THE EVIDENCE 50 far clearly shows that lax-protective measures gave two determined assassins unobstructed access to Presidents Lincoln and Garfield, Both of whom, it should be added, preferred to go it alone as much as possible.

Then, on Sept. 6, 1901, President William McKinley was destined to meet an untimely death at the hands of an assassin. Gala throngs flocked to the Buffalo Exposition to catch a glimpse of the visiting chief executive. In an expansive mond, he decided to shake hands with a long lineup of them. George Cortelyon, McKin-ley's secretary, twice pleaded with the President to cancel the shake hands with the public ceremony at the Buffalo Exposition, Each time, however, McKinley prevailed upon him to reinstate it. His argument being: "No one would want to hurt me."

So McKinley had his way and the crowd swarmed forward, each person eager to be the first to shake hands. His guards were pushed aside in the crush and swirt of the crowd. Even though there was a strict rule against anyone approaching with a bandaged hand, no one made a move to halt Leon Czolgosz.

He, an anarchist, shoved in close, reached for McKinley's hand; then suddenly pumped bullets into his body. They came from the pistol hidden under the bandage. President McKinley died eight days later on Sept. 14, 1901.

As president-elect, FDR paid a visit to Miami, Florida, on Feb. 15, 1933. Riding with him on that occasion was the popular major of Chicago, Anton Cermak, Giuseppe Zangara, standing among hundreds of onlookers, suddenly drew a pistol and aimed the barrel at FDR. A woman spectator caught his movement in time to hit his gun hand.

dents, no one has ever taken as many risks as Franklin D.

Roosevelt.

But the deflected bullet struck and later proved fatal to Mayor Cermak. Zangara's additional wild shots killed five persons before he was finally subdued and arrested. In spite of that near-brush with disaster, FDR — even in his presidential years-would never permit the Secret Service "to keep me boxed in," as he phrased it.

Once I rode in his motorcade as he headed toward a mountaintop inn above Asheville, N.C. Dozens of tourist cars had pulled off to the side along that narrow roadway. As Secret Service men fretted, fumed, and swore under their breaths, FDR - in jaunty spirits-slowed down to a crawl and then proceed-ed to enjoy "Wayside Chats" with all those strangers!

That evening, in the quiet of his suite at the inn, FDR told the late U.S. Sen. Clyde Hoey and this reporter: "Without a fatalistic attitude, a man would soon suffer a nervous breakdown in this job. On any of his public appearances, the president takes something of a risk. Someone, if he so wishes, can take a shot at him."

Relics of a Battle That Didn't Occur

By John Shannon

MACHINE GUN nests in California?

No surprise to find them in war-scarred Europe or on shell-blasted Pacific atolls but, in Palos Verdes peaceful hills?

No more than GI battle exercises ever disturbed those picturesque hills or the peace of the rhythmic surf off Portuguese Bend. Yet, two San Pedro boys, Mike Shannon and Tommy Catherwood, both 13, in their wanderings through the Palos Verdes Peninsula found tangible evidence to believe that battle had been waged there.

They were hiking along the cliffs overlooking the Pacific between San Pedro and Maringland, when suddenly they saw what looked like a col-lection of "T" shaped pipes sticking out of a group of low mounds just over the next

As they approached they could see a large horizontal steel hatch beside each of the pipes. To their left was a small ramshackle stucco building, all of its windows smashed and much of its stucco siding cracked and falling away. Several electri-cal conduits led away from the building towards the mounds.

THEIR CURIOSITY whetted, the boys raced along the conduits to the mysterious mounds.

On the ocean side now, they could see a low rec-tangular "window" in the first mound, protected on top by a thick lip of rippled concrete and covered by steel shutters. Reyond it was another mound, its shutters propped open, and beyond that many more, some with open shutters, some closed, and some with their protective cover of dirt somehow stripped away, sitting like squat blockhouses on the side of the hill.

Opening one of the steel hatches, the boys scrambled down metal rungs set in the concrete wall and found five underground rooms, connect-

IN EACH ROOM were two vertical pillars ending just at window level, obviously designed as machine gun supports, and between them a much larger concrete base, probably for a heavier weap-

The boys had stumbled into the remnants of hillside fortifications installed early in World War II as defenses against feared invasion of the U.S. mainland by Japanese forces. The story of the pillboxes and gun emplacements they had "rediscovered" goes back to a cool December day in 1941 when the news of the bombing of Pearl Harbor struck America in general and Fort MacArthur in particular with never-to-be-forgotten impact.

Pearl Harbor was 3,400 miles from Japan. If the Japa-nese could attack that far there was no reason to doubt they could jump another 2,000 miles and attack Southern California. In a wave of feverish activity the Third Coast Artillery Regiment be-gan moving 155mm anti-ship guns into the Palos Verdes Hills overlooking the sea approaches and, by midnight Dec. 7, gun crews were established throughout the hills.

NO ATTACK occurred that night, but the next morning word came from Washington that a Japanese attack was set for Dec. 9. A 24-hour alert was in force.

But Dec. 9 came and passed with no sign of invaders. Given a breathing spell, the harbor defenses began to dig in in the hills. Powerful searchlights and heavy guns, were set up at several sites and machine gun nests were dug and cemented near the positions to protect them from enemy commando raids, and also, if necessary, to help stand off a full-scale landing.

Torpedoing of a merchant vessel near the San Pedro Breakwater and numerous reported submarine sightings kept crews alert, but only one gun battery, at Long Point, ever spoke in an attack. Twenty rounds were fired at a supposed submarine - and there is inconclusive evidence that a submarine may have heen sunk.

AS THE WAR wore on, threat of invasion diminished and men and weapons were pulled out of the emplacements. With the surrender of Japan on Sept. 2, 1945, the last of the machine guns was lifted from its support and returned to storage in Fort MacArthur. The pillboxes were abandoned to the rav-ages of time, the elements and occasional youngsters who stumble across them.

The only problem now is the danger the "mysterious mounds" pose for inquisitive children clambering up and down the slippery steel laddres. At least three locations ders. At least three locations on the Palos Verdes Penin-sula are riddled with these installations. They are not fenced off and they are not sealed.

At one point, a child might fall straight down a 30-foot shaft. For that reason no exact locations are given in this article.

Some day soon the pillboxes should go the way of the tunnels on Fort MacArthur's Upper Reservation which were filled in and scaled off several years ago. Until that time, the defenses which were designed to deal out death to invading armies. are potential death traps for curious children.

Still in good tune and physical condition, this vertical grand piano is a treasure in a Long Beach home.

By Helen L. Gillum

"WHAT an extraordinary pianol" and then, "Does it still have a nice tone?" These two exclamations almost invariably come from guests when they see the stately old vertical grand piano in the living room of the Robert Broxholme residence, 1063 Pacific Ave.

Fortunately, due in part to the skilled know-how of a local piano man who tunes and services it regularly, the piano does play harmoniously, en-abling Mrs. Broxholme to en-joy her hobby as a pianist on the beautiful family heirloom. And, although the instrument dates back to the 1890s, good care through the years has maintained the case and original varnish in excellent condition in spite of its having

Your nurseryman will introduce them to you by their Maori names: Tawhiwhi Pittosporum has black stems, small dark green foliage and dark purplish flowers fragrant at night; Tarata has mediumsized foliage, light green with wavy margins, yellowish fragrant flowers and Karo provides a grey-green appearance because the undersides of the leaves are like white felt. The Australian variety is known there as Victorian Box, which is difficult to understand because the foliage is fairly large and the growth rather open, quite the reverse of boxwood. It is used in two ways. Anyone who has driven through the Santa Barbara suburb of Montecito will recognize it as the tall estate hedge providing privacy from the road.

The oriental variety is the Tobira, a modest, hardy me-dium-sized plant that grows into a large mound naturally. The terminal foliage is arranged in a rosetto, the leaves recurved at the margin and lemon-scented. White, fragrant flowers tura into greenish seed capsules that split open in fall to reveal

ANTIQUES

THE PIANO was a wedding gift to Mrs. Broxholme's mother from her father in 1898. It bears the legend, "Schimmel-Nelson Verti-Grand," just above the key-board, and was made in a factory in Fairbault, Minn. It is said to have been designed by a craftsman who vowed to make a grand piano with the strings set upright instead of in the conventional horizontal position. The fine tone, the graceful sweep of the section enclosing the strings, the beautiful, darkly glowing finish, unique carvings and other features attest to a super-craftsmanship, lifting the piano from the "oddity" classification to one of distinction and beauty.

Unusual as the piano is, it is only 12 inches in depth across the topmost section housing the strings. It is six feet high at its tallest point and nearly six feet long. Interesting little carved faces look down from the top of the pilasters, and kettle drums, mandolins and other instruments are etched to form a musical pattern across the face of the music rack.

A piano similar to this one, called a "giraffe piano," with the exposed strings extending up and down like a harp, and another called a "piano harp," were made in the early 1800s. but few were manufactured, and most of those that remain are in museums.

BILL SNODGRASS

What's in the Bag?

▲ WELL-DRESSED man sat in a booth the other evening at Ken's Restaurant, 3918 Long Beach Blvd., wearing a bewildered expression as he watched numerous patrons depart carrying mysterious-looking paper sacks.

Finally his curiosity became so strong that he spoke to a waitress. "What's in all those bags?" he asked.

"Bread," she replied. "People are so crazy about Ken's little loaves of fresh bread that they insist on buying supplies to take home."

This situation is a source of delight to owner Ken Mc-Connell and his right-hand man, manager Bill Snodgrass. When they decided a few months ago to include individual hot loaves with their dinners, they never dreamed the bread would become so popular. The bread, white or wheat and baked in Ken's own shop, is just one of the epicurean touches at the restaurant, one of the most beautiful and skillfully run estab-lishments in town. The dinners also include a "bouquet" of colorful appetizers served in a gleaming silver shell; wonderful salad, baked po-tato, ice cream or sherbet.

Remarkably popular is one of the special Sunday entrees — tender, succulent roast duckling served with an orange Bigarade sauce which make tastebuds tingle pleasantly. It's $2.55 for the quarter of a duck portion. Among the superb entrees served daily and Sunday are spencer steak (tender center of prime beef), $3.15; light, rich, flaky broiled halibut, $2.35; five delectable jumbo shrimp, $2.75; sweet, delicate broiled lobster tail, $3,35, and tender, distinctive New York cut steak, the selection of Miss Japan, "It surprised me," said Ka-ren Mashburn, 18, this year's Miss Long Beach.

Along with Joyce Bryan of Miami, Fla., reigning Miss American Beauty, and Mrs. June Dougherty, chief hostess, Karen represented the International Beauty Congress at the Tokyo contest.

"There was just one little television camera on the side," said Karen. "As far as I could see, there was practically no preparation for television beforehand."

IT WAS particularly surprising to her because she had seen strong evidence that Japan is really a nation of TV lans.

The evidence: Television aerials.

"Every home, no matter how poor it may have appeared, had one," said the blonde beauty.

If there is anything at all in the nation that there is more of than TV aerials, it has to be cameras.

"Camera bugs," said Karen. "I never saw so many in my

"Even children, and they climb telephone poles to lake your picture."

There were two things in particular about Karen that had the lens' fans clicking up a photographic storm.

THE FIRST was her blonde hair, a rare sight in Japan. The second was her height, 5-feet, 7-inches tall, equally

"Children wanted to touch my hair to see if it was real," said Karen. "They kept asking me how I got so tall. I just told them I came from a tall family."

Karen is happy to see that "tall" preparations are being made here for the television coverage of the International Beauty Congress.

In addition to KITV's (channel 11) many cameras

By RICK DU BROW

THOLLYWOOD (UPI)—I have a cousin who once had the chance to get the television rights to "Lassie," but turned down the property because he didn't think it would last. That's the kind of family stock I come from.

It is also why I find it almost painful to tune in the show with the golden mutt every Sunday evening on CBS-TV. I keep thinking of the yachts and the bubbly stuff and the other simple benefits of all that loot that was blown, and I get so upset I could pull Lassie's ears.

My cousin, who also thought highly of the Edsel, by the way, admits, however, that "Lassie" is indeed a good show. And indeed it is, and will continue to be despite the many changes coming up for the next season, which you may well have heard about by now.

* * *

YOU PROBABLY KNOW that regulars Jon Provost, June Lockbart and Hugh Reilly—the boy, mother and father—will be gone, and that only Lassie will remain, with its new master being a forest ranger.

(Robert Bray will be "Lassie's" new master when the series, marking its 10th anniversary, starts again on Sept. 6. In tonight's repeat episode of "Lassie" on channel 2, Bray is featured in the role of Forest Ranger

People Going to the Dogs on 'Lassie' Program as TV Canine Hits the Forest Trail

Corey Stuart, the continuing part he'll play in the fall.)

Frankly, the specific human beings involved don't really matter. The key to the series, in addition to the handsome dog, is that it is a throwback to the days when the movies made films about people with whom audiences could identify.

I have reservations about the show. For instance, unless Lassie has been boning up on extra-sensory-perception with some of the less talented stars of Hollywood, it seems to me this pooch understands English entirely too well. For that matter, some of the humans involved seem to understand Lassie so well that I am not entirely unrelieved that they are being replaced.

NEVERTHELESS, it is a precisely constructed series. It has a clean feeling for nature and an underlying gentleness. One Sunday there was an immensely tasteful, yet strong, scene in which the accidental striking of a deer by a jeep caused one to twinge—not because it was grucsome, which it wasn't, but merely for the sadness in seeing a beautiful thing killed.

Lassie's understanding of English helped on more than one occasion to save the day. One time Miss Lockhart's pickup truck had an accident, and she wound up inside the vehicle as it wavered precariously on the edge of a rayine. Lassie, of course, happened by, sized up the situation and brought help.

As with every episode, this one had a moral too.

The moral here was that the next time your wife cracks up the car, bark at her and then run for help.

JON PROVOST, now 14 years old, has grown up and out of the "Lassie" series.

Silo-Set Humorist in Dramatic Role

By BERT RESNIK TV and Radio Editor

Pat Buttram has been described as a humorist of the Mark Twain-Will Rogers school, a barnyard Robert Benchley and the Mort Sahl of the sile set.

Not many people think of him as being an actor and Pat's not going out of his way to prove they're wrong.

Well, not much out of his way.

As it happened, his first non-western TV role in an "Alfred Hitchcock Hour" had him earning a lot of mention for an Emmy nomination.

The program, "The Jar," will be repeated at 10 p.m. Friday, channel 2. Pat also has a top role in a new Elvis Presley movie, "Roustabout." But he still spends most of his time concentrating on just being himself during his daily appearance on ratio station KNX.

IF YOU ASK PAT for a self-description, he just grins and says:

"I've spent my whole life trying not to be discovered."

For he's "discovered" that:

What you do have is the Buttram "smile andchuckle, no bellylaugh" type of humor

"It's National Eyesight Week so everyone takes a peeping Tom to dinner."

"The trouble with the Russians at the U.N. is that they have sticking their case in but that they're always sticking their oars in but never doing any of the rowing."

Pat has been to Long Beach many times, including annual visitations to the Terminal Island women's prison and the Veterans Administration Hospital here.

"The women in the prison are the greatest audience ever," he said. "Anything you say goes oig.

"But it's the guys in the hospital who really get me—especially some of those who are paralyzed. They'll help hold each others' hands to applaud."

Buttram would much prefer to live in Long Beach if there were some better way he could get into Hollywood to do his shows.

"Long Beach is a town in its own right," he aid. "It's got everything you need." "I had the main thing is that it's not a part of Los Angeles.

Los Angeles is just a bunch of small towns that don't like each other.'

AND BUTTRAM, since he started in show business 28 years ago, has visited enough towns

Dustiess 29 years ago, has years a judge.

His start was on Chicago's "National Barn Dance," a radio show where members of the audience were interviewed. Buttram's ad lib comments, as one of those interviewed, got him an offer for a fulltime job.

He took the offer and became friendly with one of the program's stars, a fellow by the name of Gene Autry. Stating in 1949, Autry and Buttram appeared in a series of 107 half-hour

TV shows. The pair also made 40 movies.

During the "National Barn Dance" period, there was a 13-year-old boy singer who went along with Buttram on show appearances between broadcasts. The boy, George Gobel, sang "mostly mother songs" and played guitar buckground chords for Buttram's monologues.

As an adult, the former boy singer also used one of Buttram's tag lines with the latter's blessings. The line:

"I didn't come here to be made sport of."

BUTTRAM IS NOT one to make sport of comedy as a career. He believes there's room for more on television although the day of the big TV comedy spectacular with elaborate routines is gone.

"In the first place," said Buttram, "they're too costly. Besides, comedy has become more conversational today.

"Most of our TV comedy today is coming from the intimate nightclubs-Sahl and Bob Newhart are examples.

"There was a time when it came from vaudeville—Burns, Cantor, Skelton.

"And the county fair circuit—Gobel, Tennessee Ernic, Andy Griffith.

And then the leaves might also.

hunch, are going to be a bunch of bowlingball comedians.

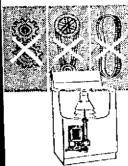

"Because comedians come from whatever phase of show business is popular. The boys go where the work is. Right now, the work is in the bowling alleys." . If the past record is any indication, from wherever they come, Buttram will be hanging back in second or third place to welcome them.

IT'S 'REAL McCOY'

'Luke' Pitches Away Pitchfork, Throws Hat in Political Ring

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)-Like it or not, you'll be seeing more of Richard Crenna this year.

Crenna is the lumbering semi-moronic Walter Denton of the "Our Miss Brooks" show and the slow-witted clod of "The Real McCoys," both of which beam daily on television re-runs.

Next season he will star in a new series, "Slattery's People," an hour-long show about a politician.

In addition to being exposed on television six hours a week, Crenna also will be seen co-starring with Shirley MacLaine in "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home.'

"BUSY, huh?" Crenna said during lunch in the 20th Century-Fox Studio commissary.

'This is my first movie role since 1956 when we made a picture out of 'Our Miss Brooks.' It was a real bomb. Nobody knows why, but when they try to stretch a TV show into a movie something goes wrong."

When he left the "Mc-Coys," Crenna refused 30 scries offers. He was determined to lose his image as a havseed. During the past year he directed three television pilots for Warner Bros. and several "Andy Griffith" shows.

"My new role in 'Slattery's People' is a straight part,"

Crenna said, "I play the minority leader of a state assembly. The state and my political affiliation are never identified,

"WITH THIS being an election year, the show should attract a lot of attention in the fall. No one will be able to say the character of Slattery is a Republican, Demo-crat, liberal or conservative.

"As for me, I'm not saying if I'm a Democrat or a Re-publican."

Crenna's been acting since he was an 11-year-old child wonder on radio, playing roles in dozens of shows. Until now he was always pigeon-holed as a character man.

"I've been shooting for leading man roles in movies," Crenna said. "My agent finally convinced me the only way to make it was to play an heroic character in a series. That's why I've accepted this political show, I hope it turns

TO A DEGREE, it already has, Crenna landed the "Goldfarb" movie role after 20th-Fox brass saw the pilot of 'Slattery."

Crenna is 37 years old. He's not pretty-boy hand-some, but he's good looking enough to win the heroine in a movie without stretching the credulity of feminine audiences.

He has signed a long-term contract with 20th Century Fox, and if he's well received in "Goldfarb"—he plays the title role—the studio will doubtless groom him for stardom.

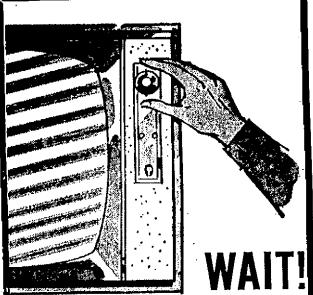

Like I said, you will be seeing more of Crenna this year. You can identify him as the character who used to look like a hayseed.

> Why fiddle with manual adjustments week after week when our remarkable, new Winegard Colortron could be the answer. This supersensitive antenna can knock out ghosts, fuzzy pictures, snow and similar interference . . . brings in more channels, too.

> A simple phone call to us may make TV viewing at your house a far happier experience. Winegard Colortrons are priced from $24.95.

Gunsmoke' Title En Route to Boot Hill

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - A western bad guy gunned down on television by "Gunsmoke's Marshall Matt Dillon more than nine years ago is-finally going to his grave on

Matt's victim is the cowboy he plugs every week in the show's opening scene, or title as it's known in television. The title introduces "Gunsmoke" and also kills off the cowboy who dares to draw against Dillon.

Millions of televiewers have seen the scene in the past nine years. However, very few persons know the victim's identity. He is Arvo Ojala, 'a gun expert and

In the duel with Dillon, Arvo's fate is predictable, week after week a succession of losses. Arvo's case is similar to that of a bull facing a matador. At least the bull wins sometimes, Arvo never.

HOWEVER, there's consolation in Arvo's weekly demise-consolation in the form of thousands of dollars he's received for acting in the scene. He's paid each time the title scene is aired.

When last heard of, Ojala was in Seattle. He will probably be chief mourner when he finds out that CBS-TV is burying him.

"Gunsmoke's" producer, Norman MacDonnell, said the gunfight scene has been run so often that it's worn out. So another will have to be

"This will be the third title," said MacDonnell, recalling that another was filmed for the show in its infant days.

"A main title was made for 'Gunsmoke' with a lot of guns pointing at the cameras and going off 'splat' into the lens. The smoke from the guns spelled 'Gunsmoke.' That ran for 26 weeks but it was a little bit corny.'

WHEN the smoke cleared, MacDonnell and his crew began thinking about a new title scene. One day when Ojala was working in an episode of the show, MacDonnell staged the now famous shootont. It was filmed during the lunch hour, the whole job taking about 15 minutes.

"Nobody expected the show to run 10 years so they didn't strike out dupe negatives," said MacDonnell, "So the negative is now tissue

"I would prefer not to make a change at all, but it must be done."

MacDonnell has been holding meetings to decide on the new title scene's format.

Where the old one was filmed during a lunch break, the new one is taking on the importance of a major production. "We'll try to get the feel

As for original victim Arvo Oiala, it appears that he won't get the job this time.

Such lucrative lunchtime jobs pass by only once in a lifetime, and Arvo has had

Q. I understand that Frank Sinatra pays some girl $400 a week just to travel around with him and put on his hairpiece. Is this true?—N.Y.T., Van Nuys, Calif.

A. A month ago Sinatra hired Helen Turpin, crack

Hollywood hairdresser, at a salary of $400 a week to apply his hairpiece and keep it in good condition. Sinatra is balding rapidly, does not like to appear in public without his toupee. It is, of course, necessary for his work. Miss Turpin was his hairdresser on his latest film, shot in Italy.

Q. Amanda Blake of Gunsmoke fame—did she really get $1,000,000 for selling her TV residual rights, or is that just publicity?—Walter Selt zer, Boston, Mass.

A. Publicity.

Q. Who is Colin F. Stam?—T. R. Aldrich, Alexandria, Va.

A. Stam, 67, was for 36 years chief of staff of the House-Senate Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, probably the number-one tax expert in America. Recently he retired from government service.

Q. Has Sybil Burton, ditorced wife of Richard Burton, found a new love? —Georgette Knox, Staten Island, N.Y.

A. Mrs. Burton of late has been seeing much of Brock Williams, son of the famous Welsh playwright-actor Emlyn Williams.

Q. I've been told that the new president of the Actors Equity Association is a Negro. Is this so?—Emma Jane Waters, Charleston, S.C.

A. Yes; he is Frederick O'Neal, 58, recently elected to succeed actor Ralph Bellamy.

Q. How old is Henry Fonda?—Charles Evans, Omaha, Neb.

A. Henry Fonda was born in Grand Island, Neb., May 16, 1905. Q. I would like to find out whether Terry Melcher, 22, son of Doris Day, works for a living. If so, what does he do?—Helen Fast, Miami, Fla.

A. Melcher works for the music publishing company owned by Bobby Darin.

A Yes

Q. I've read that the late Sir Thomas Beecham, the music conductor, spent more than a million dollars of his American wife's fortune. What about that?—Olive Wheatley, Chicago, Ill.

A. Sir Thomas Beecham had three wives. His first wife, Lady Utica Beecham, says: "He spent half a million pounds [$1,200,000] of my money on music through the years. If an orchestra announced it needed money, they would receive a check from Thomas Beecham. Invariably I wrote the check from my account." Sir Thomas and Utica Beecham were divorced in America in 1943. Lady Beecham's grandfather was one of the pioneers who helped build the Canadian Pacific Railway, helped construct the Panama Canal.

Q. Please tell me something about Arthur Mac-Arthur, the late general's son. Is he married? Does he live with his mother?— Mrs. William Johnson, St. Petersburg, Fla.

A, Arthur MacArthur II, only son of the late general, was born in February 1938, raised and educated in the Far East, privately tutored by Phyllis Gibbons in Tokyo when his father was chief of the American occupation forces, entered Columbia University in 1956, graduated 1960, is unmarried, lives with mother in the Waldorf Towers, New York.

Q. Isn't Sammy Davis, Jr., quietly seeing Kim Navak? Weren't these two engaged before Mai Britt came into the picture?—G.T., Oak Park, Ill.

A. Many years ago Davis and Miss Novak were close friends. Davis wanted to marry her. Harry Cohn, then chief of Columbia studios and Miss Novak's employer, protested vociferously, was instrumental in breaking up the entente. Mr. Davis and Miss Novak have not been seeing each other.

Q. I've been told that the motion picture industry has hired Anna Rosenberg to give it a new image. What's wrong with the old image?—Don Howard, Oakland, Calif.

A. The motion picture industry is not widely known for honesty, integrity or high standard of ethics.

Q. I cannot believe that Bobby Baker of the recent Senate scandal is now richer and more powerful than ever. Is this on the level? —Robert Scherer, Providence, R.I.

A. Bobby Baker at this writing owns 97 per cent of the Serv-U Corporation, a vending machine operation. Serv-U has contracts with the California plants of two large defense contractors, Northrop and North American Aviation, which provide his company with an estimated monthly profit of $44,000. If Bobby Baker is hurting, he certainly isn't showing it.

Q. Who said: "True love is like a ghost; everybody talks about it but few have ever seen it"?—Vivia Crossley, Burbank, Calif.

A. François de La Rochefoucauld, Erench writer, 1613-1680.

Q. Veteran actress Mary Astor has written a novel, The O'Conners. Does it deal with her love affairs with John Barrymore and George S. Kaufman?— Constance Garner, New Orleans, La.

A. No. It deals with the special reasons why marriages between actors and actresses are rarely successful.

Q. Who is the most talented of the four Beatless — Helen Epstein, Midvale, N.J.

A. Probably John Lennon, 24, the "chief Beatle." Lennon is an artist, musician, writer, composer and, the Beatle who organized the group.

the $3 billion misuse of foreign funds

he long-suffering American taxpayers have become accustomed to scandals over government spending. Yet the greatest scandal of them all involves billions which our government owns but can't spend. These mountains of money, a Himalaya range that circles the earth, consist of strange, multicolored foreign currencies which Uncle Sam has agreed not to take out of the issuing countries.

All told, the U.S. has stockpiled $3 billion worth of counterpart funds, as these currencies are called, in 83 different countries. They range from $1 billion worth of Indian rupees to $1.6 million in Laotian kips. Our captive currencies are found even behind the Iron Curtain, where Uncle Sam is stuck with a staggering $442 million in Polish zlotys and $279 million in Yugoslav dinars.

Though up to his whiskers in foreign tender, Uncle Sam permitted American firms to buy another $2 billion worth of these currencies through commercial channels during fiscal year 1963. In alarm, Congressman John Moss (D., Calif.) pushed through a law last December, authorizing U.S. corporations, volunteer agencies and religious organizations abroad to draw on our surplus currencies. They are supposed to draw in their dollars for counterpart funds, thus reducing our great hoard of foreign money. But at this writing, the Treasury Department has failed to issue the necessary regulations to implement the law.

Government officials have ignored still another law, which directs the government to use surplus currencies for foreign-aid purchases abroad. Yet in fiscal 1963 the government paid out $94 million in hard U.S. cash for foreign-aid purchases in countries where we already owned staggering amounts of local currencies. This bit of illogic is defended by State Department officials on the grounds that the use of counterpart funds to take goods out of a country would be no different from withdrawing the counterpart funds themselves.

Of course, it isn't entirely accurate to say these funds can't be spent. Congressmen and bureaucrats have been known to plunge joyfully into our surplus currencies like boys into an accumulation of autumn leaves. All this money waiting to be spent has become a temptation for those permitted to draw upon it.

Touring lawmakers have been stuffing their pockets with counterpart funds for years. These accounts are kept tightly locked up far from the taxpayers' eyes. But PARADE has managed to get hold of a typical expense voucher submitted by an escort officer in Rome for Italian lire spent by a traveling senator and his party. Here are some typical entries (the lira is valued at 625 to the dollar):

muco at 023 to the donar).
Luncheon, aperitif and wine	18,200 lirc
Cocktails	8,800 lire
Dinner, Le Arcate	43,500 lire
Photographs, Le Arcate	5,000 lire
Flowers for senator's wife	1,500 lire
Pocket money for senator	60,000 lire
Rental of automobiles, Naples	570,000 lin
Trip to Pompeii	10,000 lire
Additional advance to senator	60,000 lire

Whisky	45,000 lire
Blue Grotto excursion	2,000 lire
Kleenex toilet tissues	5,625 lire
Taxis for tour of Capri	10,000 lire
Guide, two days, Capri	8,000 lire

Of course, this doesn't include the huge hotel bills the senator and his party ran up. Nor does it include the cocktail party that the U.S. ambassador threw for the senator for a total tab of 119,155 line.

Actually, the rules governing the accumulation and the use of these funds seem simple enough. Most of the money comes from the sale of U.S. surplus food. The surplus is paid for in local currency, which then must be spent within the buying country. The U.S. gives back much of the money in the form of loans or grants, uses a great deal more for such things as embassy operations, buildings and other necessities. It also can be used for the entertainment and expenses of legislators, bureaucrats and certain businessmen.

For instance, the Foreign Agricultural Service, an arm of the Department of Agriculture, sends both government men and businessmen abroad to promote the sale of U.S. farm products. The mission of these men, who represent trade groups but technically are in the employ of the government, is to stimulate purchase by foreign concerns of American commodities. They call on foreign businessmen and officials to do so. Because their efforts are supposed to benefit the entire American economy, they are entitled to spend government money instead of their own.

'THE REAL EXPERTS'

These men, the records show, often match our wasteful lawmakers tab for tab. PARADE has been permitted to examine the results of a confidential 9-month investigation into their spending. This report called them "the real experts when it comes to wasting U.S.-owned currencies."

In all fairness, it must be said that these touring promoters have been remarkably successful in boosting foreign sales of ripe Virginia tobacco leaf, surplus Kansas wheat and other American-grown products. Yet many promoters seem inclined to spread the gospel of trade in such global pleasure spots as Paris, Rome, Tokyo and Hong Kong. Complains the confidential report: "The world seems to be full of people who want to see the other side of the mountain and preferably in high style at someone else's expense."

Among examples uncovered by investigators of freeand-easy use of counterpart funds for such promotional purposes:

Almost every such promotional group threw at least one dinner reception at taxpayers' expense, but still allowed delegates to charge for meals eaten at the same time.

One organization produced three taxpayer-financed movie films, costing $21,000 in Egyptian pounds, to boast about the frozen poultry industry. The movies have never been shown. And so much money has gone for personal films that the Agriculture Department has issued a stern warning to stop it.

A trade association bought key chain medallions engraved with the likeness of the group's president, distributed them to prospects to puff up the group's own image, yet charged the government S3 apiece for them. The same group spent counterpart funds to have its president's portrait painted on its headquarters wall, was forced to kick the money back when Uncle Sam cracked down.

Nearly $2,800 went last year to buy 13 gowns for the "Maid of Cotton." Most expensive creation was a $902 number dreamed up by a famed French designer. "What better way to stimulate cotton sales overseas?" contended a cotton promoter. And in the name of a previous Maid of Cotton, in 1959, $31,775 in counterpart funds was spent in one go-for-broke week. The money went for such incidentals as eight bottles of whisky for the Filipino board members, a gift to a Manila radio commentator who talked about the Maid of Cotton on his news shows and gift radios passed out to models at the Cotton Ball.

Moreover, investigators question whether any of this government-financed promotion does any good. In Finland, more than $30,000 in Finnish markkaa has been spent each year to promote cotton products. Yet each year, from 1961 through 1963, the Finns have bought less cotton from the U.S.—and more from the Soviets. The Agriculture Department explains this by saying the Finns are under political pressure from the next-door U.S.S.R.

But critics agree that, wasteful as some of these promotional factics might be, the real scandal is the fact that this huge mountain of money exists, waiting for someone to help himself to it—and that the mountain gets larger every day.

Of the $3 billion in foreign currencies owned by American faxpayers, more than $2 billion is held in eight countries: Burma, India, Indonesia, Israel, Pakistan, Poland, United Arab Republic and Yugoslavia.

The greatest amount has accumulated in India. There is virtually no hope of ever spending our $1 billion worth of Indian rupees, short of building a chain of Taj Mahals. Although two-thirds of this hoard has been marked for reinvestment as loans or grants, the remainder would still finance our operations in India for the next 28 years. Yet all the while our supply of rupees is multiplying faster than the Indian population.

RUPEES AND MORE RUPEES

With rupees to burn, we still bought more rupees in fiscal 1963 through commercial channels. We also spent $14.4 million in good U.S. tender to buy Indian commodities to ship to other aid-receiving nations.

In Indonesia, we own $21.3 million in rupiahs, yet we shelled out hard cash to buy Indonesian oil for other needy countries. Despite our estranged relations with Cambodia, we still own close to $1 million in Cambodian riels that we can't take out. And in Communist Poland and Yugoslavia, we own more zlotys and dinars than we'll ever be able to spend.

Of course, some Americans maintain that since we can't take the money out of the country, we might as well spend it however we can—even lavishly. But Congressman Moss and other critics insist there's a way to employ these funds properly, and to save the taxpayers money. This course, according to Moss, is to enforce the laws now on the books. The government would make all its foreign purchases out of surplus currencies: and U.S. corporations and institutions operating in other lands would turn in their dollars to the U.S. government in exchange for counterpart funds, then do their dealings in that money.

Meanwhile, the rules for who can spend these funds, and how, should be tightened up and watched more closely. By taking these steps, it is agreed, we could reduce our great cash surpluses abroad. Otherwise Uncle Sam may soon drown in a supply of unspendable money.

PIRACY. Cheapest place to buy American record albums is in Taiwan and southeast Asia. Reason: Taiwan record manufacturers make unauthorized pressings of top foreign discs, pay no royalties to U.S. record companies, publishers or songwriters Discs are then shipped to al! countries in southeast Asia except Japan. Taiwan is not a member of the Universal Copyright Convention, also boasts publishers who print U.S. medical books at one-half or less of U.S. cost.

NO FLOPS. Japanese show producers are so kind and diplomatic that virtually every American entertainer who plays that country believes he's been a sensational hit. If the entertainer fails to draw in Tokyo, and many of them have, the producer papers his house with free tickets. Nipponese impresarios say it's important to keep face, that there is no point in demoralizing the performer, whom they have to pay in any event. In all cases of failure, the producer will never rebook the talent in question, but never does a foreign entertainer in Japan hear the word "flop" from his producer.

ALCOHOLICS. Of a total of 5,000,000 alcoholics in this country, approximately one-fifth are women. Alcoholism costs the American public more than 31,000,000,000 per year, is responsible for more than one-quarter of the nonsupport cases in Chicago, more than 8% of the first admissions to state hospitals in New York. More than half the fatal traffic accidents in America are caused by drunk drivers. As a public health problem alcoholism now ranks fourth in the U.S., behind heart disease, cancer and mental illness.

NEGRO BALL PLAYERS.

There are now approximately 95 Negro major league baseball players. Highest salaries go to Willie Mays of the Giants, $105,000; Hank Aaron of the Braves, $80,000; Frank Robinson of the Reds, $70,000; Roberto Clements of the Pirates, $68,000; Ernie Banks of the Cubs, $65,000.

MOPHEAD PRINCE CHARLES

HAIR NET FOR PRINCE CHARLES.

The British Safety Council recently sent a hair net to Prince Charles, 15-year-old heir to the British throne. The gift was a reminder that he was setting a poor example with his Beatle-style haircut. The British Safety Council is interested in preventing accidents in homes, factories and on roads, and its officials consider Prince Charles' mophead an encouragement to other teenagers. The shaggy hair-dos have been responsible for many machine accidents in British factories, and the Council would think better of Prince Charles as a trend-setter if he cut his hair short. So would the British barbers.

SUCCESS STORY. Early in 1966 Polaroid plans to market a really inexpensive picture-a-minute camera that will retail at around $20. This will bring Polaroid into the mass market for the first time. The inventor of the Polarcid camera, Edwin Land, 55, new holds with his family about 19% of Polarcid's 4 million shares. worth approximately $100.000,000. Although Land holds six honorary college degrees, he never finished college himself. He left Harvard as a freshman in 1926 to work on polarizing filters, 10 years later promoted $375,000 to found his Polarcid Corporation. His is one of the great American success stories.

SECOND DISNEYLAND, Walt Disney has always had a soft spot in his heart for Missouri, which is probably why St. Louis will be the site of the second Disneyland in America. Although born in Chicago in 1901, Walt was raised on a farm in Marceline, Mo., then educated in Kansas City, Mo. Last year several leading businessmen in St. Louis approached Disney, asked him if he wouldn't please erect a second Disneyland as part of a massive 465-acre urban renewal project aimed at restyling the entire St. Louis waterfront. Previously Disney had turned down a dozen other such pleadings emanating from other city officials in the U.S. Because this one came from St. Louis, Disney and his brother, financial genius Roy Disney, agreed to consider it. Now the chances are excellent that by 1967 a second Disneyland will rise 5 stories, cover about 3% acres of the St. Louis waterfront.

off the beaten track in japan

In a few weeks, thousands of Americans will head for Japan for the 1964 Olympic Games. A large number will take advantage of the occasion to enjoy a Japanese vacation. But most of these travelers will concentrate on the well-known tourist attractions such as Tokyo night life and the shopping, Kyoto's temples and shrines, Hakone's lakes and mountain peaks. Only a few will visit an off-trail area the Japanese themselves consider the most attractive spot of all—Japan's 300-mile-long Inland Sea.

Studded with rocky islands, bordered by misty mountains, its indented shore line ringed with beaches and picturesque fishing ports, the Inland Sca is so striking that the Japanese government has established it as a national park. Surrounded by the islands of Honshu, Kyushu and Shikoku, it was formed when volcanic action suddenly caused the land to drop and let in the sea millions of years ago. Around its shores much of Japanese history has taken place, and in the next few weeks, as autumn colors begin to dapple the green of the Japanese pines, Japanese tourists will take to the Inland Sea steamers to drink its scenery and explore the quiet countryside.

Among those recently making such an exploration trip were the American couple shown in these photos—Duane and Margie Dahl, of Minneapolis, Minn. A Navy couple stationed at Yokosuka Naval Base on Tokyo Bay, the Dahls have been in Japan only a few months, but were touted onto the Inland Sea by a Navy friend who'd previously visited the area. To the Dahls, who married in haste on the eve of Duane's first overseas assignment five years ago, it was a second honeymoon.

"Beautiful, beautiful country," says Swedish-born Margic Dahl, who met her husband while on a visit to Chicago. And during their week along the Inland Sea, the Dahls had plenty of opportunity to sample these beauties. They toured the historic cities of Kobe and Hiroshima, tramped up mountains and through little towns, peered into hot springs and geysers, swam in the Inland Sea itself. They lived in Japanese ryokan, or inns, sleeping on mats rolled out on the floor and having their meals prepared by a kimonoed maid.

Appropriately, the Dahls' visit to the Inland Sea began on the water. Early one morning, at Kobe, they boarded the steamer Karenai Maru for a 15-hour voyage. They rented a comfortable first-class cabin, ate two succulent meals, alternately napped, sunbathed, went ashore at tiny ports of call, gazed from the deck at the terraced hillsides and the tiny steep-roofed houses of countryside Japan.

At the end of the voyage came the city of Beppu. Little known to Americans, this colorful town of 100,000 persons is one of the favorite spas of the Japanese. It marches up a series of hillsides from the sea towards the mountain ranges of Kyushu. The city has more than 3,000 hot springs, many of them utilized by hotels, and their waters are supposed to be beneficial for ailments from rheumatism to hangnail. It also has an array of geysers and boiling pools which the Japanese compare favorably with Yellowstone National Park.

BARGAINS & FRIENDSHIP

Beppu also boasts economy—and friendly people. For as little as $4 a day the Dahls lodged in a ryokan with a spectacular garden, robed in kimonos and enjoying the service only Japanese can provide. And the Dahls made many friendships. Dozens of Japanese, eager to test out the English they are polishing for this fall's influx of visitors, were only too anxious to strike up acquaintance with the American couple.

Would you like to explore this lesser-known area of the tourist mecca of the Western Pacific? This will be a big year for Japanese travel. The Japanese National Tourist Association anticipates more than 550,000 visitors, more than half of them American. The red carpet has been rolled out: several new hotels have been opened, prices have been placed under government control and hotel and hotel restaurant taxes have been lifted for overseas visitors during the Olympic period. A number of new and inexpensive tours of the nation have been organized. Airline service has been dramatically improved. Pan American Airways, chief U.S. carrier to Japan, has increased jet service to Tokyo. Beginning Oct. 3, Pan Am will send 22 flights a week to Japan. The airline also will set up special visitor aid centers staffed by multilingual hostesses.

If you come to Japan, stray far enough off the beaten track to enjoy the Japan the Japanese themselves like best.

Quick breakfast of hard-boiled eggs is prepared by attendant at one of Beppu's hot mineral pools. Waters come in green, vermillion.

There is one overriding reason why established here is one overriding reason why established performers enter television: MONEY.

Television is basically a medium for advertisers, sponsors who sell products. For entertainers, however, it offers scant creative or artistic satisfaction. Encumbered by many aggravating commercial strictures, the medium by its nature precludes the production of quality or memorable programs on a weekly basis.

The big names who sign for a weekly series do so largely because they are finished or unsuccessful in motion pictures, and the financial rewards of a TV series are tremendous.

Three or four years in any video show of which he owns a part, and the performer becomes a multi-millionaire.

Take Danny Thomas, Red Skelton, Lucille Ball, Loretta Young, Donna Reed, Bob Cummings, Ozzie and Harriet Nelson, Garry Moore, Jackie Gleason, Perry Como, Jim Arness, Richard Boone, Desi Arnaz and many others. For years these personalities worked in Hollywood, some as full-fledged stars, others as minor personalities who never quite made it. None became a millionaire.

Came television, and each of these performers signed for a weekly series. Today they are all multimillionaires.

Comes now, however, the case of Bing Crosby, which is unique and atypical, because the crooner has been disgustingly rich for at least 20 years.

Starting September 14, Bing will appear each Monday night over the ABC network on a weekly situation comedy, The Bing Crosby Show.

Why at age 60 is Bing doing it? Why is he subjecting himself to the high-pressure, full-speed-ahead, back-breaking grind in which a half-hour film has to be completed every four days?

Certainly he doesn't need the money. His holdings in Minute Maid orange juice, real estate, oil, Bing Crosby Productions and half a dozen other varied investments are conservatively estimated at $20,000,000. Moreover, when I discussed TV with Crosby in London three years ago—he was then filming The Road to Hong Kong with Bob Hope—he told me emphatically: "I don't mind doing a TV special every now and again, but that weekly bit—that's not for me. I like to fish too much. There's too much golf to play."

He went on to explain that the trouble with weekly TV was overexposure. "Nobody who's seen week in and week out," he said, "is going to survive very long. Suppose I made 52 movies a year. Who'd come to watch me after the fifth or sixth? They'd get fed up with my voice, my kisser, every aspect of me. No. Whoever goes into TV should limit his exposure if he wants to last."

Bing Crosby's TV family will be seen on Monday nights, beginning in fall. One reason he agreed to do weekly show is that he can do 39 in 13 or 15 weeks. This is done by shooting first the scenes in all episodes with

again

In the face of this, what has made Crosby change his mind?

When you ask him, he says with typical laconieness: "I liked what they showed me and thought I'd take a crack at it."

Behind that simple statement lies the following story of the whys and wherefores of Crosby's entrance into the heetic world of weekly TV.

Danny Seymour, a former radio announcer who is now president of the J. Walter Thompson Company, one of the largest advertising agencies in the world (annual billings: $480,000,000), has been trying for years to get Crosby to do several TV specials for some of the Thompson clients, such as Lever Brothers and Ford.

HIS AGENT'S IDEA

When last year he expressed the same desire to Meta Rosenberg, one of Bing's agents, she said quickly: "There are now so many specials on TV that there's nothing very special about the special. What would be special is if we could ever talk Bing into doing a weekly series."

Seymour enthusiastically agreed and said: "If you ever do, consider us in. I'll get you a firm offer from Lever Brothers, not on the basis of one show or a pilot, but on the basis of 26 shows."

Meta Rosenberg, brunette and brilliant, trim and 45, a former story editor at Paramount studios, a top literary agent before she went to work for her husband's General Artists Agency, which represents Bing Crosby Productions, has a woman's instinctive sense of timing.

"I felt," she says, "that Bing had reached that point in his life where he was a bit bored with things, that he would welcome a new challenge.

"After all, good motion picture toles for him are exceedingly difficult to come by. But he's still a fine actor, in good physical condition, with an excellent mind and great stores of energy. So one evening several months ago we went to him, and I said, 'Bing, let's give up these TV specials we've been doing. Enough of that. You ought to be doing something every week. This sort of television is a facet of your career you've never investigated. I think you could be a smash. I know how you feel about overexposure, but once the TV public goes for a star, they go for him year after year. Look at how long Red Skelton's been on TV. Look at Lucy and Gunsmoke and Donna Reed and all the rest of them. The Bing Crosby Show could go on for years and years. Nobody's ever seen you every week on television. Won't you just consider the idea?"

Crosby not only considered. He agreed to do a weekly half-hour TV show, "providing I like the format."

The burden of coming up with a suitable show idea thus fell upon Crosby's agent.

According to Meta Rosenberg: "We asked every single professional comedy writer in Hollywood to think up a show for Crosby. Nobody came up with a blessed thing. All these great creative brains in town—nothing! Not a word. So Mike Levee, who is one of our associates, and I sat down together and came up with the format of the show. I went to New York and told it to Danny Seymour, and he loved it."

The Bing Crosby Show is a family situation comedy which finds Bing playing the role of Bing Collins, an engineer who is also a consultant to a near-by university. He has been married to wife Ellie (played by Beverly Garland) for 20 years. They have two daughters, Joyce, 16 (played by Carol Faylen), and Janice, 11 (played by Diane Sherry). Their household is also graced by Willie (played by comedian Frank McHugh), a wartime buddy of Bing's who came to dinner 15 years ago and never left.

Bing and present wife, Kathy, with their 3 children. Bing plans do as much for second set of children.

Crosby rides around Desilu Studios in Hollywood on bike, at 60, looks 50, keeps in good physical form.

Admittedly, this is a stock cast of characters. What appealed to Bing, however, was how they were treated. Unlike the father-idiot in the typical TV situation comedy, Bing in this one does not act the family schnook. He is educated, witty, intelligent, hep. He plays himself. He sings in each program, and the musical numbers are carefully integrated into the story lines. His relationship with his wife is mature and earthy.

With his daughters, he is both loving and sensible. To his 16-year-old, in answer to her parental plea for an equal-terms relationship, he explains: "You want to be us. And you can't. And you force us into trying to be you. And we can't. We're not meant to be friends, baby. I'm your father. And you're my kid. And if that's an outmoded parent-child relationship, I'm all for it."

Generally, most half-hour TV shows are budgeted at $50,000 to $60,000 per program. The Bing Croshy Show is budgeted higher, at about $70,000. Bing's "take" from this package, which he owns entirely, ranges from $15,000 to $20,000 per week. In addition the show's residual rights are worth several million dollars, providing the series is a success.

After he had finished the first five half-hour shows last month, I called Crosby at his hotel in Los Angeles. (Der Bingle no longer lives in Holmby Hills, swank Los Angeles suburb, moved his family several months ago to Hillsborough, a suburb of San Francisco.)

"How are things shaping up?" I asked.

Drawled the world's most relaxed human being: "I think we got a chance, man."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jack Carter, New York-born comedian in his late 40s, has come a long way in show business since his discovery by radio audiences in 1939 as a winner in a Major Bowes talent show. After wartime service in the Pacific, Carter started out in the small-time night club circuit, soon graduated to TV variety programs. For a while he replaced Milton Berle on the Texaco Star Theatre, then became an irregular on the Jackie Gleason, Ed Sullivan, Perry Como and Judy Garland video shows. Basically a monologist, Carter also sings and dances, has taken a crack at character acting. He has appeared in all the major night clubs of America, would like most to become an established screen star. Carter is married to Broadway actress Paula Stewart. Herewith some of Jack's latest and favorite jokes:

During the recent primary elections in California, a drunk walked into a voting booth, closed the curtain and proceeded to take off all his clothes. After he had been in there for about 30 minutes, one of the voters waiting in line yelled to him through the curtain: "Hey, c'mon-hurry up and vote!"

"Vote?" hollered the confused inebriate. "I'm trying to take a shower!"

No matter how foolish we Americans may look in our political campaigning, I want to tell you we really know how to live. We Americans spend $10,000,000 each year on get-well cards and $2,000,000 on medical research!

A little old maid from a small town went wandering through New York's Central Park one day. Suddenly a man stepped up behind her. He slipped one hand around her neck. the other around her waist and commanded: "Give me your money!" When the little old lady didn't respond, the thug tightened his grip around her waist and again barked: "I said, 'GIVE ME YOUR MONEY!' "

"I haven't any money with me," finally replied our heroine, "but don't stop-I'll mail you a check."

An obviously intoxicated man staggered down Main Street dragging a chain behind him. A policeman stopped the drunk and said, "Look, mister-I can understand your having a little too much to drink, but why are you dragging that chain?"

The man steadied himself, got the policeman into focus and replied, "Did you ever try to push one?"

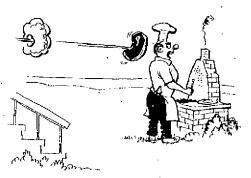

A gorilla ambled into a bar and ordered a drink. When it was served, he pulled out a roll of greenbacks and gave the bartender a 10-dollar bill. Thinking the gorilla didn't know much about money and could be easily duped, the bartender gave him one dollar in change. He watched while the gorilla downed his drink. Then, because his curiosity got the best of him, he said: "We don't have very many gorillas come in here."

"It's no wonder," answered the gorilla. "At $9 a drink, who can afford to?"

ORANGE COUNTY PAIR INJURED

Fliers Fall in Arizona Meteor Crater, Saved

Two Orange County men, apparently sightsecing from a light plane, crashed into 575-foot-deep Meteor Crater 16 miles west of Winslow, Ariz. Saturday. An Air Force helicopter removed the men after they had been trapped on the crater floor for more than five hours. In critical condition at Winslow Memorial Hospital is John L. Kidd, 51, of 9121 Shelly Drive, Garden Grove, a pilot with American Airlines; in serious condition there is Gary Chapin, 25, of 14611 Colonial Drive, Westminster, also an airline employe.

COCONINO County sheriff's deputies said sightseers at the crater reported sighting wreckage shortly (Continued Page A-8, Col. 2) after noon Saturday and one witness told deputies he saw a man crawl from the wreckage.

The nearly vertical walls of the crater prevented onlookers from aiding the men, deputies said, and tourists watched helplessly as Chapin crawled back into the wreckage of the Cessna 172 to pull the unconscious Kidd, from the debris. A helicopter from Williams Air Force Base was dispatched to the scene and arrived at 5:27 p.m. with a doctor aboard. Air Force officials said they were forced to strip the helicopter of excess weight in order to take off from the crater floor. The men were flown immediately to the hospital at Winslow.

Investigators said the two men apparently dipped into crater and were caught by a change in wind.

The crater, in a rolling plain west of Winslow, is thought to be 50,000 years old and is a major tourist attraction in northern Ari-

Mrs. Kidd left her Garden Grove home at 7 p.m. en route to Winslow to be with her husband. A spokesman at the Chapin home said Mrs. Chapin was in shock and under sedation late Saturday.

L.G.C. Says: |Shall Make Us DoWhatWeCan'

Our chief want in life is somebody who shall make us do what we can." As I read this quotation by Ralph Waldo Emerson, I wondered how many parents accept their responsibility to make their children do what they can. It is tragic to find so many high school and college students with no idea of what they. are to do when they complete their education. And yet, most of them have definite talents that should be developed to provide them with a skill that would assure them a job in this rapidly changing economic

We find many young people who are outstanding in mathematics. It is apparent they would be well adapted to accounting, engineering, or other vocations requiring a mathematical mind. But, because no one, makes them apply these abilities to particular courses, they are confused and cannot make up their minds what to major in during their senior high school or college years. Result is they graduate-or drop outwith nothing useful to offer when applying for a job.

Then there are countless young people who are not good in mathematics. But they have a drive and personality that would assure them a job in selling or business management. Many of them are so wrapped up in school activities they do not specialize in marketing or business administration. They depend on their personalty to get them a job. But when they enter the job competition they find themselves competing with young people who have specialized—and either do not get the kind of job they want or fall behind in advancement.

Many parents have their hearts set on their children going to college, but with no real goal for them. Some of the young men are talented as mechanics who could be trained for specialized work and jobsthat are seeking such skills. But the parents disregard what the young person is best fitted for in their insistence that only a college diploma is important. They do not insist on education for what the youngster can do best-and allow them to spend their educational years in vocations for which they are not fitted, or to end up with no vocational training.

We should not blame the teen-ager or young adult for not thinking out and deciding on a specific vocation. They live in an atmosphere of ease and often glamour of school activities. Their parents give little consideration to the terrible frustration that may come in later years when the poorly trained young person must support a family. It may then be too late to become skilled. They are then tied to some job that gives them little satisfaction-and to which they have little to offer.

If the parents would insist upon the young person specializing in a vocation to which they seem best tains the following features: adapted it would be easier on the young person. It would not mean they would spend their life in that vocation. But it would give them a security that would be rewarding all their working years: It would give them the opportunity of advancement into supervisorial and management positions. It would be a starting place for them when they were ready to enter the working force.

There is nothing more frustrating than the high school or college student applying for a job to be asked. What can you do? and have to answer, Nothing. That occurs many times a day every day. "Our chief want in life is somebody who shall make us do what we can" should cause each parent to realize only they can bring this about. If they fail to do so, they are not discharging their responsibility to the children whose welfare should be their major concern. -L.A.C.

Miss Germany (Monika Brugger) and Miss France (Brigitte Pradel) took a few minutes off from exhaustive rehearsals to take a look at the Ringling Brothers, Barnum & Bailey Circus now playing in the Arena.

And the circus—animals and all—looked back. But it was when Miss Germany jumped aboard an elephant that the circus show almost stopped.

One of the clowns missed his cue.

An animal trainer led a group of chimps the wrong way.

In this and successive articles, no attempt will be made to resolve that question. But within the experlence and the time that was available to this reporter an effort will be made to describe the Cuba that exists as Castro tries to negotiate new passage into safer waters.

Eyewitness Describes Turk Jet Raid on Xeros

Hal McClure and photographer James Pringle were in Xeros Saturday when Turkish Air Force jet planes strafed and shot rockets at a Greek Cypriot gunboat anchored in Xeros Harbor. Here is McClure's account.)

By HAL McCLURE

XEROS, Cyprus (P) - The first air-sea fight in Cyprus started with a single. Turkish Air Force plane screaming in from the sea across the harbor and little town of Xeros. For 10 minutes, the Super Sabre jet wheeled and swooped across the harbor where a tiny Greek Cypriot patrol boat was anchored about 500 yards offshore.

The lone jet flew away to the north and everyone re-

FIVE MINUTES later four Sabres, their Turkish markings blood red against each silver fusclage, bore in from the west and began sending a stream of machine gun bullets and rocket bombs toward

The patrol boat had made no effort to hauf anchor when the first jet flew by, but when the others returned it started engines and tried to maneuver behind two freighters:

The crewmen first fired a few ineffective shots from their Oerlikon guns but gave up and took shelter below.

The Turkish pilots proved excellent marksmen as they rammed bullets into the boat, sending splinters into the air.

THE TURKS had to call their shots because the town is the area headquarters for the U.N. Swedish contingent which is in charge of patrolling in the area. Some giant gasoline storage tanks were also only a few hundred feet from the target.

Finally the Cypriot boat came alongside the pier, ugly gray smoke pouring from the aft hatch. Excited crewmen jumped yelling into the shallow water and pulled the wounded after them.

Exploding ammunition made a hollow noise inside the boat, Photographer James Pringle was at the end of the pier when the boat beached

He took shelter under the pier as machine-gun bullets plawed into the pier only yards away from this correspondent, who had gone to telephone news of the first overflight and was caught about 200 yards from the pier when the jets began blasting into the harbor area.

WHEN THE last plane finorth pier workers began to haul the wounded from a tiny room under the pier where they had taken refuge. The pier buildings were a shambles of splintered wood and broken glass.

"Oh God, oh God" cried one youth of about 20. They piled the wounded into a small truck and took them to a nearby hospital. The United Nations later said 5 crewmen were killed and 13 wounded in the attack.

But the action was not over for Xeros.

About two hours after the first plane flew over, two iets returned and strafed two foreign vessels in harbor.

One Turkish jet exploded and crashed to the ground. It was a day Xeros is no likely to forget.

THE CYPRUS government said a count was continuing of Saturday's casualties from the air attacks.

This is proving difficult as many villagers have fled into the hills. A general alert for blood plasma and doctors was issued by the government.

Hospitals were overflowing with victims, the government said, which included many women, children and infants.

Unconfirmed reports said Greek and Turkish army contingents had moved into fortified positions along the green line of the frontier dividing this troubled capital city of 100,000.

EARLIER, United Nations sources had reported both contingents had moved from their respective camps.

Announcement of the land swap Saturday brings to a close the controversial land battle between the Navy and housing developers which resulted in two special elections in Los Alamitos and recall of three councilmen:

Simply, the land exchange means that the Navy acquires private land near its runway and gives in return the same amount of acreage distant from its landing strip to Dairyman Henry Van Ruiten

Station Commander, Capt, William P. Tanner Jr said the Navy is acquiring slightly more than 20 acres of the Van Ruiten dairy at the northeast corner of the air

Watusi Dance Completes Cycle for Primitive Man; Adults Love It

HOLLYWOOD (A) The Watusi-and its 57 wiggling variations— has taken the town by twister. It's danced at swank movie colony parties in black tie and at a halfdozen Sunset Strip nightspots by the sweatshirt and capri pants set.

And man, it's wild! An anthropologist of the dance—were there such a scientist - might see it as a full cycle from primitive man back to primitive man

The Watusi craze is so primitive that, while you dance with girls, you never hold them. In fact, you're lucky if you wind up with the girl you came

The Watusi—it's named for a tribe of tall Africans-is harder to describe than do. The dancer keeps his feet flat on the floor, shuffling them in a three-step while wiggling his hips and the shoulders forward, up and back.

Even the Cocoanut Grove, rendezvous of the movie colony since silent film days, has instituted a Watusi night on Thursdays. Black tie is option-

Like the twist-strictly for old age pensioners now-the Watusi became popular for adults about year or two after the kids dropped it.

The current madness also includes the frug, the swim, the hitch hike and the hitchhiker.

The frug is a sexy-type dance, so much so that if the music stopped the joint would be raided.

In the frug, the feet

The recent "one man, one vote" ruling by the United States Supreme Court had no impact on the Beaver State. Oregon implemented the system in 1961.

The high court's decision requires states to a realign legislative districts so that each legislator represents approximately the same number of people.

Tossed out was the system used by many states that divided the lower house into districts on a population basis, and the upper chamber into districts based on land

THE SUPREME COURT said the so-called federal system gave unfair representation to sparsely populated regions and denied populated urbán areas an equal say in government.

Oregon went through the throes of reapportionment during its 1961 legislaturejust one year after the 1960 census. The 1961 legislature redefined the boundaries of both state Senate and House districts.

The new plan was challenged in the courts, and later overthrown by the Oregon Supreme Court.

Under Oregon's constitution, this shifted the reapportionment chore to the secretary of state — Howell Appling Jr., a Republican.

Appling redrafted district boundaries along the "one man, one vote" rule set down by the state constitution.
Then, as required by the state constitution, Appling's reapportionment was reviewed by the state Supreme Court.

The court approved, the reapportionment clared a matter of legal fact, and that was that,

BECAUSE OF THE constitutional requirements, Oregon was spared the agony of a bitter reapportionment hassle. Bécause the state court had the final say, no partisan gerrymandering was evidenced in Appling's reapportionment.

The whole potentially explosive procedure was accomplished in a matter of weeks. and without partisan harangues. .As a result, Multnomah County which includes Portland, the state's largest city. elects 17 of the state's 60 representatives, and eight of the state's 30 senators.

On the other side of the state, where people are scarce and sagebrush and tumbleweed occupy vast reaches of open land, one state senator, Anthony Yturri, represents a fourcounty area of nearly 28,000 square miles—an area equa to that covered by Vermont New Jersey, New Hampshire and Rhode Island combined.

IN THE SAME PART of Oregon, State Rep. Robert Burns represents a twocounty area of 20,000 square miles—an area nearly the size of Maryland, Hawaii and Connecticut combined.

On a land-area basis, the comparison seems wildly un

But Yturri represents about as many people as each of the eight Multnomah County senators. And Burns' vote is backed up by about the same number of people as each of Multnomah County's 17 representatives.

It does give legislative weight to the cities. But that's what it's supposed to do, because that's where most Oregonians live.

ilding a Japanese Garden in L.B. Isn't So Simple

By GEORGE ERES

"There wasn't too much of a problem in landscaping the 140-foot in diameter "inner circle" on top of the Lincoln Park garage as long as it was just a sort of "Oriental type garden."

The problems started cropping up when it was decided to dedicate the area in Lincoln Park as "Yokkaichi Garden" in honor of Long Beach's sister city in Japan.

There had been a few comments that some of the items in the "inner circle" were not exactly Japanese,

成数据,编数数型 CHANCE HILL, assistant director of parks for the city, admits it's not authentic Japanese. "However," he said, "it does give a Japanese feeling."

There is water and there are rocks—which are, after all, basic to a Japanese garden. There is a lagoon and small trees and bushes and there are Japanese and "Japanese type" ornaments. There is a little bridge that goes over the lagoon—and that's one of the things that had to be crossed immediately.

CITY HALL GOT the message that perhaps the bridge wasn't exactly Japanese and thought it had better look into it. Roy Shiba, a member of the Japanese American Citizens League who operates Long Beach Nisei Landscaping, was asked about it. He said it was Chinese not Japanese. There was too much ornamentation on the bridge for it to be authentically Japanese.

So the City's Public Service Department went to work and removed ornamental panels to make it more simple, in keeping with Japanese feeling. It's not exactly right yet —a Japanese bridge would be less gaudy in color and the railing would be lower, but Mr. Shiba understands some compromise is necessary. If the railing is too low there is danger someone might fall into the lagoon-9 inches at its deepest point, according to Tom Marchese, of the City Engineer's office which was in charge of construction of the $16,000 project.

"Of course," said Hill, "if we knew originally that it was to be a Japanese garden we would probably have done it a little different originally-but on the whole it has a Japanese flavor. The trees, for instance

AMONG THE TREES in the Garden are a coral, a flowering peach, an olive, a Monterey pine, some ever green elm, junipers, and a weeping willow. The ground area is planted in Scotch and Irish moss. A sort of "international flavor, one might say.

Hill says climate conditions primarily are against authentic Japanese greenery—cherry trees, for instance. However, he thinks most of the vegetation—the willow, for instance has the right flavor. "Except the olive tree. I definitely wouldn't have done that if I'd have known,"

Some of the trees will have to be replaced after a time, Hill believes. "The willow tree will get pretty big after a while and we'll have to take it out. After all, we don't want the garage roof caving in."

THERE HAVE BEEN several suggestions from citizens for adding to the Japanese flavor of the garden, since it was definitely decided that it would be Japanese, One enterprising individual offered a proposal for installing a Japanese Tea Room in the park. That would have lent atmosphere-Japanese lanterns, girls in kimonos and maybe a few Geisha maidens.

City officials, however, thought the idea was too commercial and that the citizenry wouldn't approve.

But there will be some changes as time goes on to make the garden more authentically Japanese, city spokes-

MEANWHILE, AT ABOUT 4 p.m. today, the mayor of Yokkaichi, Japan, who is here for the International Beauty Pageant and the Garden dedication, will officially open the Yokkaichi Garden If he stands on the little bridge over the lagoon he will have a clear view of the little garden and a big sign-"Lincoln Park Parking; 76 Union."

WASHINGTON (UPI)-An angry man made a speech in Casper, Wyo., last week in behalf of thousands of independent domestic oil pro-

Qil Imports

Choking U.S.

What he said in effect was that the big American owned international oil companies have an economic stranglehold on the small U.S. pro ducer and are slowly choking him to death with cheap for

Firing these words was H A. True Jr., president of the Independent Petroleum As-sociation of America True blamed the big impurters for a steady erosion of domestic crude oil and gasoline prices while the small producer with only limited resources is helpless to fight back,

TRUE SAID his remarks reflected a deepening sense of frustration in many produc ing areas. Some of this, he added, is being manifested in proposals for punitive action self-defense --- presumably through Congress. But some producers simply don't have the wherewithal to fight and are throwing in the sponge.

The independent oil group has been warring against for eign oil imports since long before they were put on a quota basis. It also has been pleading with the Defense Department, which spends a billion dollars a year on petroleum products, to help prop up the domestic indus-"buying American." But both problems are tied closely to U.S. foreign policy, and are weighed by the government in that light,

TO DATE the plus side of the association's ledger shows practically zero. But that doesn't mean it is calling it thei war has only begun; that thei war has only begun; that it will be pressed until some thing gives; but that this calls collain visinis (Lib. C. E. Danier (Lib. Tkr.). manship and leadership of the highest order."

The trade organization has stirred up quite a bit of heat in Congress and it is not improbable that the import system will get a new and sharper look in the next Congress. It is too late for any action this year.

One facet of the issue will San Gaspar (Br Tkr)

In Case of Strike, Cutback, Hectic Trade Independents Workers Stay On

By HORTENSE MYERS

BERNE, Ind. (UPI)-The 300 workers of the Dunbar Furniture Co. of Berne will make labor history if they ever again decide to call a strike

They'll keep working-but for half pay-under the terms of their unique contract.

Half the employes' usual salaries or wages will go into a special account of a Berne Bank and the company will deposit the same amount in the bank.
Thus, if there is a labor dispute, the furniture workers' pay will be cut in half and the company's payroll costs will be increased by one half.

For if the settlement is reached within six weeks, the employes and the company will get their money back in full from the trust account.

But failure to work out a new contract after six weeks would set in motion a graduated plan by which increasing percentages of the trust fund would go to some community or charity project.

If agreement comes in the seventh, eighth or ninth week, 75% of the money would be returned. If settlement is not reached until the 10th or 11th weeks, the refund would be only 50%. A 12th week agreement would bring a 25% refund.

If the dispute is not settled at the end of 12 weeks, neither the employes nor the company would get their money back. It would go to a community charity project acceptable to both. If labor and management could not agree on the beneficiary, the local ministerial association would pick one.

IF BOTH SIDES can not agree after 13 weeks. a traditional picket-line strike could start.

If the employes ignored the contract provisions and pulled off a picket-line strike before the 13th week, they presumably could be subject to a breach

The contract bans lockouts, slowdowns or outside financial aid for either side.

The contract was designed to temper the cost of a strike. The Dunbar payroll represents 13% of Berne's total payrolls, and a strike would hurt the entire community. Dunbar has had only one strike, in 1959. It lasted six weeks.

The 'strike-work' plan will not be tested until May 1, 1965, when the contract expires, and, of course, not then if a settlement is reached between the company and Local 222 of the Upholsterers' International Union (AFL-CIO), which represents 200 of Dunbar's 300 employes.

Asia: An Explosive Danger Spot

By HARRY SHARPE

Southeast Asia became the world's most explosive danger spot last week, with the United States and Communist China facing each other across the abyss of

American's upported South Viet Nam, a part of the old French colonial empire under attack by Communist, North Victuamese troops armed by Red China, was the vortex of events which sent shudders through peace-loving nations, President Johnson told the American people that, like his predecessors, he was determined to keep this non-Communist gateway to all Asia from falling to Red Chinese subjugation.

DEVELOPMENTS came swiftly when Russian-built North Vietnamese torpedo boats vainly tried in two forays to sink American destroyers on patrol duty in international waters off Viet Johnson's thundering response was a deadly hombing reprisal against North Vietnamese ports, with promises of still more massive blows if U.S. naval vessels were further molested.

The carrier-based American planes destroyed or damaged 25 PT boats, wrecked port facilities, flattened seven anti-aircraft batteries, and bomb-fired a big oil depot. Two Ameriplanes were lust to anti-aircraft fire. One pilot was reported captured.

The assault was the President's reply to Red China's taunting "paper tiger" ap-pelation for U.S. military might — a response quickly backed up by movement of massive air, ground and naval reinforcements to the perimeter of North Viet Nam and China,

Peking blustered back with threats, charging the U.S. had gone "over the brink of war." But it made no immediate retaliatory move. Moscow, split ideologically with Peking, also fulminated, but stopped short of promising North Viet Nam men and wea-

AMERICAN officials said the President's action appeared to have answered its purpose for the time being. But a wary eye was kept on

Congress swept aside partisan politics in a display of unity and gave Johnson a "fight if we must" resolution-a virtual blank check to halt Communist aggression in the area. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson went before the United Nations and accused North Viet Nam of "acts of deliberate aggression which cannot be tolerated."

U.S. officials said the seemingly senseless attacks on the American warships may have been designed to whip up world sentiment for a conference to neutralize Southeast Asia--a project French President Charles de Gaulle has been pushing. Johnson has re-jected this, holding that there would be peace anyway if the Communists would pull back to their own territory.

So far, at least 264 U.S. servicemen have died in the Wiet Nam conflict, 180 of them in combat, Another 17 are missing and more than 1,000 have been wounded. More than 16,000 Americans are supporting South Viet Nam's bid for contin-

In a grim television speech to the nation, Johnson said the U.S. "seeks no wider war" but will not shirk from defending itself and its allies in Southeast Asia. In cuse, N.Y., he warned that "aggression unchallenged is aggression unleashed." He called the congressional resolution a demonstration to the world of a united America,

On the political front Goldwater pressed ahead with his party unity drive, winning pledges of campaign support from former President Dwight D. Elsenhower, former Vice President Richard M. No Fair Tax Boost Without Voter OK

NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN the City Council and officials of the California World's Fair organization have reached the point of considering financial commitments by the city involving a tax levy and a tax liability on Long Beach taxpayers.

At Tuesday's Council meeting, the councilmen are expected to decide whether to put on the November ballot a 25-cent tax over-ride connected with the Fair. This, if approved, would do two things:

1. Provide money for municipal improvements, such as highway and bridge construction, much of which would be ultimately done anyway, but made immediately necessary for a fair.

2. Give the city money to start paying rentals under the leaseback program while the Fair is still in a deficit position. This complicated program is proposed for Fair construction financing.

The first is an outright outlay. The second involves an indeterminate commitment; depending both in time and money upon the financial success of the fair. If the fair is a financial winner, leaseback outlays by the city would be relatively low and brief, and probably would be paid back. If the fair is a failure, it would be necessary to continue the levy for a number of years to cover the fair's losses-with an ultimate possibility, though not a likelihood, of 25

At the very minimum, the levy would continue for two years, raising $2 million a year.

The City Council has the authority to make these commitments without a vote of the people. But it is DAVID LAWRENCE unthinkable that it would do so. Without a special tax override; it would be hard put to find the finances to carry out the program. But more important is the moral issue-any such commitment of the credit and obligations of the taxpayers of Long Beach should be decided by the voters of Long Beach.

On the Roads-Off the Trails

A NEWLY-FORMED ORGANIZATION—the National Committee for Protection of Trail Country-has just kicked off a campaign with which we have considerable sympathy.

But it is that very growth of population that makes the committee's campaign so important for

The committee proposes that state and federal land agencies adopt regulations in line with the National Park Service policy which requires vehicles to stay on the roads and off the trails. Eissler points out that in a few years there will be a half million miles of roads in wilderness areas available to machines so it isn't a question of their drivers having no place to

A wilderness area is a wilderness area only because of the fact that it is remote. Machine access destroys this remoteness. This is one case where we'll take the raucous cry of a bluejay over the raucous sound of a motor bike. There should be someplace where people'can get away from machines.

Dulles Line Serves U.S. Again

Johnson and the Congress of the United States have given the world a dra-matic example of "brinkmanship" that reflects the determination of the American people to use military force, if necessary, to repel reflection of my views. aggression.

The joint resolution authorizing the use of American land and air forces in

secretary of state in the Lisenhower administration.

Yet the word "brinkmanhas been associated and has repeatedly been taken out of context to imply that those who support the Dulles idea are "trigger-

In January, 1956, in an magazine, Mr. Dulles was quoted as having said:

"You have to take chances HENRY SHAPIRO for peace, just as you must take chances in war. Some say that we were brought to the verge of war. Of course we were brought to the verge of war. The ability to get to the verge without getting into the war is the necessary art, If you cannot master it, you inevitably get into war. If you try to run away from it, if you are scared to go to the brink, you are lost. We've had to look it square in the faceon the question of enlarging the Korean war, on the question of getting into the Indochina war, on the question of Formosa. We walked to the brink and we looked it in the face. We took

'Yes; the only person who is respected is the one who clearly says - when necessary-that he is determined to go to extremes. That is a policy that your country and all successful MR. DULLES said he countries have followed throughout the past thousand years."

THE MISUSE of the word 'brinkmanship" arises from the mistaken theory that the American government would deliberately create a crisis in order to rattle a Senator Goldwater a few sword or threaten another country. The true meaning "hrinkmanship" is a policy of readiness-a willingness to fight if necessary and to indicate clearly to the other side that aggression will be repelled.

The erroneous impression government and Secretary is often conveyed that efforts to solve disputes by peaceful means are a reflection of unwillingness to fight or a craven attitude. Secretary of State Rusk, in

Normalized Soviet Relations May Hinge on U.S. Elections

MOSCOW-The Russians have just marked the anniversary of the tri-power Moscow nuclear test ban treaty which when signed a year ago was hailed as a turning point in the history of the cold war.

A year later Moscow still considers the agreement a "turning point" although it has not lived up to the most optimistic expectations voiced that August day in the Kremlin when Dean Rusk, Britain's Alec Douglas-Home and Nikita S. Khrushchev clinked champagne glasses in its honor.

THE SOVIET Premier has hailed the, treaty as an important step toward the reaxation of international tensions. Similar sentiments have been officially expressed in Washington and London.

"There is no Geiger counter," Izvestia said, "which united Press International the miasma of cold war." ternational agreement," the government paper added, which to some degree put the brakes on the armaments race."

Diplomats here agree with the Soviet assessment that had the limited nuclear agreement not been concluded there might have been no "definite improvement in the international situation" as Izvestia put it.

In its wake followed modest unilateral reductions of the defense budgets of the United States and the Soviet Union, agreements to ban nuclear missiles in orbit and cutbacks in the production of fissionable ma-

And now the Russians are reported to be making new soundings for the extension agreement to include underground tests.

ASIDE FROM the obvious universal benefits of the test ban agreement, to the Russian man in the street it has been an even more important result-the slow but steady normalization of American-Soviet relations.

Whenever Americans and Russians get together, officially or privately, the Russians never fail to point to the test ban agreement as the source and first step toward an understanding with the United States. But in all their talks lately, including the recent one Moscow before the end of between Premier Khrush- the month or early Septemchev and hanker David ber.

the forthcoming American presidential election may arrest the process of normalization of relations.

Soviet agreement to the partial nuclear tests ban as well as the general policy of coexistence with the West has been a serious bone of contention between Moscow and Peking.

There is reason to believe that the Russians would have agreed to the ban carlier had it not been for Chinese opposition. But now that the Russians have written the Chinese off and are pursuing a steadily more Western oriented policy they are open-ly worried that a change of American administrations might enable the Chinese to flaunt anew "we told you so" taunts.

They may therefore be expected to mark time and await the outcome of the American and British elections before they make any new commitment in international affairs.

IN THE MEANTIME Khrushchev appears to be devoting himself exclusively to his number one domestic headache which is the unsatisfactory state of Soviet agriculture. He has undertaken a

The crucial test was the vote for the state vice chairmanship of the Republican Party. The candidate of the Goldwater delegation leadership a group still flushed with its victory in the national convention coup for Barry, was Vernon J. Cristina of San Jose. Christina was defeated 518 to 374 by James W. Halley, chairman of the San Mateo County GOP Central Cristina was nominated by Goldwater's state chairman Bill Knowland. His

SOME OF THE GOLDWATER leadership in California lost

last weekend, but it was by no means a loss for Sen. Barry Goldwater, in the view of Mrs. Dorothy Goodnight of Long Beach, state president of the California Federation of Rea battle at the GOP State Convention in Sacramento

This election, she says, was not a pro or anti Goldwater issue. "We're all Goldwater Republicans..., but we resent domination from the top, the leadership riding rough shod over other Republicans. . . It's not right to try to indicate that a vote for Mr. Halley was a vote against Senator Goldwater and it's a grave error to put the Senator's pres-tige on the line. Senator Goldwater was not repudiated by this vote; we're all enthusiastic supporters of the ticket."

MRS. GOODKNIGHT gave examples of a continuing effort of charter members in the Goldwater movement, those who were on the record early and those who were members of the national convention delegation to purge or punish other Republicans.

She noted that Mrs. Lucile Hosmer, past state president of the women's federation, and Assemblyman Don Mulford, chairman of the Assembly's GOP caucus, both Goldwater delegates, voted for Halley. As a result, both were removed as party electors.

Among Republicans being looked down upon, she said, are those, such as herself, who could not take positions on candidates before the primary election. However, Dr. Gaylord Parkinson of El Cajon, the new state chairman, did not take a preprimary stand and was elected with firm support from the Goldwater leadership.

THE ROLL CALL vote on the Cristina Halley race also revealed, said Mrs. Goodknight, that the bulk of incumbent GOP legislators were for Halley, as were county GOP

There was a feeling among the Goldwater leadership, she said, that "anyone not out of Goldwater Headquarters or not on the delegation, were just not real Goldwater Republicans. While I could not take a stand before the primary, I often quoted from a Goldwater speech. The idea of purging Republicans is completely wrong. There's room for everyone who wants and would like to vote for our candidate; none should be pigeonholed.

One has to sympathize with him in the Viet Nam problem. The battle ground 5,000 miles away from us, and only a few feet from China, the real enemy. The terrain is so unfamiliar that we have had little or no ex- EDITOR: perience with it, whereas the Vietnamese and Chinese call it home. If we get embroiled with China, a nation of 600,000,000 people well armed and skilled in guerrilla techniques, we will become rapidly and permanently bogged down all over the Chinese mountains in a bloody war in which the present casualty list of 180 dead Americans will be altered to hundreds of thousands. If we finally win it after a decade or so of exhausting warfare, we will be faced with a fresh Russia, untouched by conflict; we will have eliminated Russia's biggest competitor in the Communist world at a frightful cost in American lives. War, Death, Taxes But No Yoting

Today in this country there are millions of disfranchised voters. Some belong to minority groups; the greater portion however, do not. The millions I speak of are young American citizens in the 18 to 20 age group. Many of these younger men and women are in the colleges of our nation. Several thousands are serving in all branches of the armed services. In the third category, that of the private tax-paying citizens, the number is great. It is disappointing and re-gretable that those in the above mentioned groups may fight and die yet can't vote. Others suffer taxation without representation. Even those who are studying to be the leaders of tomorrow are restricted by the arbitrary number 21. Should not something be done to free these citizens? They also have civil rights. Is the responsibility of voting to be denied those same people who shoulder the task of defending this country and to those who pay taxes just like adults over twenty-one? WAYNE KALAS

President Johnson's abrogation of the privileged long granted Communist North Viet Nam is of course limited—so far. As a White House aide expressed it: "We have embarked on a tit-for-tat policy. If they attack us, we to the attack. If the Communists leave us alone, we leave them alone."

It can be stated on high authority that President Johnson and his key aides shared the following assessment of the situation.

Firstly, Moscow could be counted to refuse to have any part of Peking-Hanoi escalation of the war although Premier Khrushchev would no doubt instruct his press and diplomats to raise propaganda hell about it. All the evidence points to a Soviet desire to disengage from Southeast Asia. They are manifestly impotent there "Communism's greatest and cannot even influence

It is one reason why the attack was almost certainly planned in consultation with Peking: It was therefore pri marily a probe designed to test out the Peking Hanoi theories that the United States was a paper tiger and would not risk retaliation even in response to a warlike act. And if the Communists had gotten away with this direct attack on the United States Navy, it is certain that they would have been encouraged not only to do more of the same, but possibly even to stage an invasion of South Vict Nam,

This is in FLEESON character for him, as he always considered military affairs his special field. As Senate majority leader, he gave the coveted Foreign Relations Committee assignments to others and kept his own hand in the Defense Department.

It is still no very cynical asperity to add that his Republican rival, Sen. Barry Goldwater, also considers himself a military expert and has demanded a "can win" policy. The President is always aware of the political angles.

He will note that Goldwater did not appear for the debate on the congressional resolution of support for the Johnson military moves, but he will understand that

What is more significant in view of the military-expert role Goldwater finds so congenial is that he continued his vacation while the Senate worked on the military appropriations. This is the real battleground for those who want to be in on the takeoffs rather than Minority leader Everett Dirksen carries on in the Goldwater direction while Goldwater himself attends to party organization and works on the unity pattern, which is largely a public relations matter. There is less in the meetings now taking place here and in Gettysburg than meets the eye, but they were indicated.

The Senator does not much believe in them himself, he has confided to reporters, but he goes along. His vacations serve a wise purpose, too, in preparing him for what must be arduous campaigning, no matter how much he seeks to limit his personal participation.

REPORTERS on the primary trail noted that Goldwater is not a trooper but gets bored with long, hard schedules and being bored gets that tired feeling, President Johnson has the reverse of this trait. He likes it too much and wears himself to a frazzle doing it,

Third Blank for Angels in One Week

Gatewood & Lee Duo at Best, 3-0 By DOUG IVES

That high temperature the Angels were running a few days ago, which was diagnosed as the start of a headache after Friday's loss, is indeed pennant

Thanks to the aspirin tablets that Bob Lee throws the Seraphs started their assault against the tailenders Saturday night with a 4-0 win over Washington.

Lee registered his ninth save in relief of Aubrey Gatewood (3-1) and Big Smoke, as he is often called, blazed his way nearer the team pitching record of 28 consecutive scoreless innings.

In blanking Washington on one hit the final three innings, Lee now has not allowed a run in 27 frames, covering his last 12 games. Detroit last tallied on Lee on July 15.

FOR THE Angels, it was their 19th shutout, tops in the majors, and for Lee it was the seventh time he has finished a whitewash. He has done it twice for Gatewood.

Lee's earned run average dipped to 1.30 and the Angels as a team now are 2.91, also tops in the majors. Since the All-Star break, the figure is an amazing I.94.

Washington righthander Buster Narum was making overtures toward a shutout of his own, and in fact he had a no-hitter through four innings before the Angels struck for two runs in the fifth on backto-back doubles and an error by Don Zimmer.

BOB RODGERS lashed a two-bagger off the 380-foot mark in right-center and Bob Perry followed suit with a high drive that harely escaped being caught on the dirt track at the 390 sign.

After hesitating at second, Perry tried for three bases but Zimmer had the ball in plenty of time. Perry presumably kicked the hall from Zim's T S Official -glove because it trickled just far enough into leftfield to enable Perry to score.

Joe Adcock was responsible for the Angels last run with the seventh. The blast went 10 rows deep at the 380-foot level in left.

The Willie Brown Mystery

CHICAGO—Grabbing the brass rings after the College All-Star vs. Chicago Bear classic: No one seems to have the answer why Willie Brown didn't see action Friday night in more than a couple plays. A second-stringer, Brown took a definite back seat to Ohio State's Paul Warfield. Some press box experts, who had watched the collegians an entire week, claimed Brown wasn't blocking his hat, while Warfield went all out ALL the time." Willie's coach, Otto Graham, said after the game only that Warfield was doing a fine job. I felt there was no need to replace him." ... Whatever the reason,

Willie may take solace in this item: When they played in this same All-Star game, the great Jim Brown and Tommy MacDonald performed briefly also: (And you can't say they've been exactly bums in pro ranks, can you?)

... Another graduate of HOLLINGWORTH Long Beach Poly, Johnny Morris of the Bears, had an interesting evening. He snagged five passes one a 39-yard beauty that triggered the key Bear touchdown . . . garnered another in the end zone that was recalled because little Johnny was playing tic-tac-toe on a defending collegians' head ... and let the All-Stars Mel Renfro (Oregon) pick a completed pass right but of his paws. Commented Morris on the latter event: "I never knew a college boy knew THAT trick."

... Renfro knows some other tricks, too. He was a late arrival at the All-Star camp because somehow he was "detained" at the Dallas Cowboys' training headquarters in Thousand Oaks. When he didn't show up at the collegians' camp in Evanston, Ill., following one "delay" after another, Graham made a formal protest to NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle. After a call from Pete, Renfro was on the next plane.

. . . Graham's comment on Renfro, after viewing the Oregon All-America in two days' scrimmages: "He is the best defensive back I've ever seen in the All-Star camp." Johnny Morris will agree.

THE ALL-STAR charity game is a worthwhile affair, but don't go out of your way to see it unless you're a dyed-in-the-wool football bug. First, who wants to see a football game that starts at 9 p.m.? (It's nice if you're able to watch the local TV at 7 o'clock, but horrible if you're on the scene.) Then, the chance of getting a decent seat is minute. I've seen terrible seats in my career, but the ones some poor patrons received are pathetic. (They're situated on the sidelines-on a straight line-30 yards past the end zone in Soldiers Field here. Those fans have to be either circus freaks or souvenir collectors.) Finally, the weather is terrible—unless you're a Zulu.

.. Item: An overwhelming number of Atlanta people were here during the past week and I don't think just to view a football game. The rumor is that they're going to make a strong pitch to nail down an Atlanta franchise in the National (baseball) League Monday, when both major leagues hold special meetings in this city. The franchise they're after is the one now in Milwaukee,

. . If the White Sox don't win the American League pennant it won't be because of fielding. I saw outfielders Jim Landis, Floyd Robinson and Mike Hershberger make three spectacular one-handed glove plays in ONE INNING Friday afternoon when the Sox were blanking Boston 2-0. Each blast should have been at least a double.

AN INTERESTING part of the Soldiers Field game was the surprising two-quarterback backfield employed by Graham. Miami's George Mira gained 56 yards rushing in four attempts and accrued his total off a formation that Otto used at the Coast Guard Academy in its game in the Tangerine Bowl.

. . Mira played in the flank behind two linemen with a receiver even wide of this trio. USC's Pete Beathard was the regular quarterback.

This "Graham Cracker" formation was unfortunately used only late in the game and the collegians moved 80 yards the sole time they employed it. "We practiced this formation just three times behind closed doors," said Graham, "and my only regret now is that I didn't employ earlier." (Well, it sure confused the Bears when Otto did use it.)

Truthfully, Mira's real effectiveness came after from Beathard. As I rehe took those overhand laterals from Beathard. As I reported yesterday, Mira was a real crowd-pleaser. On 24 hours' thought, however, I think he may have to be classified as a baseball pitcher with a 17-16 record. When Mira's good, he's very good. When he's erratic, he could be real bad-especially in the no-margin-for-error NFL.

.. Leave it to George Halas to let you know there's nothing new on the football horizon. He commented on that double-quarterback spread in this fashion: "They worked that pretty good. But do you know I used that same gimmick in the 1930s? Bernie Masterson was one of the quarterbacks. This is the first time Graham used this since he's been coaching the All-Stars, so it came as a surprise. You might say it was a 30-year surprise... but it sure wasn't new to me, just surprising. If I hadn't gaped for the first six plays, we'd have stopped it.'

Miss Taylor, an 18-year-old freshman at San Diego State, is 5-8, 127 pounds with a 351/4-231/4-351/4 figure, and best can be described as "Wow!"

Do you surfboard, Linda?

"I have tried it, but this summer I've mainly watched. It's a matter of getting up enough nerve., It's dangerous you know. Would you say danger is the main attraction to surfing enthusiasts? 'It's part of it. You just want to accept the challenge of being out there on a board and able to feel the waves and the water. It's a great thrill. I know I have boyfriends who would go nuts at the beach without a board."

What sport do you like to play the most? "I played a lot of basketball in high school and loved that."

Were you a high scorer?

'Not exactly, Girls don't score many points. They spend most of the time chasing the ball. I think I made 6 or 7 one

What other sports have you played?

"Volleyball at the beach, a little golf, water skiing, tennis. I used to love track and once made a standing broad jump of 7 feet, I also enjoy pool." Swimming pool?

"Shooting pool. I play quite a bit. One of my boy friends takes me to the pool hall with him. It has 31 tables and is very nice. Shooting pool takes more skill than most other sports and I really enjoy it."

What sport do you like most to watch? "Football. It moves fast and is exciting.

I'm a big fan of the Chargers. I hope we don't lose them. I watch almost every play tilt is a gathering place for the young surf- when they are on television. I used to playing set and the favorite of one of the football when I was a kid. But one day, my cousin—he's a boy—and his friends tackled me a little too hard, and I quit right then?" Do you think the Chargers could beat the Rams?

"Oh, of course. Most girls would like to marry a football hero. Would you?

I'd say that most of the fellows I know who play football are nice, but so are other. fellows. I do prefer men who are athletes. I like outdoor people."

Is there one professional sports star you would like to meet the most?

"I don't think so I don't know too much about them. If you would ask me one actor I would like to meet, it would be Jeffrey Hunter: I guess my favorite in sports is the quarterback for the Chargers, Tobin Rote, And who is that baseball player who does everything so well? Willie Mays. I'd like to meet him."

Would you rather attend a fashion show or a football game?

That's an unfair question. I like them both. I'd have to toss a coin. Do you wear a Bikini bathing suit?

"Yes. Most girls are wearing them now in San Diego. You get a better tan."

Do you think topless bathing suits ever will become the fashion? "Not for me they won't if they paid me all the money in the world. Girls are naturally exhibitionists, but you'd have to really enjoy being looked at to wear something like that. Anyway, most girls aren't equipped for them. It would be terribly unattractive." Are you certain the Chargers would beat the Rams?

"As certain as I would never wear a topless bathing suit,'

An all-America girl from the beach at "Wind and Sea" is Miss California, Linda Ann Taylor.

Stuart and Takia Lakes 54 Years Ago

My July series of three columns about Stuart and Talka and other nearby lakes in British Columbia drew an amazing response of telephone calls and letters. Some readers wanted more information so they could plan future trips. Others just wanted to tell me about their own experiences there.

O. G. Boyd, now retired and living at 236 Roswell Ave, was one of those who wanted to tell me what the country was like 54 years ago. Some of Boyd's remarks are well worth printing, even at the expense of some sportfishing boat skippers here, who only know how to say, 'That crazy $# X% Culpepper, he doesn't give us any publicity." And I can truthfully answer, "Since when?"

Oh, yes, quite often a skipper who has a big mouth and can't close it gives me hell for mentioning San Diego's catches, the hunting seasons and fresh-water fishing. Even a distraught passenger called me one day recently and said that if I didn't give the fish totals, boat by boat, he would cancel his subscription. Perhaps he did, but I'll bet that stop order didn't last long. That boat-by-boat bit he suggests is unfair to all concerned.

Any way, getting down to Mr. Boyd:

He says that my columns recalled great memories of the fabulous north country, which he and a companion, Slim Withers of Michigan explored at the turn of the century—1910 to be exact.

THEY TOOK UP A HOMESTEAD on Chief Lake, 18 miles from Fort George (it's now called Prince George). Let's read what Boyd has to say:

In June 1912 when rivers were at their highest and mosquitoes at their worst we started up the Nechaco River in a 12-foot cottonwood dugout cance, bound for Stuart and Takla Lakes. We had to make numerous crossovers to find water that wasn't too deep for poling, our only motive power.

"After spending five days lining our canoe up the rapids of Stuart River, we arrived at Fort St. James on Stuart Lake three weeks after our start. We went to the Hudson Bay Company's store where we met an old Scotsman with a large red and blue nose, the result of too frequent libations of 120-proof rum.

"He had just come in from trolling in a sailboat, and the Indian in the boat with him tossed out a dozen steel-head that would average about 20 pounds each.

"'Come with me, boys," he said, 'and we'll have a wee ho-r-n after your long journey. We had a wee horn all right; it was something like blue lightning.

"We went up that lake and into the Trembleur River, then into Trembleur Lake, where you could look down into beautiful clear water and see what seemed to be moving masses of trout of all sizes. We also saw the wreck of a large boat brought up the rivers and lakes by gold seekers in the 1870s.

"WE FINALLY SAW a tribe of Siwash Indians who had just killed a grizzly and were skinning it. A young Juck came running down to the shore apparently to talk to us, but the chief followed and hit the boy on the head with a chunk of firewood. He fell, well, like a piece of firewood, and we got out of there in a hurry.

When we got into Takla Lake, a heavy surge was running and we had to hug the shoreline closely in order not to be swamped. We had very little freeboard. When we arrived at Takla Landing, a big potlatch was in prog-ress. An old trader had most of the Indians drunk on out of the water.

"Finally we cached our canoe and hiked along an old Indian trail for 80 miles to Manson Creek, where a hydraulic outfit was getting gold. We were offered jobs, but the work looked too hard, so we declined and kept on hiking.

"Several miles up that creek we found some coarse gold in a sandbar and took out eight ounces. That was all. Later, when we got back to Fort George, we sold it for $120.

"AFTER REACHING FORT GEORGE and selling the gold, we bought our winter supply of food just as the snow started to fly, then headed for the homestead on Chief Lake.

"About this time we saw the first outboard motor ever used in that country. As modern outboards go, it was a poor excuse for propulsion.
"I went to Prince George two years ago and the only thing I recognized was the big cutbank on the Nechaco, opposite the town. I found myself in several of the old pictures taken in the early part of the century. Those are now in the Chamber of Commerce at Prince George."

Boyd started his career in the gold mines of Colorado, then went to Mexico City for more mining work. However, the lure of British Columbia was so great that he left Mexico and headed for Canada. He spent four years there before returning to the United States.

He says that fishing at Stuart and Takla may not be as good now as it was in 1910, but from my description of the sport in recent columns, those old mackinaws and rainbows he knew have left a legacy of fish that will be enjoyed by many generations to come.

Camper Industry Shifts Into High Gear

INDUSTRY

Independent - Press-Telegram

LONG BEACH, CALIF.,

By VERN ANTHONY Editor of Progress Section

Scampering in their campers over highways and byways, thousands of American families are giving travel and recreation an ever higher priority in their way of life.

Thus, manufacture of camper living units—which are at-tached onto truck chassis for traveling—has created a major industry. This is especially true for resort-type sections of the country, such as the Long Beach and Orange County areas.

Typical of the numerous camper builders in the Southland is Keith R. Boswell, owner of Pilgrim Manufacturing Co., Inc., at 2429 E. Artesia Blvd.

BOSWELL ACTUALLY STARTED making campers only five years ago, working in a garage at Compton. At first it was a one-man factory. He moved to his present plant two years ago. He built 125 campers the first year; and expects to produce to 750 this year. He has built and sold more than 2,000 units. Boswell has about 20 men working for him now, and hiresup to 30 at peak periods. His crews complete four or five campers

Business is good, he says, estimating a 20% upturn over last

Boswell is on the board of directors of the Portable Camp Coach Association (PCCA). Treasurer of his camper company is Myrtle Boswell, sales manager is Martin Benson; and plant superintendent is Wendel Morehouse.

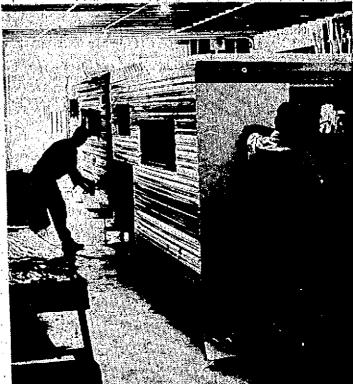

Conveniences of camper travel have won over countless women who formerly balked at accompanying their husbands on outdoor trips. It no longer is necessary to "rough it." That is optional today.

SO NOW WHOLE FAMILIES go camping "in style"—many keeping their campers stocked with supplies so they can take off on a weckend jaunt at a moment's notice.

With Americans on the move more and more as the economy allows them more time for recreation and travel, the auto industry is playing increased attention to meeting the needs.

LONG WEEKENDS FAVORED

to More Holidays

The trend is toward more paid holidays a year for manufacturing employes, according to a National Industrial Conference Board survey just released.

The survey-based on information obtained from 548 companies in a broad cross-section of industries -shows a significant shift in manufacturing between 1956 and 1963 to more time off with pay. Eight paid holidays a year have become more common; six or fewer have become less prevalent.

Many firms note that the traditional holidays now are taken for granted. The most effective holidays, from an employe relations standpoint, are increasingly ·Hawaii's business this sum mer is very good, well above 1963 levels, according to Bank of Hawaii's monthly Review of Business and Economic Conditions. Armed Forces expenditures increased and so did construction, tourist activity, retail trade and manufacturing.

Military spending, especially by the Navy and Air Force, increased markedly in the second quarter of the year, and it now appears that 1964 spending will be well ahead of 1963. The increases came in federal civilian pay rolls and military payrolls.

Construction completed is well ahead of 1963 levels, and a large number of new projects were announced during the past month.

those that offer the longest weekend, many companies point out.

ONE MAJOR TREND is toward the "floating" holiday, generally timed to fall on a Friday or Monday to provide a long weekend. This "floater," the NICB survey discloses, is now used to some extent in all business except banking.

Six holidays have become standard practice and are given by almost all firms in almost every type of business. These holidays are Christmas, Thanksgiving, New Year's, Independence Day, Labor Day and Memorial Day.

In the last five years, however, at least four "new" holidays have gained popularity: Good Friday, now a paid holiday in 38% of the manufacturing firms surveyed, up from 12% in 1956; Christ-mas Eve, the Friday after Thanksgiving, and the "floating" holiday.

THE SURVEY notes these differences between the various industries ex-

Survey Shows Trend Agriculture Closely Related to Industry in L.B., Orange County

More than many Southlanders realize, agriculture plays a tremendous role in the business and industrial prosperity of the Long Beach and Orange County areas.

Educated estimates, based on Department of Commerce figures, are that industries related to agriculture in Los Angeles and Orange counties have combined annual payrolls in excess of $1.5 billion; according to the Council of California Growers.

AND THIS FIGURE may be too conservative, declares Clitt Schlegel, Southern California manager for the

Orange County industries with payrolls topping $100 million are related in some way to agriculture

These industries, in turn, are heavy buyers of materials and services seldom tied in with agriculture such as advertising, electricity, petroleum fuels, paper, steel, plastics, transportation and even glue. There are

It was to emphasize the importance of agriculture in the California business picture that the Growers Council recently sponsored a tour in Orange County for business and civic leaders and the press. The tour visited the Mutual Orange Association packing plant at Placentia, the St. Regis Paper Co. plant at Fullerton and the Minute Maid plant in Anaheim.

RECENT RAPID SPREAD of housing and shopping center developments, especially in Orange County, has given to many the impression that agriculture seems doomed in this area. The contrary is the case. In Orange County, gross farm income in 1964 exceeded the 1953 figure by a million dollars despite conversion of 62,000 acres of agricultural land into urban use In 1963 the county had 93,428 acres planted to crops.

Million-dollar enterprises were topped by Valencia orange production, at $25.5 million. Next came the dairy industry, at $16.5 million; eggs, $12.5 million; strawberries, $9 mil-

The average California farmer has at least $50,000 invested in equipment. More than 200 crops are grown in California, a greater variety than in any other state.

THE SMALL ONES RATE BIG AT T.I.

When you buy property, your title order-large or small -rates the same fast, accurate, impartial service

One of the biggest events in your life is when you buy a home. (It's also the biggest investment most of us ever make!) That's why it is so important to make sure your ownership rights are fully protected by instructing your real estate broker and your escrow officer to send the title insurance order to T.I.

You can be sure your title order will receive the same painstaking care and attention at T.I. as the largest order insuring a commercial or industrial project. It will be handled by the most highly trained staff of title specialists in America, working with the finest title facilities in the business. In fact, no other title company has complete and up-to-date land records available in 40 California counties. And no other title company can offer you fast service anywhere in the state with just one local phone call.

Most experienced property buyers, real estate brokers, escrow officers, developers, builders and lending institutions choose T.I. for title service as a matter of course. They know they can depend on T.I.'s speed, thoroughness, accuracy and impartiality-qualities which have distinguished T.I. since 1893.

It pays to specify T.I.-the number one brand of title insurance-when you buy property. It costs you no more, so why not ask for the best?

The first day Helen Howell, new subscriber, read the Press Telegram, she saw an appeal for volunteer workers by Long Beach Community Volunteer Office.

munity volunteer Office.

Mrs. Howell, a recent arrival from Buffalo, N.Y., answered the call the following day and has been a busy clerical worker for CVO, at Psychiatric Clinic for Children and Travelers Aid ever since.

An employee of Disneyland ("a dream come true") from 4 p.m. to 12:30 a.m., the vivacious matron bubbles with enthusiasm over her volunteer work.

"FASCINATING," she said. "I have lots of room for more I don't have to have much sleep and I like to be among people. I don't know what to do with myself unless I'm busy. And in a new town, what better way to get acquainted?"

Individual volunteers, placed by CVO, gave 151,000 hours to 88 agencies and organizations in the fields of health, welfare, recreation, civics and culture in 1963.

"CVO volunteers are of all ages and interests," said Clara Andrews, executive director.

"A great many people have time when their families are grown and want to be active and independent," she continued. "These people have so much to offer."

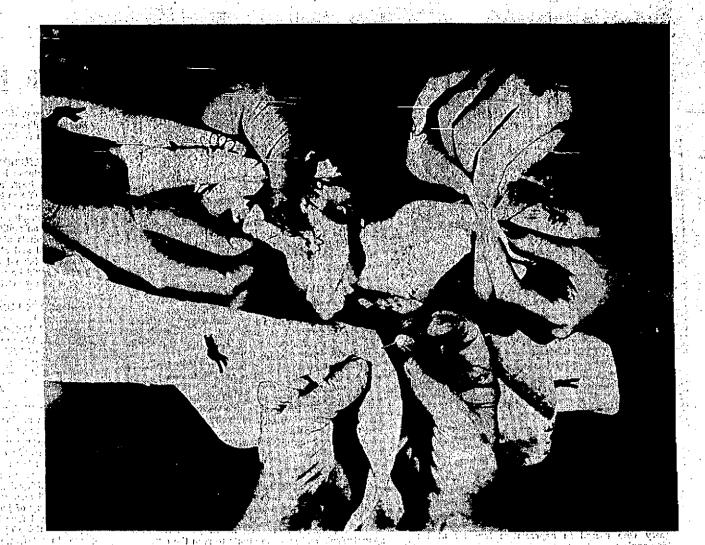

"And be sure and say something about the high school and col-lege students. They have done some fabulous things for CVO this

"WHY, PROFESSOR," gasps Lois Bean to Dr. Ken Shanks in faked amazement during the cast party at Pacific Coast Club for Civic Light Opera's recently concluded, "Sound of Music" show.

"Who'd have dreamed it," said she to him. He did.

Ken, professor at Cal State, LB, played a leading role in show, as did Lois. Her reaction, in photographic foolery above, was to his delightful spoof of show. He did an analysis, with heavy Freudian overtones, of musical comedy's meanings to the delight of all at party who roared in appreciative laughter at his lampooning.

The big crowd of cast, production crew and opera sponsors enjoyed a delightful early evening cocktail party, 8:30 p.m. dinner and then skits, including Ken's bit, followed by dancing. A few present were Dorothie and Lloyd Mallin, Bee and Don Wilson, Lou and Ray Griffiths, Betty and Clyde Paisley, Rose and Gene Bishop, Grace and Clarence Knox, Muriel and Harv Wehrman, Dave Selcer and, of course, John Sarver, president of the board.

MOST DEWEY EYED bride of the week—and the most surprised—was June Dilday. For their 25th wedding anniversary, husband, Bob, arranged to have a church wedding in First Baptist Church.

Bob told her he wanted her to be all dressed up for a picture date. Then, supposedly on way to photographers, he said he had to stop at church for a moment and for her to come on in with him. Waiting there were members of immediate family to witness the 4 p.m. re-exchange of vows.

Not only that, but their son, Burr, and his wife, Linnell, had another surprise in store. A festive reception afterwards. Then off the "newlyweds" went on an anniversary trip to San Diego in company with Rosemary and Eldred Dietz, who were also celebrating their 25th anniversary. The two couples met, have remained staunch friends, on their original honeymoon trips—on the boat going to Catalina.

PAR AVION, a post card winged its way my way from Ethel Severson. Ethel and her parents, 'Artie" and Al Stevenson, are in Zurich, Switzerland, during current, annual travels to far places-this time around the world.

Having a fabulously good time, they've been fortunate to have good weather EXCEPT being caught n a monsoon as they left Bangkok and heing in New Delhi, India, during accreting heat. While in Rome they did as not too many Romans are able to. Stayed in a castle, built in 1999 A.D., and owned by Count di Sarsina, Al's attorney in Italy, To add even more glamor, Charlton Heston is filming "Agony and the Ecstasy" at this castle.

THE "TIRED BLOODS" (that's THEIR name for themselves, not minel) which stands for the battle scarred members of the Downtown Optimist Club's softball team, had a social workout when the athletes and wives gathered at Hope and Jack Collins' Seal Beach home for a pool party. Party was one of the real hits of the season for the gang.

Bob Waldron was resplendent in a long, two-piece swim suit, Gay 90s era. His answer to the topless, wife Dorls, explained. Others having a ball were Bindy and John Vosburg, Bette and Don Barden, Mary Alice and Will Rivard, Paul and Jeanne Williamson, Barbara and Fred Dominski, Mitzy and Len Wiedrick and Grace and Clarence Poole.

As one of the player's wives confided, they play every Wednesday . . . sometimes even win.

ANYBODY WHO wants to see a good show, all for free, of legerdemain and magical bocus pocus, should head for Recreation Park—in the area of the bandstand—today about noon.

Members of the International Brotherhood of Magicians, Ring 96, of Long Beach will have their annual picnic and perform stunts to stun the eye.

Semi-pros, the gang gathered at Betty and Pat O'Donovan's residence for a practice session and pool party the other day and are ready to outwit, astonish and entertain with tricks by the dozens. A few performing and picnicking will be Dave Alexander, Ray Hafler, Merlin Eifert, Bill Ulrich and Jim Muszalski.

The fellows suggest audience members bring their own lunch for affair. That's the one thing they won't produce out of thin air for watchers!

PLANNED FOR informal post-show galety was the cast party Saturday given by Dottie and Clint Conatser at their home, following performance of Community Theater's current production of, "Green Grow the Lilacs." The Conatser's daughter, Pam, 16, has the young lead role of Laurie in the play.

By time they invited, not only Playhouse people, but friends of Pam's and their own, they had about 150 present for the bountiful, bouncy affair.

SEEING SOUTHERN Cal as they haven't in some time will be sightseers, by necessity, Jessie Lee and Dr. Don Malcolm during the last two weeks of the month. The suite's playroom even boasts electric refrigerator, grill and electric coffee pot just in case they choose to have late breakfast after regular serving hours. They'll be gone about 59 days, visiting numerous ports in the Orient.

GARDEN LUNCHEON, served at umbrella shaded tables, backgrounded one of summer's favorite events—a bridal shower Saturday. It was in honor of Jan Van de Water who will become the bride of Louis Pollard Jr. of Whittier next Saturday. Party was cohostessed by Margaret Stimson, Marge Conley, Baba Graham, Rod Strong and Betty Barbee and was given at the Stimson's home.

TURNING A work session into a party date was no chore at all for Sandlarks. It was a taste testing and cook-up-a-storm night at Barbara and Jack London's home when the women and their husbands judged the results of recipes submitted for the I, P-T's special Cook Book edition.

Smiling approval of the night, below, are hostess Barbara, Shirley Jones, Maria Stevens and Mary Pard, who like all members, prepared the special dishes in their category of judging-barbecue foods.

They had four huge braziers set up in the yard to prepare those dishes which required the good, old charcoal treatment, plus an electric oven going indoors to put final touches on other gourmet treats.

One of those braziers belonged to London's neighbor, Joe Shuff. Poor guy arrived home night of party with hearty steaks to cook, only to discover his barbecue equipment gone. So, he joined the party. Not such a poor guy after all, considering wife, Marilyn, (also a Sandlark, thus the free-wheeling borrowing without a by-your-leave) has been in the East visiting her family. It saved Shuff from chefing for children who, in turn saved from dad's cooking, turned with glee to a kid's best friend, nearest hamburger heaven.

Last minute dash of salt and the feast was on.

Permanent Sets Style

Mary Ellis Carlton

I. P-T Fashion

SOFT WAVE permanent is foundation for coif (above), featuring smooth crown and sides brushed into a flip. Modified bouffant (below) features fullness at crown (with NO teasing, thanks to permanent wave). Sides swirl forward to frame face, Both styles designed by Mr. Southern for May Co.

Hair designer Wm. Walter Southern does almost everything with a bang-also a wave, a dip, a curl and a swirl.

Always eager to meet life head-on, this broad-shouldered adventurer has, in fast order, cut quite a swathe in a variety of pursuits.

A Hollywood product (his father designed sets), he sold newspapers as a kid (Will Rogers was a regular customer), dated Alexis Smith while both were students at Hollywood High ("I lost her to my favorite TV actor, Peter Gunn"), did a stint in the Navy. turned out cartoons for Walt Disney and learned to mix a mean martini while hartending in Reno.

But once he discovered his flair with hair, that was that. Southern's occupational explorations ended, then and

HOW DID THIS World War II vet happen to enter the hair fashion business? This is his explanation:

"It happened on Guadalcanal. A bunch of us were crouched behind an LST 213 trimming each other's beards and hair with—of all things—a pair of tin snips, when somebody started talking about what we'd all be doing after the war.

"I decided right then and there that I'd seen enough grubby men to last me a lifetime. As I snipped away at a fellow Navy man's hair, it seemed the only sensible solution would be to work around beautiful women."

SINCE THEN, Southern has created

trend-setting coiffures for more than his share of beautiful women.

As stylist for a Hollywood salon that caters to movie stars, as owner and operator of his own salon in Beverly Hills and as traveling consultant for a national beauty chain, his patrons have included such luminaries Kim Novak, Pat Wymore, Ann Miller and a host of others.

But he finds his greatest challenges in turning Plain Janes into gorgeous creatures with the swish of a new hairdo or the excitement of a new

Currently, as training director and advisor for all May Co. beauty salons, he schools hairdressers in his unique "I-learned - it - by - experience" techniques and makes personal appearances at May Co. salons for individual customer consultations.

HE CURRENTLY is holding forth at the Lakewood store, training staff members in new color techniques and the latest hairstyles (pictured).

From Aug. 17-29, he will be on hand for customer consultations, to individually prescribe hair-coloring formulas, give advice on hair problems and answer queries on the salon's new

"soft-wave" permanents.
"New hairstyles, with their soft and fluid lines, make a permanent almost imperative to give body, line and the perfect end result to modern hairstyles," he said...

The new look, Bill Southern-style, is shorter at the nape, lifted at the crown and longer at the sides.

Hairstylist Southern

NEXT TO DEMISE of yesterday's full-blown hairstyles and the neces-sity for body permanents to give today's coifs an unteased lift, Southern said the most important news is in hair coloring.
"With today's faster methods, more expertly trained colorists and new products on the market, he predicted that, in the near future, almost every woman will have her hair bleached,

But, whatever products are available, experimenting for better results will never be a past-tense thing with hairstylist Southern.

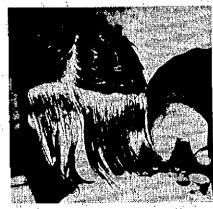

He plunges into hair coloring preparations with the enthusiasm of a chemist, uses a one-minute tint technique seldom seen, and surprises patrons by applying bleaches and dye to wet hair ("you can tell the true texture of hair only when it's wet").

Like we said — tall, jovial Bill Southern gets a bang out of his work. The patrons do, too!

BEFORE AND AFTER: a cut...a curl...a comb out...a new coiffure

Palos Verdes Exhibit Is Student Showcase

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Palos Verdes Community Arts Association is a showcase of paintings by recent graduates of California State College at Long Beach, and Los, Angeles State College, Pomona, and the University of Southern California. The gallery in the Palos Verdes Library, one block above the Plaza, is open daily from 1 to 4 p·m. and Sundays from 3 to 5 pm.

It is evident that these student artists have risen admirably to the challenges of significant problems in technique, composition, and vision, There are flashes of drawing.

The latter, by William Turnberg, is a large work in pencil of a man in Western dress; it is both sensitive and sophisticated. He suggests as much as he puts on paper. "Mother and Child" by Paul Robles is rich and painterly with fine control of freely brushed pigment. The empathy between the two figures is almost pal-

Interesting oil techniques have been developed by, among others, Robert Kobaski and John Austin, The latter's "Still Life" is a drawing in color over a semi-dry background, Kobaski's "Seated Figure" is enigmatic and monumental, emerging in a million strokes of closely-related color.

TO ME, the most arrest-Ing work in the show is the large "Untitled" oil by Wilbrilliance among the 25 liam Seebert. On a white ground is a cluster of in few watercolors and one triguing forms, holdly brushed in primary and tertiary colors, "Yankee Doodle" presents an expressive figure which conveys the simplicity and cry of terror of Kollwitz. How cats have been ortraved in art has reflected man's changing appraisal of them down. through the ages. Cats were held in high esteem in ancient Egypt, hence were depicted handsome-Disparaged in the Middle Ages, few cats appeared in the arts and were of evil demeanor. In the long course of human events; cats regained favor as a companion of mankind and, conse-

Playing role of Pussy Galore, Honor Blackman takes. James Bond (Sean Connery) off guard in "Goldfing-er," new lan Heming thriller, a plot to rob Fort Knox.

MONOR BLACKMAN, a curvaceous blonde English actress, is the newest and most dangerous James Bond girl. Now before the cameras in "Goldfinger," Miss Blackman portrays Pussy Galore, the provocative blonde whose views on men are drastically changed (for the better) after a series of intimate encounters with Secret Agent 007, played by Sean Connery, This is Connerv's third excursion into the perilous world of James Bond, having survived "Dr. No" and "From Russia With Love." All three films are United Artists releases.

In Miss Blackman, Bond meets a female worthy of his attention. Until recently, she was famed throughout the British Isles as Cathy Gale, the black-booted, leather-clad, judo expert of the popular "Avenger" TV series: Many a villain decided to go straight rather than match judo holds with Honor, who is the pos-sessor of a Yellow Belt, denoting her prowess in this form of combat.

HER ONE ATTEMPT to use judo against Bond in "Goldfinger," has some unscheduled romantic results.

By way of introduction to American audiences, the accompanying photos reveal some of the fine points of the exciting English star.

In "Goldfinger," Pussy Galore is the personal pilot of Auric Goldfinger, one of Ian Fleming's most fascinating and disbolical villains. He plots nothing less than the a if he heatered is embed of the on: ci doit aporte à apport

United States capital, skill and initiative built the Panama Canal and opened it to all nations' shipping, as withess this Russian vessel on route through a lock.

By Marjorie C. Peacock

POR HALF a century the Panama Canal has been a water bridge between two oceans, carrying the seagoing commerce of the world. Next Friday will be the 50th anniversary of the opening of the "Big Ditch" and the observance of the milestone will be of special note in view of Panama's recent unfriendly relationship with the U. S.

A few figures serve to illustrate the canal's importance to world shipping. In one fiscal year, 1962-63, for instance, the cargo amounted to 62,247,094 tens; transit of ships, 11,017. Tax collections in 1963 were $56,368,073.

For 400 years man had had visions of a great waterway across the Isthmus. Many propositions and investigations were made by various people and different countries but to no avail until 1903. President Theodore Roosevelt had realized the worth of such a canal, not only to the United States but to all the countries of the world. Ever since assuming the presidency he had pushed the construction of the canal.

Granting by treaty of the Canal Strip to the United States was ratified in February 1904 with compensation set at $10,000,000, annual payments of $250,000 after nine years and guarantee of Panama independence. It was recognized by Roosevelt Nov. 6, 1903.

This recognition of the treaty gave the United States the sole responsibility of the canal. From the beginning of its active interest in an Isthmus canal the United States government contended that if such a waterway was to be opened it should be free to all nations on equal terms,

ACTING FOR the United States government, Roosevelt bought out the bankrupt French company that had been trying to build the canal. This caused a great storm of protest from Congress. Later, Roosevelt said: "If I had acted strictly according to precedent I should have turned the whole matter over to Congress; in which case Congress would be idly debating, at this moment, and the canal would be 50 years in the future. Accordingly, I took the Isthmus and left Congress to debate ME. But, while the debate goes on, the canal does, too."

At last the way was cleared for "an American canal, built by Americans, and controlled by Americans."

In 1906, Rousevelt went to make an inspection of the canal and set a precedent by becoming the first president to leave the boundary of this country while in that office. In order that he might land on United States territory, a special station was erected on the Panama Railroad near the boundary of the Canal Zone at Panama.

The cost of the canal was more than $375,000,000, including the $50,000,000 paid to France and Panama, and 135,000,000 cubic yards earth and rock were excavated.

IN THE WORDS of Secretary Bishop of the isthmian commission: "The canal is a huge waterway bridge, the first in the world's history. It is about 34 miles in length, 87 feet high with the channel in the center varying in depth from 45 feet to 87 feet and the width at the bottom 300 feet to 1,000 feet. Divided into two sections, Gatun Lake and Culebra Cut, the latter an arm of the former." All locks are duplicate—6 pairs, 12 in all. The average transit is 8 hours.

No vessel is permitted to enter or pass through the locks on its own power, thus avoiding a c c i d e n t s which might be caused by an engineroom misinterpretation of bridge signals,

In 1962, additional construction at the canal cost nearly $70,000,000. Thatcher Bridge over the Pacific entrance of the canal cost $20,000,000 and was built and paid for by the United States. The bridge is important as it forms a strong link in the Inter-American Highway and is a boon to Panama's farm and market economy.

PANAMA CANAL, at the present time, is the subject of much controversy. It already has a traffic problem. Rep. Craig Hosmer of Long Beach says "a second 'Big Ditch' must be in operation between 1980 and the year 2000." He suggests that statehood may be the answer for Panama.

Congress is now reviewing all the possibilities. The best way to preserve the United States relationships with Panama and to protect the United States interests in the Canal must be found.

To quote Rep. Hosmer: "Isn't it time to give the people of Panama a chance to benefit by a mutual relationship such as statehood to taste the joys of peace, to silence for once and for all the Communist taunt of "Yankee Go Home" with the reply 'We are home."

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have genealogy on GUTHRIE. - A. G., Long

A. G.: GUTHRIE originated. in Forfarshire, Scotland. Its source was a locational term, the Gaelic word "Gaothaire" meaning "windy place." The Guthrie shield is divided into four sections. The upper left. and lower right sections are gold, decorated with a red rampant lion; the other two sections are blue with a gold wheat sheaf in the center. The inspiring clan motto "Sto inspiring clan motto prop veritale" translates from Latin as "I stand for truth." Descendants include the eminent Scottish, historian William Guthrie, 1708-1770,

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the origin of DAHL-QUIST .-- Mrs. I., Morro Bay.

MRS, I.: DAHLQUIST is Swedish with the unusual meaning "valley tree branch." This is one of a group of Swedish surnames that were formed from pleasant sounding words without regard to description or historical sig-nificance. This type of name was adopted within the last 300 years to replace the profusion of Scandinavian names such as Anderson, Jensen and Peterson.

DEAR MISS RULE -- Would you analyze the surname of WHITE -T. W., Long Beach, II. W., Los Alamitos, F. W., Garden Grove.

T.W., H.W., F.W.: WHITE is from an English nickname characterization for a man with light blond hair. In the 11th century English Domes-day Book, White was listed in its original form "Wit." Two hundred years later William the White is in the Close Rolls parchaments of King Edward III, 1340. The shield of the Whites of Derby, Dorset and Hampshire, England is red, emblazoned with a silver chevron between three silver goat heads. William White and his wife, who arrived on the Mayflower in 1620, are considered the New England family ancestors,

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly give data on CANNON.-J.L., Garden Grove.

J.L.: CANNON of Ireland is descended from the Irish clan O'Canain. This family was the progeny of a chieftain called Canan meaning "young wolf," in allusion to his stalwartness in battle. The Irish Cannons were natives of Galway. In England and Scotland Cannon traces to an ancestral church dignitary titled "Canoine," The Scottish Cannon shield is red, decorated with a large two-handed sword placed on a diagonal stripe between three silver spur-rowels. English forefathers include William Le Canon in 1273.

WELL F. D. Lynwood; R. K., Bellflower.

F.D., R.K.: KIDWELL had two early sources in Britain. One was geographic, from the Saxon "Kidde wiella" mean-ing "kid-goat spring." The The other evolved from Calwaladr, an old Welsh term for "battle ruler," This second origin became the town-name Kiddal in Yorkshire. The Kidwell shield is blue, emblazoned with a leaping gold wolf.

DEAR MISS RULE: What have you on VON HOENICKE -H. H., Garden Grove.

H. H.: VON HOENICKE is German nobility surname. This was originally Honicke with an umlaut accent on the letter "O." The source word was the ancient Gothic German "Huno" meaning "exalted," coupled with the nick-name suffix "—icke" – for 'young.'" I do not have the shield for this family.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please publish data on KERSHAW .--N. K., Long Beach,

V.V.. ANNALORA is a south Italian dialect surname from Sicily. This name evolved from the ancient Latin words "Annale-Lorum" meaning, ironically, "tied for a year." This described a tenant farmer who was held on yearly contract...

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you genealogy on TILLEY.— H. T., Long Beach.

H.T.: TILLEY was made famous by Geoffrey de Tilli who donated a large amount of money in A.D. 1020 to-wards building the Abbey for Men at Caen, Normandy, France Geoffrey took his surname from his large estate "Tilli" meaning "at the linden tree grove," Some of his descendants accompanied William the Conqueror to Britain in the English conquest of 1066. First monorail built in Southland in 1907

By Jan Heminway

THEY LAUGHED when Joseph W. Fawkes demonstrated a monorall in 1907. Like a roller-coaster it appealed as fun for a day. He called it "Fawkes' Aerial Trolley Car," but they dubbed it "Fawkes' Folly."

Born during the Civil War, Fawkes grew up during a period when transportation was also developing. He loved speed. In smartly tailored clothes, and sporting a waxed mustache, he raced around in a carriage drawn by a pair of spirited horses with two Dalmatian dogs running behind. He was not a farmer, but he owned a small "ranch" in the then rural community of Burbank, and his two-story house was a landmark. He wrote poetry and painted in oils and dreamed.

But his dreams had a practical side. The farflung class of human habitation from the mountains to the sea were maturing into Henry Huntington's "family of cities." They would need a means of rapid transit. His crystal ball may even have given him a view of the Golden State Freeway that would one day run past his property, with its heavy traffic and resulting smog. Good public transportation might have made that unnecessary.

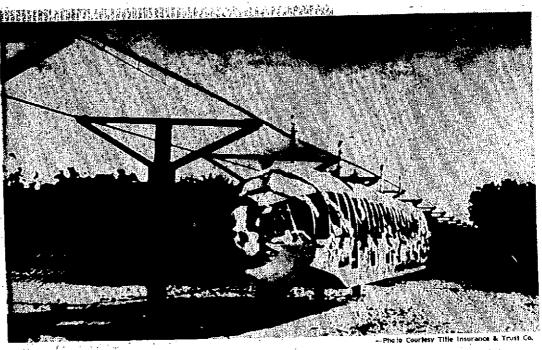

IN EUROPE, several monorall systems were proving successful, and he went to Germany to study them. He came back with imagination soaring. Pegasus was just what Southern California needed! A brilliant man with an inventive turn, he had already produced an electric sign that was drawing fat royalties. Now, protected by a patent and using his own money, he cut a wide swathe through his apricot orchard and erected a quarter-mile track. His cigar-shaped test car was streamlined for speed and covered with a silvery sheeting.

"Aluminum!" stated one old-timer, posi-

"Couldn't be. It rusted away before Joe died," objected another. "Anyhow, sheet aluminum was mighty expensive in those days, and that thing was only meant to be a model."

A white-haired man shook his head. "He was born 50 years too soon. He sure was sold on that rig! It only had a Franklin automobile engine, but Joe claimed it could do a mile a minute with a bigger one.".

Just as Goodell and Alweg urge pilot lines, to show what the monorail can do, Fawkes pressed for a track linking Burbank to Los Angeles. So far, he had turned his shining dream into a tangible thing without help. To go on with it, he needed financial and moral support.

Early day photography failed to do justice to Joseph Fawkes "Aerial Trolley Car," also known as "Fawkes' Folly." Car ran on overhead monorall in a swathe cut through inventor's orchard. He failed to sell the idea.

FOR SOME REASON, Americans didn't warm to the idea. In St. Paul, Minn., a suspended monorail had been started from a suburban area to the civic center but the city fathers had refused to allow it where they had jurisdiction. Hanging impotently 20 feet above the ground, it looked like a horse-car without a horse.

Fawkes, the artist, had built a thing of beauty—a burnished tube that moved with the pace of poetry. An Irishman named Brennan had experimented with a gyroscope to maintain balance, but his car was unable to negotiate a curve on its single track. Those in Germany were suspended from an overhead track they couldn't leave. Jue suspended his, with interlocking wheels, and adapted Brennan's whirling gyroscope. It moved smoothly and safely. But the car was open, as most trolleys were at the time, and for a people with no wish to fly, the blades of the propeller created too gusty a wind.

While he labored frantically at raising capital, the Pacific Electric red cars spread their network over the metropolitan area that Fawkes had hoped to serve with his system. In 1910, the Southern Pacific bought out Henry Huntington and the powerful spider threatened to include Burbank in its steel web. Most of the 400 citizens saw this as a means to the delights other communities enjoyed, such as day-long trips to the sea. Fawkes campaigned vigorously against it. The right-of-way and $40,000 guarantee demanded by the electric railway was all he needed to build his monorail into the city. He was outnumbered. Within a year, a spur was extended from the Glendale line to which a stage had connected.

with a three-day fiesta over July 4, 1912. Brochures explained what the monorail could do and what it could mean in the future. There were firecrackers, dinners and free rides in the weird car swinging from its curved track. Passengers mounted by way of portable steps like those now used at airports. For the little test track, he hadn't invested in a switch, so the car had to be pushed back to the starting point by hand.

"Back me, and with this setup I can glide straight over Mount Hollywood if they won't let me go along the river," he declared. "Once we build a line into Los Angeles it'll revolutionize interurban travel. I can cross creeks and arroyos without bridges. It'll be a gold mine! In 10 years it'll put the P. E. in a museum."

Burbank shrugged. Santa Monica opened negotiations but thought his right-of-way demands excessive, and interest waned.

In public fancy, inventors, poets and artists are odd-balls. Joe was all three and had never been a conformist. Now, watching his shimmering Pegasus corrode and collapse in wind and rain, he hegan to cultivate his quirks.

EVEN THOUGH he owned a car in the early days, he preferred his carriage with the proud horses. It was 1912 before the first paved highways were built in California, and through long use the mud and dust had assumed the shape of a rutted roadbed. Automobile travel was uncertain and often humiliating. Yet, when the town decided to pave Olive Avenue, then little over two miles long, he fought it. His property lay along Olive, and macadam was hard on a horse's hoofs! Each time they moved to accomplish it, he defied them with an injunction. He lost when work was started one Friday night and kept going in day and night shifts, reaching the finish line before the court opened on Monday morning, He opposed incornoration of the town; he objected to the municipal fire department that replaced the volunteers; he became a committee of one to promote annexation to Los Angeles.

Now and then through the years, he aritated fruitlessly for recognition of his monorail. In Germany, monorails were successful. At least one, the Wuppertal line with its overhead track, built in 1901 and updated 40 years later, is still running. In 1952, Alweg demonstrated its system—riding on a single rail—in Germany, and built the one at Disneyland a few years later. About the same time, Goodell onened a pilot line in Houston with an overhead track.

Fawkes died in 1928, his dream unfulfilled and the trolley disintegrating in the orchard. His family left Burhank soon after, and the ranch was absorbed by the growing industrial district. During World War II, Pegasus' pathetic skeleton was scrapped.

Today, 74 cities stand cheek-to-cheek in the metropolitan area, and the monorail is being considered for rapid transit. But only a handful of his contemporaries have lived to ponder the possibilities in "Fawkes' Folly."

THE surrealistic landscape on this page look vaguely familiar? It should; it is a scale reproduction of one of the Southland's most famous locales, Santa Catalina Island.

This Catalina, however, is in cardboard.

The paper and paste version of the "Magic Isle" was put together in the Newport Beach-Irvine Ranch offices of famed plannerarchitect William Pereira.

Pereira and his staff are using the contour study of the island, composed of thousands of me ticulously arranged sheets of cardboard, to work out a longrange plan of development for Santa Catalina.

The project was commissioned by the Santa Catalina Island Co. which owns the entire 47,000acre island with the exception of the one square mile City of Ava-

(PEREIRA'S PLAN, which envisions a permanent island population of 16,000 within 10 years (it is now about 1,500), calls for development of the Wrigley isle as a place of wide open spaces.

Seventy per cent of the land area will be left undeveloped, he says, with 80 per cent of the population concentrated in the communities of Avalon and Two

Two Harbors comprise the two coves at either side of the island isthmus. The isthmus is a narrow section of lowland that connects: the island's two distinct mountainous sections. The isthmus is a terrain feature which often leads the viewer on the mainland to believe Santa Catalina is two islands sitting in the sea off Long

Two Harbors is virtually at the opposite (or western) end of the island from Avalon, the isle's only true city and oldest settle-

Pereira wants to build on the high slopes behind Avalon and at the Isthmus, using funiculars (vehicles which operate on much the same principle as the San Francisco cable cars) to furnish transportation up the steeper grades.

HE ALSO HOPES the use of electric trains, narrow guage railways and privately owned electric cars will keep the automobile population at a bare mini-

Autos, in fact, won't be allowed in downtown areas at all.

cational and cultural ties-not unlike a "little Santa Barbara,"

The half-mile isthmus will be converted into a landscaped esplanade paralleled by a smart town center of quality shops and businesses. The hillsides will be covered by residential areas, arranged in 10-acre village units, each with its own small park, and reached by means of funiculars and electric carts. There will also be schools, a championship golf course, anchorages, yacht and boat clubs.

ALSO PROJECTED for Two Harbors is a Marine Biology Station which is to be built at Fisherman's Cove. The MBS "may eventually become the nucleus of a larger institute center which in time would attract related research and development facili-

The Middle Ranch area, in the higher reaches of the island between Avalon and Two Harbors, will be largely maintained in its natural state with provision for only a relatively few families living on-large ranch-size parcels. Altogether not more than 2,000 residents will live in this region of more than 20,000 acres of highland.

Hunting preserves and clubs will also be established in the wilderness areas.

SMALL POPULATION centers may be established at some of the island's coves, but the plan is to keep most of the Catalina's inimitable bays and beaches for recreation purposes.

Painstaking research, Pereira says, has convinced him and his staff that "the most successful isalnd communities were those that did not depend entirely on tourist trade, but developed as well their own native industries."

Accordingly, plans are being laid for year-round employment opportunities, including the creation of an industrial park at Pebbly Beach, These would be socalled "light industries" and would probably feature such indigenous crafts as pottery and tile manufacture.

Other industries might include mining, quarrying, boat building, fishing, lapidary and ceramics.

ISLAND construction wherever possible will employ native materials including Catalina rock, clay and hardwoods.

Education and research will play a big part in island work world and among other projects currently in the discussion stage is a private preparatory school at Toyon Bay that could be utilized as a university conference center during the summer.

Tourism will remain an important factor in Catalina's economy, according to the Pereira view, and long-range thinking calls for the development of a convention center on the island. Emphasis will also be placed on the construction of moorings for thousands of visiting boatmen.

Pereira and his planners are also searching for means to economically cut the travel time to the mainland. Under consideration are transport systems utilizing helicopters, hydrofoils, and ground effect (air cushion) ma-

THE PLAN proposes an architectural mood for the island which will be distinguished by use of warm colors, pitched roofs, generous employment of balconies, overhangs and other integral sun-control devices.

This suggested "Catalina Style" also calls for use of tile, breezeways and materials impervious to salt spray. The aim is to create an atmosphere generally Mediterranean with a big dash of Californián.

The land will be leased, not sold.

"In this way," Pereira says. "the intimacy, the integrity and the induplicable charm of Catálina can be maintained."

WATER - with speedy, dependable year-round and economic transportation from the mainland-is a key factor in any significant development of Santa Catalina.

The island does have some natural reservoirs and at least one "running stream," but neither is adequate to present, let alone, projected needs.

When plans for the development were first announced it was disclosed that a sizeable source of potable water was found by drilling wells to a depth of 1,000-

This water source apparently is adequate for immediate future charm often lacking in more modern fittings. Many of pieces are of foreign origin.

DURING long years of Navy life with her doctor husband, Mrs. George Franklin Cuttle traveled to many far corners of the world. She now lives with her sister, Mrs. McDowell, in a treeshaded home located at 2191 Eucalyptus Ave., although she declares that her miniature shepherd dog, Boy, and poodles, Garcon and Blanco, are also part owners of the residence. Forty-nine assorted birds that reside in a large aviary in the solarium lead such luxurious lives that they, too, might be considered coowners.

Virtually every piece of

furniture in the house is a treasured antique, not of the store variety but of the true family heirloom kind. Items of the knicknack class were acquired from various other sources.

The blend of types is interesting: there are pieces from South America; those which are old English, mid-Victorian, French and Oriental, for example.

A floor-to-ceiling mirror at the far end of the living room surrounds the fireplace and doubles the apparent size of the room. There are many conversation comers.

A FRENCH SOFA is particularly interesting. The round arms at either end are hollow, with round pull - out drawers. No one knows what they were originally intended to hold, but silverware or other treasures might be a speculation. The sofa faces a round Oriental coffee table.

Across the way a gold Victorian sofa faces a hand carved rectangular coffee table that is South American in design. In an alcove to the left of the entrance hall is a grand piano with antique sofa and chairs nearby.

An old English dining room set, one of many pieces which was handed down from Dr. Cottle's family, is more than 200 years old. A china cabnet nearby holds treasures in china, some of which (like that which came from Peking) is irreplaceable. Plaques on the wall are brilliant blues and greens and were made in the Orient from butterflies. One picture on the wall is that of a wedding that took place in the 1700s.

The aviary is one of its particular type. It takes up a major portion of the solarium, one of the most used rooms in the large home. Floodlights enhance its beauty at night, and the constant cheerful chirping of the occupants is a delight to hear at any time. The room opens up into a small private garden where rare bushes, plants, shrubs and trees are in abundance. A large tree is believed to have come from Africa.

MRS. COTTLE'S bed-sitting room is in one wing of the home, near the kitchen. Mrs. McDowell's suite is reached through a hallway from the living room. Hand carved Victorian rosewood furniture adds distinction to the room which views the rear garden.

This home has personality and character, rare features in many present-day homes. Even the garden, both in front and back, have personality and character reminiscent of homes of another era.

New Vases for Old

By Ruth C. Ikerman

HEN the spout broke on my favirite blue English china teapot with the pink roses; I couldn't bear to throw it away. So I used it one morning to hold an assortment of garden flowers until I could put them in a vase and they looked so nice I never got around to rearranging them. The teapot is now in permanent use as a vase in our kitchen.

Then there is that little pink sugar and creamer set which is too small to be practical for everyday use, the way people shovel in the sugar at coffee time at our house. Hence the two small bowls have become vases in which to float the licads of flowers broken loose from tall stems. It is especially good for hollyhocks, bringing them down to eye level enjoyment.

Park ena Park Garden A neighbor tells me I am not alone in this idiosyncracy. But she really prefers using the newest packaging containers received when she goes to the super market for foods. She makes vases out of mugs in which cheese spreads, peanut butter or tellies are packed. There are tall syrup bottles in interesting shapes and squatty ones with sauces. She does amazing things to them by the addition of a little enamel in colors to match her kitchen or the children's bedrooms.

THERE IS one thing we both have in common Our vase cupboards are crowded and untouched while we make new vases for old from broken crockery or new packaging. Some day we will have to give the proper vases their turn at holding flowers for the enjoyment of the family.

Meanwhile, I broke the handle from a yellow chintz teacup and I know it will make a perfect vase for greenery. Of course I'll have to be careful to keep the chipped portion toward the wall, but it will make a lovely container for a piece of fern or a branch of fir.

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: "I tell my 2 year old not to do something, but as soon as I've turned my back, likely as not he'll go and do it again. He is deliberately disobedient. Is this normal at his age, or have I got a delinquency problem on my

ANSWER: Absolutely

The child isn't a delin-quent, and this conduct does not forecast delin-quency. A 2-year-old has a very short memory, and not much conscience. Often he is naughty simply because he can't remember that he shouldn't be.

Patient repetition of orders rather than severe punishment is required to impress on his young mind the need for obedience and good conduct.

At this age, you should not expect him to have learned—but he should be learning.

ANSWER: I am not authorized to use therapy, but I can offer preventive advice.

Keep minds busy. Provide each child with a map so he can trace your route. Before the trip, learn something about the historical places along the way, so you and the children can discuss and anticipate them. Play the alphabet game: Each child silently watches billboards, license plates, and signs on store fronts until he has accumulated, in proper order, all the letters of the alphabet. First one to reach Z is winner. Very educational. One game of this can take winner. Very educational. One game of this can take, you half way through the state of Wyoming and keep you out of the state of insanity.

ANSWER: Research indicates that a child achieves his basic linguistic ability by age 3 or 4.

Beyond that age, his linguistic progress consists mainly of learning more words; and improving his

The 'Great Profile' and His 'Sins'

By Vera Williams

ELAINE chases John. John chases Ariel Caliban flees. Elaine says "NO." It's off, It's onl

Fans who were around in 1935 and were old enough to remember, will recall the vivid and highly sensational love affair of the late John Barrymore, the "Great Pro-file" and Elaine Barrie nee Jacobs who became his fourth and last wife.

"ALL MY SINS REMEM BERED" is the title of Elaine Barrymore's first attempt at being an author. Her bi-ography, co-authored by Sanford Dody, New York writer and actor (Appleton Century, $5.95) is available at book

Elaine Barrymore, who with her mother now lives just outside Mexico City, admits in her very frank autobiography that she, a New York Jewess born Jacobs, assumed the name "Barrie" because of an adolescent infatuation with the entire Royal Family of Barrymore.

Prior to Elaine, three beautiful and brilliant women had failed in the attempt to be a wife to John Barrymore, Each of his former marriages had lasted seven years . . . exact length of the Elaine Barrie-John Barrymore marriage. When Elaine said her "I Do's" with John Barrymore in Yuma, Ariz., in 1935, it cannot be said that she went into the marriage as an innocent child . . . she also had an eye on fat dramatic roles as the wife of the great Shakespearean dramatist, incidentally, never materialized.

In "All My Sins Remembered" Elaine reveals more of her erratic husband's sins than her own. It is perhaps natural that she would become an apologist for her own unorthodox behavior. "Our gamut of emotions was endless and so was our union," she states, "there were times when I certainly tried to break away; but I always went back."

Eventually she co-starred with her husband in "My Dear Children." Those who saw the play will recall the Barrymore ad libs the voice of the off stage prompt. ter and the derision of an audience made up largely of those who had come to witness the sunset of what had been a great career. In retrospect Elaine wondered whethit was her own ambition that had driven her beloved to attempt a return to the stage when he knew he was incapable of giving an adequate performance.

FOR THOSE LONG, lazy vacation days when a good book and a cool spot plus a cold drink have the greatest appeal, Carol Brink's latest novel, "SNOW IN THE RIVnovel, "SNOW IN 1714. Her "Caddie Wood-lawn," a book for children, won her the Newberry Medal. "Snow in the River," written in the first person, tells the story of three brothers who left their native Scotland in the 1890's to come to America. They settled in Idaho, then a young exploit-ed spot of wild mountains, ed spot of white mountains, trees, bitter winters and hot summers. Outstanding was Angus, oldest of the three Brothers McBain. He is protrayed as the studious, God fearing father of the author. Her favorite uncle, Douglas, the youngest of the three, was driven by ambition but tripped up by his insatiable desire for beautiful women. The middle McBain brother, Willy, was a happy-go-lucky youth who wasted his opportunities in a disastrous attempt to rescue a young waitress from a pregnancy occasioned by unwise love of an unworthy adventurer.

Miss Brink writes with a deep understanding of human foibles.

ISAAC BABEL hit the Russian literary scene like a meteor with his "RED CAV-ALRY" and Odessa stories in early 1920s. His stories were brutally frank, and they were diamond hard masterpieces. Then, at the height of the reign of the monstrous King Stalin, Babel disappeared. After Stalin's death, it was learned that Babel had been shot, probably by a firing

THE LONELY YEARS: 1925-1939" (Farrar, Straus $6.75) edited by his daughter Nathalie Babel, is a collection of eight stories by Rabel and a goodly number of his letters never before published anywhere. Some of the stories haven't been published in Russia.

The letters are loving do-mestic notes, to his mother and his sister, who had left Russia to live in Belgium. They do not touch to any great extent on Babel's literary work, but through them runs an undercurrent of worry as to the fate of an honest writer under Stalin. The last letter was sent May 19, 1939, and from then on his family heard no word from him.

Two stories are in fact sections of a planned novel on life on the collective farms; others clearly are in the Maupasant style loved by Babel in his youthful days. Impending doom shadows the letters, yet Babel tries to be sunny with his family. His daughter has done a great favor to lovers of the best in Russian literature in publishing this book.

JOSEPH BRIETBACH in "REPORT ON BRUNO" (Knopf $5.95) takes two ingredients in a boy, frustration and disillusionment, and shows them to be essential to the mixture that makes up homo dictator. The lad, Bruno, 14 when the story begins, is growing up in a small European country, a Lowlands-like monarchy with a democratic parliamentary system.

Bruno's grandfather, with whom the boy lives, and who narrates the story, is a leading liberal in the political life of the country. He is a man who must walk on eggshells to lead his country through continual crisis.

Bruno's parents have failed him; he is emotionally undermined. The brilliant Bruno despises his grandfather and yet desperately wants his approval. In such circumstances Bruno's path to demagogery, to betrayal of his grandfather, and to engineering the fall, is .a natural course of events, and Joseph Breitbach, surveys French citizen who; writes into both French and Countries into uses the pen of both historian and skilled novelist to depict the life of a quasi-Hitler.

In true, colonial fashion, the sink top hutch can become a serving center, display space or indoor plant holder.

By Bill Meyerriecks

an authentic-looking sink top hutch, copper-lined, one with that warm inviting early American look—how did the price tag strike you? It prohably struck you square between the eyes. Yet if your decor is Colonial, the sink top hutch is one of the prize pieces that is a must—so useful and good looking for entertainment and display.

One practical way to have a beautiful hutch (such as seen in the Sketchbook photo) in your home is to consider design plan S-171 of the Sketchbook do-it-yourself series. With this detailed plan in hand, some careful but moderate purchases of pine lumber and a sheet of copper lining, plus the will to do the job over a reasonable length of time-and you can have the hutch right in your dining room. If the man of the house is any way handy with tools and can stick with easy - to - understand instructions and drawings, it can be done well.

And that's some of the fun of making this type of colonial piece. It doesn't take the experienceed skill of a cabinet maker. Working with pine stock, which is relatively soft, cutting the same size patterns for the filigreed top and sides from standard lumber sizes is not difficult. There are bevels to be cut for the front of the hutch and drawer and the plan shows a same size guide to help you with these. The fancy looking doors are explained fully; actually their construction involves only average woodworking know-how.

INCLUDED in the Sketchbook plan are instructions on how to fold the copper lining to fit into the approximately 17x30 inch dry sink area on the table top of the hutch. The plan shows how, without epoxy or any filler, to make the lining leakproof and snug.

The length of the hutch is 44 inches, its depth about 20 inches and it stands some 50 inches in height at the rear. Its table top area is the comfortable height of 32 inches on top of drawer, 27 inches at sink bottom. All sizes of parts, the number and description as well as all materials needed are listed. Finishing tips and general information are also given in the plan.

Sketchbook's Sink Top Hutch Plan 2-171 may be obtained by sending 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90812.

Antibiotics vs. Tooth Decay

By Ben Zinser

ANTIBIOTICS may be used some day to combat tooth decay, predict two dental researchers.

A recent study discloses that children receiving penicillin over an ex-tended period showed a marked decrease in tooth decay compared to children not on antibiotic therapy.

However, the research ers, Drs Nor-man W. Lit-tleton and Carl L. White of the National Institute of Dental Research, Bethesda, Md., say that peni-cillin would not be a practical antibiotic for prevention of tooth decay.

"Limitation on the use of available antibiotics in man are well known, but new compounds are being developed constantly," they say in the Journal of the American Dental Association.

A HARVARD physician says that 50% of the diabetic patients in the U. S. currently being treated with insulin could be transferred successfully to oral drugs.

Dr. Samuel Beaser, clinical associate in medicine at Harvard Medical School, bases his estimate on an eight-year study of 115 diabetics.

Dr. Beaser has pioneered the use of a combination of oral drugs as the strongest possible oral treatment. The most effective combination has been pairing of phenformin (DBI) and chlor-propamide (Diabinese), he says.

A new antibiotic, daunomycin, isolated by Italian researchers, has a high anticancer activity and relatively low toxicity.

In animal experiments it has caused "significant inhibition" of 12 of 13

would seem to be justified," the researchers say in Cancer Chemotherapy Reports.

A NOTHER new antibiotic, pimaricin, improved the lot of 7 of 10 patients with a fungus infection of the lungs; report two British doctors in Pimaricin was administered as a spray two or three times daily. In those who were helped, improvement occurred after an average of six weeks of treatment.

Most of the patients had pulmonary infections due to the fungus Aspergillus fumigatus.

GIVING the pain-killing drug phenylbutazone to patients already taking the anti-clotting compound warfarin is inadvisable, reports a New York pathologist.

Using the drugs in combination may lead to bleeding complications, he says.

Dr. Milton J. Eisen of Yonkers, reporting in the AMA Journal, cites five instances in which phenylbutazone beefed up the action of warfarin, to threaten bleeding complications.

Children with cystic fibrosis often display degrees of retarded growth. But the hormonal drug stanozolol (Winstrol) may increase bone age to ultimately improve the stature of CF patients, says Dr. James L. Dennis of the University of Arkansas Medical

Researchers have devised a simple new test for the diagnosis of pheochromocytoma, a tumor of the adrenal glands that produces high blood pres-

Devised by investigators at the Na-tional Heart Institute, the test can be performed in a docor's office. Tiny doses of a chemical called tyramine are injected, and if they produce a substantial hike in blood pressure, it indicates presence of the tumor.

The Job of Guarding the Preside

By Hoyt McAfee

WHEN A U.S. President suddenly goes into a milling crowd to shake outstretched hands, does that expose him to unnecessary risk? Former President Herry Truman thinks so. Hence the reason for his recent advice to LBJ — "Be careful."

An intensity of public interest surrounds the subject right now. And another one-time White House occupant, Dwight Eisenhowser offers this thought: "On his public president appearances the should make no impulsive moves which might upset prearranged security measures." But it would appear that the Secret Service and those thoughtful Americans con-cerned over the president's safety face many enxious mo ments in the months ahead.

For LBJ has made it clear that he intends to "go on mingling with my fellow Americans and be a people's president."

Even the Warren commis-sion must grapple with the question of presidential protection. In this instance, provide as clear and forthright an answer as possible to, among other questions, whether Secret Service and FBI security precautions for John F. Kennedy's ill-fated visit to Dallas were lax or short-sighted.

HOW ABOUT other American presidents who've been shot at or assassinated? Did they, by their free-wheeling and fatalistic behavior, make wide-open targets for crackpots, the demented, and dan-gerous individuals? Or was the near-tragic and tragic fate which overtook them due to lax Secret Service protection?

Let's take a searching look at the little-known record on that score. First, the White House years of Abraham Lin-An astonishing fact about him was this: He, a man who truly savored moments of solitude and aloneness, loved to prowl about the streets of Washington at

He'd go off on these nocturnal strolls alone and unguarded! Sometimes he'd slip away quietly without telling anyone — his wife, son, or some member of the White House staff - where he was headed. On these night-time excursions he went unarmed.

Sorely beset by daily cares and the heartaches brought on by civil war, Lincoln found long strolls relaxing and refreshing. All about him were the sights, sounds, smells, and voice of the nation's capitol. From the best available evidence Lincoln moved about on his noc-turnal prowls without attracting special notice or recogni-coln's 6 feet, 4-inch figure (crowned by a top hat) presented an inviting target. That is, for an evil-doer or wouldbe assassin.

Evidently there was one stalking Lincoln that night, and a shot suddenly rang out, sending his top hat spinning to the ground! That incident upset Lincoln somewhat at the time; but upon his arrival at the White House he dis-missed it as "a chance the president must take when he goes out to look around on his own."

Certainly Lincoln proved one of the hardest presidents to guard: since by nature, instinct, and impulse he was very much a loner. No one knows, for example, why he suddenly dispatched his own bodyguards to Richmond on April 13, 1865.

"ONE NIGHT later President and Mrs. Lincoln, ac-

Three-D on the Wall

ART AND SCIENCE have joined forces to create a decorative wall plaque.

Like many modern developments in the home furnishings field, this new wall decor had its origin in Southern California.

Kalon Products, 2107 S. Lyon St., Santa Ana, is now offering 21 varieties of plaques, ranging from a reproduction of the Winged Victory of Samothrace to an original avant garde abstract.

The plaques have the three dimensional quality of bas-relief sculpture and can dress traditional or contemporary rooms, according to Kalon's president, Paul E. Kilian.

Though the plaques have the look of metal, wood, stone or plaster, they are made of Kalonitc-expanded urethane foam combined with a polyester surface.

Kilian says the plaques can be hung on walls simply by pressing them against three small finishing nails.

The plaques are available in an assortment of sizes ranging from 13x13 inches to 44x52 inches. Prices run from $10.20 to $250.

Q. Is honey that has been on the shelf for several months still edible?—D. N.

A. Honey that is stored for several months may darken and have a stronger flavor but is still usable. If crystallization (a natural process) occurs, the honey is not injured. To bring crystallized honey back to liquid form, place the container of honey in a pan of warm water. Ex-tracted and comb honey are best kept in covered containers in a dry place at room temperature. The cover pre-vents loss of flavor and aroma and absorption of odors and moisture from the

Q. What were the measure-ments of Annette Kellerman, the "Diving Venus" of the early 1900s?—A.S.

A. As a child, Miss Kellerman's legs were so mal-formed that she had to wear steel braces to walk. Her father taught her to swim; by the time she was 13 her legs were straight, and at 15 she began to win swimming

The Missile Age has produced an exterior wall coating so tough and durable that it's Absolutely Guaranteed to eliminate a need for painting outside walls for 10 years. This outstanding product is called GUNTEX. When applied it is 20 or more times the thickness of ordinary paint and actually functions as a new surface.

Unique among GUNTEX qualifications is its insulating properties which is obtained from its basic components of and perlite asbestos, mica and perlite which are noted for their insulation and durability, GUN-TEX also contains a rubber elastomer which does not evaporate or migrate into the foundation or surface of the building as is the case with many coatings and plastics. This gives GUNTEX a life expectancy of 15 years or more.

Egg carton boat, loaded with goodies and sailing upon sea of foil, is a happy carrier of birthday candles.

Fun Boat for a Party

By Lorena Fleissig

BOATS ARE most popular these days and we find they provide a happy theme for party time, symbolizing the excitement of sailing places new experiences and the possibility of there being surprises stored away in the Party needs in the way of table decorations need not be expensive items. Clean pressed egg cartons (the long ones) can do double duty in this respect for the children's party boat.

To give the hull sturdiness. glue two egg carton lids together, one inside the other. The third hid is glued upside down under the hull to give the scow height. This bottom lid will be the base for the foil waves which are added last.

TO FORM the lop of the scow, use the cup sections of two cartons. Cut lengthwise through the center of the cups that are next to the inch-wide closing tab of the egg carton. Now you have two half-cup strips joined to the inch-wide tabs.

With white liquid glue, join the bottoms of the cups, cupside up and secure with clothespins until thoroughly dry. Bend the tabs down and glue to the hull on either side. Trim to shape into a point at the top.

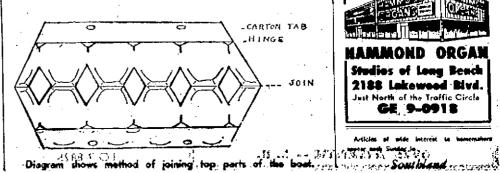

To paint the boat, use any color of spray paint, or gold, silver or perhaps white using thick gesso. Gesso is a white water paint already mixed for use.

Wet the brush before dipping into paint and rinse at once after using or keep in a can of water.

THE BIRTHDAY' candles will set in large red caps from detergent bottles. If the caps on hand are of various colors, paint them with red nail polish. Put glue on the plastic caps and force them into the triangular openings on the top of the scow. Smal-ler caps glued inside these larger ones will better hold the kitchen candles. These ordinary white candles are found at any market, so many in a small box.

For the waves, cut foil, either blue and silver, or both, an inch or so larger all the way around the hase of the boat, Glue boat base to the center of the foil and crush the material up around the sides and front of the scow.

THIS SCOW should have flags flying, such as paper pennants glued to round tooth picks, gay decorations hanging along the sides, life-buoys, flowers or tinsel. There is ample room in the hold of this 12x4-inch scow for surprise gifts. They might be cookies in the form of lifesavers, or lollipop paddles, or small packaged gifts tied to long ribbon streamers.

companied by an engaged couple, Maj. Henry Rathbone and Clara Harris, went to Ford's Theater in Washington, D.C., to view a performance of "Our American Cousins." Only one man, a hard-drinking Washington po-liceman named John F. Parker stood guard outside Lincoln's unlocked presidential box that fateful night.

"When Parker left his post to visit the nearest bar (at 10:15 p.m.), John Wilkes actor and Southern Booth sympathizer, suddenly sprang into action. Slipping into the presidential box; he found Lincoln half-asleep in a haircloth rocking chair. One shot from Booth's derringer enter-ed President Lincoln's head. He died in William Peterson's rooming house across the street at 7:22 a.m. the following day (April 15, 1865)."
Less than 20 years later, an-

A woman spectator caught his movement in time to hit his gun hand.

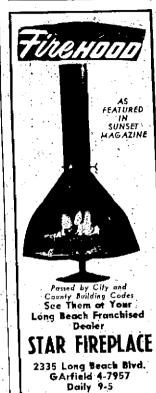

But the deflected bullet struck and later proved fatal to Mayor Cermak, Zangara's additional wild shots killed five persons before he was finally subdued and arrested. In spite of that near-brush with disaster, FDR — even in his presidential years—would never permit the Secret Service "to keep me boxed in," as he phrased it.

ACHINE GUN nests in California? No surprise to find them in

No more than GI battle exercises ever disturbed those

picturesque hills or the peace of the rhythmic surf off Por-tuguese Bend. Yet, two San Pedro boys, Mike Shannon and Tommy Catherwood, both 13, in their wanderings through the Palos Verdes Peninsula found tangible evidence to believe that battle had been waged there.

They were hiking along the cliffs overlooking the Pacific between San Pedro and Ma-rineland, when suddenly they saw what looked like a collection of "T" shaped pipes sticking out of a group of low mounds just over the next

As they approached they could see a large horizontal steel hatch beside each of the pipes. To their left was a small ramshackle stucco building, all of its windows smashed and much of its stucco siding cracked and falling away. Several electri-cal conduits led away from the building towards the

THEIR CURIOSITY whetted, the boys raced along the conduits to the mysterious mounds.

On the ocean side now. they could see a low rec-tangular "window" in the first mound, protected on top by a thick lip of rippled concrete and covered by steel shutters. Beyond it was another mound, its shutters propped open, and beyond that many more, some with open shutters, some closed, and some with their protective cover of dirt somehow stripped away, sitting like squat blockhouses on the side of the hill.

ed by passageways. Each room had its own partially shuttered window commanding a wide view of the water below and the rugged terrain between the shore and the hillton.

Relics of a Battle That Didn't Occur

IN EACH ROOM were two vertical pillars ending just at window level, obviously designed as machine gun supports, and between them a much larger concrete base, probably for a heavier weapon.

The boys had stumbled into the remnants of hillside fortifications installed early in World War II as defenses against feared invasion of the U.S. mainland by Japanese forces. The story of the pillboxes and gun emplacements they had "rediscovered" goes back to a cool December day in 1941 when the news of the bombing of Pearl Harbor struck America in general and Fort MacArthur in particular with never - to - be - forgotten impact.

Pearl Harbor was 3,400 miles from Japan. If the Japa-nese could attack that far there was no reason to doubt. they could jump another 2,000 miles and attack Southern California. In a wave of feverish activity the Third Coast Artillery Regiment be-gan moving 155mm anti-ship guns into the Palos Verdes overlooking the approaches and, by midnight Dec. 7, gun crews were estab-lished throughout the hills.

NO ATTACK occurred that night, but the next morning word came from Washington that a Japanese attack was set for Dec. 9. A 24-hour alert was in force. But Dec. 9 came and passed with no sign of invaders.

Given a breathing spell, the harbor defenses began to dig in in the hills. Powerful searchlights and heavy guns were set up at several sites and machine gun nests were dug and cemented near the positions to protect them from enemy commando raids, and also, if necessary, to help stand off a full-scale landing.

Torpedoing of a merchant vessel near the San Pedro Breakwater and numerous reported submarine sightings kept crews alert, but only one gun battery, at Long Point, ever spoke in an attack. Twenty rounds were fired at a supposed submarine -- and there is inconclusive evidence that a submarine may have been sunk.

AS THE WAR wore on, threat of invasion diminished and men and weapons were pulled out of the emplacements. With the surrender of Japan on Sept. 2, 1945, the last of the machine guns was lifted from its support and returned to storage in Fort MacArthur. The, pillboxes were abandoned to the rav-ages of time, the elements and occasional youngsters who stumble across them.

The only problem now is the danger the "mysterious mounds" pose for inquisitive children clambering up and down the slippery steel ladders. At least three locations on the Palos Verdes Peninsula are riddled with these installations. They are not fenced off and they are not sealed.

At one point, a child might fall straight down a 30-foot shaft. For that reason no exact locations are given in this article.

Some day soon the pillboxes should go the way of the tunnels on Fort MacArthur's Upper Reservation which were filled in and sealed off several years ago.
Until that time, the defenses which were designed to deal out death to invading armies, are potential death traps: for " ; curious children.

By Helen L. Gillum

"HAT an extraordinary pianol" and then, "Does it still have a nice tone?" These two "exclamations almost invariably come from guests when they see the stately old vertical grand piano in the living room of the Robert Broxholme residence, 1063 Pacific Ave.

Fortunately, due in part to the skilled know-how of a local plano man who tunes and services it regularly, the plano does play harmoniously, enabling Mrs. Broxholme to enjoy her hobby as a planist on the beautiful family heirloom. And, although the instrument dates back to the 1890s, good care through the years has maintained the case and original varnish in excellent condition in spite of its having

Pittosporums Give Shelter, Privacy

Two features every homeowner desires in his garden, fredom from winds and privacy, are ably provided by group of natives of New a group of natives of No... Zealand, Australia and the Orient. They are known throughout California as the Pittosporums (pitch-seed). Whether you ask for them by accenting the first syllable or the second, makes no difference. Your nurseryman will know exactly what you want, as well as your problem.

tion of foliage colors. Your nurseryman will introduce them to you by their Maori names: Tawhiwhi Pittosporum has black stems, small dark green foliage and dark purplish flowers fragrant at night; Tarata has mediumsized foliage, light green with wavy margins, yellowish fragrant flowers and Karo provides a grey-green appearance because the undersides of the leaves are like white felt. The tiny flowers are red-

The Australian variety is known there as Victorian Box, which is difficult to under-stand because the foliage is fairly large and the growth rather open, quite the reverse of boxwood. It is used in two ways. Anyone who has driven through the Santa Barbara suburb of Montecito will recognize it as the tall estate hedge providing privacy from been moved several times during its lifetime. The vory keys are somewhat yellowed with age, but are well preserved and all are intact.

THE PIANO was a wedding gift to Mrs. Broxholme's mother from her father in 1898. It bears the legend, "Schimmel-Nelson Verti-Grand," just above the key-board, and was made in a factory in Fairbault, Minn. It is said to have been designed by a craftsman who vowed to make a grand plano with the strings set upright instead of in the conventional horizontal position. The fine tone, the graceful sweep of the section enclosing the strings, the beautiful, darkly glowing fin-ish, unique carvings and other. features attest to a supercraftsmanship, lifting the piano from the "oddity" classification to one of distinction and beauty.
Unusual as the plane is, it is only 12 inches in depth across the topmost section housing the strings. It is six feet high at its tallest point and nearly six feet long. Interesting little carved faces teresting the target and look down from the top of the pilasters, and kettle drums, mandolins and other instruments are etched to form a musical pattern across the face of the music rack.

A piano similar to this one, called a "giraffe piano," with the exposed strings extending up and down like a harp, and another called a "piano harp," were made in the early 1800s, but few were manufactured, and most of those that remain are in museums.

BILL SNODGRASS What's in the Bag?:..

A WELL DRESSED man sat in a booth the other evening at Ken's Restaurant, 3918 Long Beach Blvd., wearing a bewildered expression as he watched numerous patrons depart carrying mysterious-looking paper sacks.

Finally his curiosity became so strong that he spoke to a waitress, "What's in all those bags?" he asked.

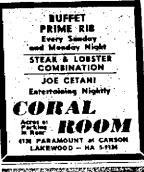

"Bread," she replied, "People are so crazy about Ken's little loaves of fresh bread that they insist on buying supplies to take home."

This situation is a source of delight to owner Ken Mc-Connell and his right-hand man, manager Bill Snodgrass. When they decided a few months ago to include individual hot loaves with their dinners, they never dreamed the bread would become so popular. The bread, white or wheat and baked in Ken's own shop, is just one of the epicurean touches at the restaurant, one of the most beautiful and skillfully run establishments in town. The dinners also include a "bouquet" of colorful appetizers served in a gleaming silver shell; wonderful salad, baked po-tato, ice cream or sherbet.

Remarkably popular is one of the special Sunday entrees — tender, succulent roast duckling served with an orange Bigarade sauce which make tastebuds tingle pleasantly. It's $2.55 for the quarter of a duck portion, Among the superb entrees served daily and Sunday are spencer steak (tender center of prime beef), $3.15; light, rich, flaky broiled halibut, $2.35; five delectable jumbo shrimp, $2.75; sweet, delicate broiled lobster tail, $3.35, and tender, dis-tinctive New York cut steak,

TV Aerials Bloom Atop Japan Roofs

There are more cameras than cherry blossoms in Ja-

But they used only one—camera, not cherry blossom for the television coverage of the selection of Miss Japan

"It surprised me," said Ka-ren Mashburn, 18; this year's Miss Long Beach.

Along with Joyce Bryan of Miami, Fla. reigning Miss American Beauty, and Mrs. June Dougherty, chief hostess, Karen represented the International Beauty Congress at the Tokyo contest,

"There was just one little television camera on the side," said Karen. "As far as I could see, there was practically no preparation for television beforehand."

II WAS particularly surprising to her because she had seen strong evidence that Japan is really a nation of TV (ans.

The evidence: Television aerials.

"Every home, no matter how poor it may have appeared, had one," said the blonde beauty.

If there is anything at all in the nation that there is more of than TV aerials, it has to be cameras.

Camera bugs," said Karen. "I never saw so many in my life.

"Even children, and they climb telephone poles to take your picture."

There were two things in particular about Karen that had the lens' fans clicking up a photographic storm.

THE FIRST was her blonde hair, a rare sight in Japan. The second was her height, 5-feet, 7-inches tall, equally

"Children wanted to touch my hair to see if it was real," said Karen. "They kept asking me how I got so tall. I just talk them. just told them I came from a tall family."

Karen is happy to see that "tall" preparations are being made here for the television. coverage of the International Beauty Congress.

By RICK DU BROW

the chance to get the television rights to "Lassie," but turned down the property because he didn't think it would last. That's the kind of family stock I come from.

It is also why I find it almost painful to tune in the show with the golden mutt every Sunday evening on CBS-TV. I keep thinking of the yachts and the bubbly stuff and the other simple benefits of all that loot that was blown, and I get so upset I could pull Lassie's ears.

My cousin, who also thought highly of the Edsel, by the way, admits, however, that "Lassie" is indeed a good show. And indeed it is, and will continue to be despite the many changes coming up for the next season, which you may well have heard about by now.

YOU PROBABLY KNOW that regulars Jon Provost, June Lockhart and Hugh Reilly—the boy, mother and father—will be gone, and that only Lassie will remain, with its new master being a forest ranger.

(Robert Bray will be "Lassie's" new master when the series, marking its 10th anniversary, starts again on Sept. 6. In tonight's repeat episode of "Lassie" on channel 2, Bray is featured in the role of Forest Ranger

People Going to the Dogs on 'Lassie' Program as TV Canine Hits the Forest Trail

Frankly, the specific human beings involved don't really matter. The key to the scries, in addition to the handsome dog, is that it is a throwback to the days when the movies made films about people with whom audiences could identify.

I have reservations about the show. For instance, unless Lassie has been boning up on extra-sensory-perception with some of the less talented stars of Hollywood, it seems to me this pooch understands English entirely too well. For that matter, some of the humans involved seem to understand Lassie so well that I am not entirely unrelieved that they are being replaced.

NEVERTHELESS; it is a precisely constructed series. It has a clean feeling for nature and an underlying gentleness. One Sunday there was an immensely tasteful, yet strong, scene in which the accidental striking of a deer by a jeep caused one to twinge—not because it was gruesome, which it wasn't, but merely for the sadness in seeing a beautiful thing killed.

Lassie's understanding of English helped on more than one occasion to save the day. One time Miss, Lockhart's pickup truck had an accident, and she wound up inside the vehicle as it wavered precariously on the edge of a ravine. Lassic, of course, happened by, sized up the situation and brought help.

As with every episode, this one had a moral too.

The moral here was that the next time your wife cracks up the car, bark at her and then run for help.

ON PROVOST, now 14 years old, has grown up and out of the "Lassie" series.

Silo-Set Humorist in Dramatic Role

By BERT RESNIK TV and Radio Editor

Pat Buttram has been described as a humorist of the Mark Twain-Will Rogers school, a barnyard Robert Benchley and the Mort Sahl of the silo set.

Not many people think of him as being an actor and Pat's not going out of his way to prove they're wrong.

Well, not much out of his way.

As it happened, his first non-western TV role an "Alfred Hitchcock Hour" had him earning a lot of mention for an Emmy nomination.

The program, "The Jar," will be repeated at 10 p.m. Friday, channel 2. Pat also has a toprole in a new Elvis Presley movie, "Roustabout," But he still spends most of his time concentrating on just being himself during his daily appearance on ratio station KNX.

IF YOU ASK PAT for a self-description, he just grins and says:

"I've spent my whole life trying not to be discovered."

For he's "discovered" that:

What you do have is the Buttram "smile-andchuckle, no bellylaugh" type of humor.

Here are some samples of his "no custard pie slapless slapstick" offerings:

"It's National Eyesight Week so everyone takes a peeping Tom to dinner."
"The trouble with the Russians at the U.N. is that they're always sticking their oars in but never doing any of the rowing."

Pat has been to Long Beach many times in-cluding annual visitations to the Terminal Island women's prison and the Veterans Administration Hospital here.

"The women in the prison are the greatest audience ever," he said. "Anything you say goes' big.

"But'it's the guys in the hospital who really get me-especially some of those who are paralyzed. They'll help hold each others' hands to w"Long Beach is a town in its own right," he said. Mit's got everything you need and the hanging come, Buttram will the hanging "And the main thing is that it's not a part back in second or third place to we come them. said. Hit's got everything you need and of Los Angeles.

"Los Angeles is just a bunch of small towns lliat don't like each other."

AND BUITRAM, since he started in show business 28 years ago, has visited enough towns to qualify himself as a judge.

His start was on Chicago's "National Barn Dance," a radio show where members of the audience were interviewed. Buttram's ad lib comments, as one of those interviewed, got him an offer for a fulltime job.

He look the offer and became friendly with one of the program's stars, a fellow by the name of Gene Autry. Stating in 1949, Autry and Buttram appeared in a series of 107 half-hour TV shows. The pair also made 40 movies.

During the "National Barn Dance" period, there was a 13-year-old boy singer who went along with Buttram on show appearances between broadcasts.

The boy, George Gobel, sang "mostly mother songs" and played guitar background chords for Buttram's monologues. songs"

As an adult, the former boy singer also used one of Buttram's tag lines with the latter's blessings. The line:

"I didn't come here to be made sport of."

BUTTRAM IS NOT one to make sport of comedy as a career. He believes there's room for more on television although the day of the big TV comedy spectacular with elaborate routines is gone.

"In the first place," said Buttram, "they're too costly. Besides, comedy has become more conversational today.

"Most of our TV comedy today is coming from the intimate nightclubs-Sahl and Bob Newhart are examples.

"There was a time when it came from vaudeville—Burns, Cantor, Skelton.

"And the county fair circuit—Gobel, Tennessee Ernie, Andy Griffith.

And then the larger nightclubs - Danny Kave, Danny Thomas.

'Tomorrow's Olsons and Johnsons, I've got a hunch, are going to be a bunch of bowlingball comedians.

IT'S 'REAL McCOY'

MIND OF THE PARTY OF THE PARTY

'Luke' Pitches Away Pitchfork, Throws Hat in Political Ring

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Like it or not, you'll be seeing more of Richard Crenna this year.

Crenna is the lumbering semi-moronic Walter Denton of the "Our Miss Brooks" show and the slow-witted clod of "The Real McCoys," both of which beam daily on television re-runs.

Next season he will star In a new series, "Slattery's People," an hour-long show about a politician.

In addition to being exposed on television six hours a week, Crenna also will be seen co-starring with Shirley MacLaine in "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home."

"BUSY, huh?" Crenna said during lunch in the 20th Century-Fox Studio commissary.

"This is my first movie role since 1956 when we made a picture out of 'Our Miss Brooks.' It was a real bomb. Nobody knows why, but when they try to stretch a TV show into a movie something goes

When he left the "Mc-Coys," Crenna refused 30 series: offers. He was deter-mined to lose his image as a hayseed. During the past

"My new role in 'Slattery's People' is a straight part,"

Crenna said. "I play the minority leader of a state assembly. The state and my political affiliation are never identified.

"WITH THIS being an election year, the show should attract a lot of attention in the fall. No one will be able to say the character of Slat-tery is a Republican, Democrat, liberal or conservative.

"As for me, I'm not saying if I'm a Democrat or a Republican."

Crema's been acting since he was an II-year old child wonder on radio playing roles in dozens of shows. Until now he was always pigeon-holed as a character man.

"I've been shooting for leading-man roles in movies," Crenna said. "My agent finally convinced me the only way to make it was to play an heroic character in a series. That's why I've accepted this political show, I hope it turns the trick."

TO A DEGREE, it already has, Crenna landed the "Goldfarb" movie role after 20th-Fox brass saw the pilot of "Slattery."

Crenna is 37 years old. He's not pretty boy hand-some, but he's good looking enough to win the heroine in a movie without stretching the credulity of feminine au-

unsmoke' Title En Route to Boot Hill

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - A weslern bad guy gunned down on television by "Gunsmoke's Marshall Matt Dillon more than nine years ago is finally going to his grave on Boot Hill.

Matt's victim is the cowboy he plugs every week in the show's opening scene, or title as it's known in television. The title introduces "Gunsmoke" and also kills off the cowboy who dares to draw against Dillon.

Millions of televiewers have seen the scene in the past nine years. However, very few persons know the victim's identity. He is Arvo Ojala, a gun expert and actor.

in the duel with Dillon, Arvo's fate is predictable, week after week a succession of losses. Arvo's case is simllar to that of a buil facing a matador. At least the bull wins sometimes, Arvo never.

HOWEVER, there's consolation in Arvo's weekly demise-consolation in the form of thousands of dollars he's received for acting in the scene. He's paid each time the title scene is aired.

When last heard of, Ojala was in Seattle, He will probably be chief mourner when he finds out that CBS-TV is hurying him.

"Gunsmoke's" producer, Norman MacDonnell, said the gunfight scene has been run so often that it's worn out. So another will have to be

"A main title was made for 'Gunsmoke' with a lot of guns pointing at the cameras and going off 'splat' into the lens. The smoke from the guns spelled 'Gunsmoke.' That ran for 26 weeks but it was a little bit corny."

WHEN the smoke cleared, MacDonnell and his crew began thinking about a new title scene. One day when Ojala was working in an episode of the show, MacDonnell staged the now famous shootout. It was filmed during the lunch hour, the whole job taking about 15 minutes.

"Nobody expected the show to run 10 years so they didn't strike out dupe negatives," said MacDonnell, "So the negative is now tissue thin.

would prefer not to make a change at all, but it must be done."

MacDonnell has been holding meetings to decide on the new title scene's format.

Where the old one was filmed during a lunch break, the new one is taking on the importance of a major production.

"We'll try to get the feel

Just like that!

As for original victim Arvo Ojala, it appears that he won't get the job this time. Such lucrative lunchtime jobs pass by only once in a lifetime, and Arvo has had

Q. I understand that Frank Sinatra pays some girl $400 a week just to travel around with him and put on his hairpiece. Is this true?—N.Y.T., Van Nuys, Calif.

A, A month ago Sinatra hired Helen Turpin, crack

Hollywood hairdresser, at a salary of $400 a week to apply his hairpiece and keep it in good condition. Sinatra is balding rapidly, does not like to appear in public without his toupee. It is, of course, necessary for his work. Miss Turpin was his hairdresser on his latest film, shot in Italy.

Q. Amanda Blake of Gunsmoke fame—did she really get $1,000,000 for selling her TV residual rights, or is that just publicity?—Walter Selt zer, Boston, Mass. A. Publicity.

Q. Who is Colin F. Stam?—T. R. Aldrich, Alexandria, Va.

A. Stam, 67, was for 36 years chief of staff of the House-Senate Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, probably the number-one tax expert in America. Recently he retired from government service.

Q. Has Subil Burton, divorced wife of Richard Burton, found a new love? —Ceorgette Knox, Staten Island, N.Y.

A. Mrs. Burton of late has been seeing much of Brock Williams, son of the famous Welsh playwright-actor Emlyn Williams.

Q. I've been told that the new president of the Actors Equity Association is a Negro. Is this so?—Emma Janc Waters, Charleston, S.C.

A. Yes; he is Frederick O'Neal, 58, recently elected to succeed actor Ralph Bellamy.

Q. How old is Henry Fonda?—Charles Evans, Omaha, Neb.

A. Henry Fonda was born in Grand Island, Neb., May 16, 1905. Q. I would like to find out whether Terry Melcher, 22, son of Doris Day, works for a living. If so, what does he do?—Helen Fast, Miami, Fla.

A. Meicher works for the music publishing company owned by Bobby Darin.

Q. Does Arnold Palmer, the great golfer, drink white ky?—P.I., Denver, Colo.

A Yes.

Q. I've read that the late Sir Thomas Beecham, the music conductor, spent more than a million dollars of his American wife's fortune. What about that?—
Olive Wheatley, Chicago, Ill.

A. Sir Thomas Beecham had three wives. His first wife, Lady Utica Beecham, says: "He spent half a million pounds [$1,200,000] of my money on music through the years. If an orchestra announced it needed money, they would receive a check from Thomas Beecham. Invariably I wrote the check from my account." Sir Thomas and Utica Beecham were divorced in America in 1943. Lady Beecham's grandfather was one of the pioneers who helped build the Canadian Pacific Railway, helped construct the Panama Canal.

Q. Please tell me something about Arthur Mac-Arthur, the late general's son. Is he married? Does he live with his mother?— Mrs. William Johnson, St. Petersburg, Fla.

A. Arthur MacArthur II, only son of the late gencral, was born in February 1938, raised and educated in the Far East, privately tutored by Phyllis Gibbons in Tokyo when his father was chief of the American occupation forces, entered Columbia University in 1956; graduated 1960, is unmarried, lives with mother in the Waldorf Towers, New York.

Q. Isn't Sammy Davis, Jr., quietly seeing Kim Nocak? Weren't these two engaged before Mai Britt came into the picture?—G.T., Oak Park, Ill.

A. Many years ago Davis and Miss Novak were close friends. Davis wanted to marry her. Harry Cohn, then chief of Columbia studios and Miss Novak's employer, protested vociferously, was instrumental in breaking up the entente. Mr. Davis and Miss Novak have not been seeing each other.

Q. I've been told that the motion picture industry has hired Anna Rosenberg to give it a new image. What's wrong with the old image?—Don Howard, Oakland, Calif.

A. The motion picture industry is not widely known for honesty; integrity or high standard of ethics.

Q. I cannot believe that Bobby Baker of the recent Senate scandal is now richer and more powerful than ever. Is this on the level? —Robert Scherer, Providence, R.I.

A. Bobby Baker at this writing owns 97 per cent of the Serv-U Corporation, a vending machine operation. Serv-U has contracts with the California plants of two large defense contractors, Northrop and North American Aviation, which provide his company with an estimated monthly profit of $44,000. If Bobby Baker is hurting, he certainly isn't showing it.

Q. Who said: "True love is like a ghost; everybody talks about it but few have ever seen it"?—Vivia Crossley, Burbank, Calif.

A. François de La Rochefoucauld, French writer, 1613-1680.

Q. Veteran actress Mary Astor has written a novel, The O'Conners. Does it deal with her love affairs with John Barrymore and George S. Kaufman?— Constance Garner, New Orleans, La.

A. No. It deals with the special reasons why marriages between actors and actresses are rarely successful.

Q. Who is the most talented of the four Beatles?— Helen Epstein, Midcale, N. J.

A. Probably John Lennon, 24, the "chief Beatle." Lennon is an artist, musician, writer, composer and, the Beatle who organized the group.

the $3 billion misuse of toreign funds

BY JACK LUDERSON

WASHINGTON, D.C.

he long-suffering American taxpayers have become accustomed to scandals over government spending. Yet the greatest scandal of them all involves billions which our government owns but can't spend. These mountains of money, a Himalaya range that circles the earth, consist of strange, multicolored foreign currencies which Uncle Sam has agreed not to take out of the issuing countries.

All told; the U.S. has stockpiled $3 billion worth of counterpart funds, as these currencies are called, in 83 different countries. They range from $1 billion worth of Indian rupees to $1.6 million in Laotian kips. Our captive currencies are found even behind the Iron Curtain, where Uncle Sam is stuck with a staggering $442 million in Polish zlotys and $279 million in Yugoslav dinars.

Though up to his whiskers in foreign tender, Uncle Sam permitted American firms to buy another $2 billion worth of these currencies through commercial channels during fiscal year 1963. In alarm, Congressman John Moss (D., Calif.) pushed through a law last December, authorizing U.S. corporations, volunteer agencies and religious organizations abroad to draw on our surplus currencies. They are supposed to turn in their dollars for counterpart funds, thus reducing our great hoard of foreign money. But at this writing, the Treasury Department has failed to issue the necessary regulations to implement the law.

Government officials have ignored still another law, which directs the government to use surplus currencies for foreign-aid purchases abroad. Yet in fiscal 1963 the government paid out $94 million in hard U.S. cash for foreign-aid purchases in countries where we already owned staggering amounts of local currencies. This bit of illogic is defended by State Department officials on the grounds that the use of counterpart funds to take goods out of a country would be no different from withdrawing the counterpart funds themselves.

Of course, it isn't entirely accurate to say these funds can't be spent. Congressmen and bureaucrats have been known to plunge joyfully into our surplus currencies like boys into an accumulation of autumn leaves. All this money waiting to be spent has become a temptation for those permitted to draw upon it.

Touring lawmakers have been stuffing their pockets with counterpart funds for years. These accounts are kept tightly locked up far from the taxpayers' eyes. Rut PARADE has managed to get hold of a typical expense voucher submitted by an escort officer in Rome for Italian lire spent by a traveling senatur and his party. Here are some typical entries (the lira is valued at 625 to the dollar):

Luncheon, aperitif and wine	18,200 lire
Cocktails
Dinner, Le Arcate	43,500 lire
Photographs, Le Arcate	5,000 lire
Flowers for senator's wife	1,500 lite
Pocket money for senator	60,000 lire
Rental of automobiles, Naples	570,000 lite
Trip to Pompeii	10,000 lire
Additional advance to senator	60,000 lire

Whisky	45,000 lire
Blue Grotto excursion	2,000 lire
Kleenex toilet tissues	5,625 lire
Taxis for tour of Capri	10,000 lire
Guide, two days, Capri	8,000 lire
	1 11.

Of course, this doesn't include the huge hotel bills the senator and his party ran up. Nor does it include the cocktail party that the U.S. ambassador threw for the senator for a total tab of 119,155 lire.

Actually, the rules governing the accumulation and the use of these funds seem simple enough. Most of the money comes from the sale of U.S. surplus food. The surplus is paid for in local currency, which then must be spent within the buying country. The U.S. gives back much of the money in the form of loans or grants, uses a great deal more for such things as embassy operations, buildings and other necessities. It also can be used for the entertainment and expenses of legislators, bureaucrats and certain businessmen.

For instance, the Foreign Agricultural Service, an arm of the Department of Agriculture, sends both government men and businessmen abroad to promote the sale of U.S. farm products. The mission of these men, who represent trade groups but technically are in the employ of the government, is to stimulate purchase by foreign concerns of American commodities. They call on foreign businessmen and officials to do so. Because their efforts are supposed to benefit the entire American economy, they are entitled to spend government money instead of their own.

THE REAL EXPERTS

These men, the records show, often match our wasteful lawmakers tab for tab. PARADE has been permitted to examine the results of a confidential 9-month investigation into their spending. This report called them "the real experts when it comes to wasting U.S. owned currencies."

In all fairness, it must be said that these touring promoters have been remarkably successful in boosting foreign sales of ripe Virginia tobacco leaf, surplus Kansas wheat and other American-grown products. Yet many promoters seem inclined to spread the gospel of trade in such global pleasure spots as Paris, Rome, Tokyo and Hong Kong. Complains the confidential report: "The world seems to be full of people who want to see the other side of the mountain and preferably in high style at someone else's expense."

Among examples uncovered by investigators of freeand-easy use of counterpart funds for such promotional purposes:

Almost every such promotional group threw at least one dinner reception at taxpayers' expense, but still allowed delegates to charge for meals eaten at the same time.

One organization produced three taxpayer-financed movie films, costing $21,000 in Egyptian pounds, to boast about the frozen poultry industry. The movies have never been shown. And so much money has gone for personal films that the Agriculture Department has issued a stern warning to stop it.

A trade association bought key chain medallions engraved with the likeness of the group's president, distributed them to prospects to puff up the group's own image, yet charged the government $3 apiece for them. The same group spent counterpart funds to have its president's portrait painted on its headquarters wall, was forced to kick the money back when Uncle Sam cracked down.

Nearly $2,800 went last year to buy 13 gowns for the "Maid of Cotton." Most expensive creation was a $902 number dreamed up by a famed French designer. "What better way to stimulate cotton sales nverseas?" contended a cotton promoter. And in the name of a previous Maid of Cotton, in 1959, $31,775 in counterpart funds was spent in one go-for-broke week. The money went for such incidentals as eight bottles of whisky for the Filipino board members, a gift to a Manila radio commentator who talked about the Maid of Cotton on his news shows and gift radios passed out to models at the Cotton Bail.

Moreover, investigators question whether any of this government-financed promotion does any good. In Finland, more than $30,000 in Finnish markkaa has been spent each year to promote cotton products. Yet each year, from 1961 through 1963, the Finns have bought less cotton from the U.S.—and more from the Soviets. The Agriculture Department explains this by saying the Finns are under political pressure from the next-door U.S.S.R.

But critics agree that, wasteful as some of these promotional tactics might be, the real scandal is the fact that this buge mountain of money exists, waiting for someone to belp himself to it—and that the mountain gets larger every day.

Of the $3 billion in foreign currencies owned by American taxpayers, more than $2 billion is held in eight countries: Burna, India, Indonesia, Israel, Pakistan, Poland, United Arab Republic and Yugoslavia.

The greatest amount has accumulated in India. There is virtually no hope of ever spending our $1 billion worth of Indian rupees, short of building a chain of Taj Mahals. Although two-thirds of this hoard has been marked for reinvestment as loans or grants, the remainder would still finance our operations in India for the next 28 years. Yet all the while our supply of rupees is multiplying faster than the Indian population.

RUPEES AND MORE RUPEES

With rupces to burn, we still bought more rupees in fiscal 1963 through commercial channels. We also spent $14.4 million in good U.S. tender to buy Indian commodities to ship to other aid-receiving nations.

In Indonesia, we own $21.3 million in rupiahs, yet, we shelled out hard cash to buy Indonesian oil for other needy countries. Despite our estranged relations with Cambodia, we still own close to $1 million in Cambodian riels that we can't take out. And in Communist Poland and Yugoslavia, we own more zlotys and dinars than we'll ever be able to spend.

Of course, some Americans maintain that since we can't take the money out of the country, we might as well spend it however we can—even lavishly. But Congressman Moss and other critics insist there's a way to employ these funds properly, and to save the taxpayers money. This course, according to Moss, is to enforce the laws now on the books. The government would make all its foreign purchases out of surplus currencies; and U.S. corporations and institutions operating in other lands would turn in their dollars to the U.S. government in exchange for counterpart funds, then do their dealings in that money.

Meanwhile, the rules for who can spend these funds, and how, should be tightened up and watched more closely. By taking these steps, it is agreed, we could reduce our great cash surpluses abroad. Otherwise Uncle Sam may soon drown in a supply of unspendable money.

NO FLOPS. Japanese show producers are so kind and diplomatic that virtually every American entertainer who plays that country helieves he's been a sensational hit. If the entertainer fails to draw in Tokyo, and many of them have, the producer papers his house with free tickets. Nipponese impresarios say it's important to keep face, that there is no point in demoralizing the performer, whom they have to pay in any event. In all cases of failure, the producer will never rebook the talent in question, but never does a foreign entertainer in Japan hear the word "flop" from his producer.

ALCOHOLICS. Of a total of 5,000,000 alcoholics in this country, approximately one-fifth are women. Alcoholism costs the American public more than $1,000,000,000 per year, is responsible for more than one-quarter of the nonsupport cases in . Chicago, more than 8% of the first admissions to state hospitals in New York. More than half the fatal traffic accidents in America are caused by drunk drivers. As a public health problem alcoholism

now ranks fourth in the U.S., behind heart disease, cancer and mental illness.

NEGRO BALL PLAYERS.

There are now approximately 95 Negro major league baseball players. Highest salaries go to Willie Mays of the Giants, $105,000; Hank Aaron of the Braves, $80,000; Frank Robinson of the Reds. $70,000; Roberto Clemente of the Pirates. $68,000; Ernie Banks of the Cubs, $65,000.

MOPHEAD PRINCE CHARLES

HAIR NET FOR PRINCE CHARLES.

The British Safety Council recently sent a hair net to Prince Charles, 15-year-old heir to the British throne. The gift was a reminder that he was setting a poor example with his Beatle-style haircut. The British Safety Council is interested in preventing accidents in homes, factories and on . roads, and its officials consider Prince Charles' mophead an encouragement to other teenagers. The shaggy hair-dos have been responsible for many machine accidents in British factories, and the Council would think better of Prince Charles as a trend-setter if he cut his hair short. So would the British barbers.

SUCCESS STORY. Early in 1966 Polaroid plans to market a really inexpensive picture-a-minute camera that will retail at around $20. This will bring Polaroid into the mass market for the first time. The inventor of the Polaroid camera, Edwin Land, 55, now holds with his family about 19% of Polaroid's 4 million shares, worth approximately $100,000,000. Although Land holds six honorary college degrees, he never finished college himself. He left Harvard as a freshman in 1926 to work on polarizing filters, 10 years later promoted $375,000 to found his ... Polaroid Corporation. His is one of the great American success stories.

SECOND DISNEYLAND. Walt Disney has always had a soft spot in his heart for Missouri, which is probably why St. Louis will be the site of the second Disneyland in America. Although born in Chicago in 1901, Walt was raised on a farm in Marceline, Mo., then educated in Kansas City, Mo. Last year several leading businessmen in St. Louis approached Disney, asked him if he wouldn't please erect a second Disneyland as part of a massive 465-acre urban renewal project aimed at restyling the entire St. Louis waterfront. Previously Disney had turned down a dozen other such pleadings emanating from other city officials in the U.S. Because this one came from St. Louis, Disney and his brother, financial genius Roy Disney agreed to consider it. Now the chances are excellent that by 1967 a second Disneyland will rise 5 stories, cover about 3% acres of the St. Louis waterfront.

off the beaten track in japan

Japan's Inland Sea (arrow) is popular off-beat vacation spot.

n a few weeks, thousands of Americans will head for Japan for the 1964 Olympic Games. A large number will take advantage of the occasion to enjoy a Japanese vacation. But most of these travelers will concentrate on the well-known tourist attractions such as Tokyo night life and the shopping. Kyoto's temples and shrines, Hakone's lakes and mountain peaks. Only a few will visit an off-trail area the Japanese themselves consider the most attractive spot of all—Japan's 300-mile-long Inland Sea.

Studded with rocky islands, bordered by misty mountains, its indented shore line ringed with beaches and picturesque fishing ports, the Inland Sea is so striking that the Japanese government has established it as a national park. Surrounded by the islands of Honshu, Kyushu and Shikoku, it was formed when volcanic action suddenly caused the land to drop and let in the sea millions of years ago. Around its shores much of Japanese history has taken place, and in the next few weeks, as autumn colors begin to dapple the green of the Japanese pines, Japanese tourists will take to the Inland Sea steamers to drink its scenery and explore the quiet countryside.

Among those recently making such an exploration trip were the American couple shown in these photos—Duane and Margie Dahl, of Minneapolis, Minn. A Navy couple stationed at Yokosuka Naval Base on Tokyo Bay, the Dahls have been in Japan only a few months, but were touted onto the Inland Sea by a Navy friend who'd previously visited the area. To the Dahls, who married in haste on the eve of Duane's first overseas assignment five years ago, it was a second honeymoon.

"Beautiful, beautiful country," says Swedish-born Margie Dahl, who met her husband while on a visit to Chicago. And during their week along the Inland Sea, the Dahls had plenty of opportunity to sample these beauties. They toured the historic cities of Kobe and Hiroshima, tramped up mountains and through little towns, peered into hot springs and geysers, swam in the Inland Sea itself. They lived in Japanese ryokan, or inns, sleeping on mats rolled out on the floor and having their meals prepared by a kimonoed maid.

Appropriately, the Dahls' visit to the Inland Sea began on the water. Early one morning, at Kobe, they boarded the steamer Karenai Maru for a 15-hour voyage. They rented a comfortable first-class cabin, ate two succulent meals, alternately napped, sunbathed, went ashore at tiny ports of call, gazed from the deck at the terraced hillsides and the tiny steep-roofed houses of countryside Japan.

At the end of the voyage came the city of Beppu. Little known to Americans, this colorful town of 100,000 persons is one of the favorite spas of the Japanese. It marches up a series of hillsides from the sea towards the mountain ranges of Kyushu. The city has more than 3,000 hot springs, many of them utilized by hotels, and their waters are supposed to be beneficial for ailments from rheumatism to hangnail. It also has an array of geysers and boiling pools which the Japanese compare favorably with Yellowstone National Park.

BARGAINS & FRIENDSHIP

Beppu also boasts economy—and friendly people. For as little as $4 a day the Dahls lodged in a ryokan with a spectacular garden, robed in kimonos and enjoying the service only Japanese can provide. And the Dahls made many friendships. Dozens of Japanese, eager to test out the English they are polishing for this fall's influx of visitors, were only too anxious to strike up acquaintance with the American couple.

Would you like to explore this lesser-known area of the tourist mecca of the Western Pacific? This will be a big year for Japanese travel. The Japanese National Tourist Association anticipates more than 550,000 visitors, more than half of them American. The red carpet has been rolled out: several new hotels have been opened, prices have been placed under government control and hotel and hotel restaurant taxes have been lifted for overseas visitors during the Olympic period. A number of new and inexpensive tours of the nation have been organized. Airling service has been dramatically improved. Pan American Airways, chief. U.S. carrier to Japan, has increased jet service to Tokyo. Beginning Oct. 3, Pan Am will send 22 flights a week to Japan. The airline also will set up special visitor aid centers staffed by multilingual hostesses.

If you come to Japan, stray far enough off the beaten track to enjoy the Japan the Japanese themselves like best.

here comes Bing

Bing Crosby's TV family will be seen on Monday nights, beginning in fall. One reason he agreed to do weekly show is that he can do 39 in 13 or 15 weeks. This is done by shooting first the scenes in all episodes with

Bing and the people involved with him. Then all the other players are called in for the remaining scenes of each program. The film is edited and the scenes put together, and nobody in the audience is the wiser.

Television is basically a medium for advertisers, sponsors who sell products. For entertainers, however, it offers scant creative or artistic satisfaction. Encumbered by many aggravating commercial strictures, the medium by its nature precludes the production of quality or memorable programs on a weekly basis.

The big names who sign for a weekly series do so largely because they are finished or unsuccessful in motion pictures, and the financial rewards of a TV series are tremendous.

Three or four years in any video show of which he owns a part, and the performer becomes a multi-millionaire.

Take Danny Thomas, Red Skelton, Lucille Ball, Loretta Young, Donna Reed,—Bob Cummings, Ozzie and Harriet Nelson, Garry Moore, Jackie Gleason, Perry Como, Jim Arness, Richard Boone, Desi Arnaz and many others. For years these personalities worked in Hollywood, some as full-fledged stars, others as minor personalities who never quite made it. None became a millionaire.

Came television, and each of these performers signed for a weekly series. Today they are all multi-millionaires.

Comes now, however, the case of Bing Crosby, which is unique and atypical, because the crooner has been disgustingly rich for at least 20 years.

Starting September 14, Bing will appear each Monday night over the ABC network on a weekly situation comedy, The Bing Crosby Show.

Why at age 60 is Bing doing it? Why is he subjecting himself to the high-pressure, full-speed-ahead, back-breaking grind in which a half-hour film has to be completed every four days?

Certainly he doesn't need the money. His holdings in Minute Maid orange juice, real estate, oil, Bing Crosby Productions and half a dozen other varied investments are conservatively estimated at $20,000,000. Moreover, when I discussed TV with Crosby in London three years ago—he was then filming The Road to Hong Kong with Bob Hope—he told me emphatically: "I don't mind doing a TV special every now and again, but that weekly bit—that's not for me. I like to fish too much. There's too much golf to play."

He went on to explain that the trouble with weekly TV was overexposure. "Nobody who's seen week in and week out," he said, "is going to survive very long. Suppose I made 52 movies a year. Who'd come to watch me after the fifth or sixth? They'd get fed up with my voice, my kisser, every aspect of me. No. Whoever goes into TV should limit his exposure if he wants to last."

again

In the face of this, what has made Crosby change his mind?

When you ask him, he says with typical laconicness: "I liked what they showed me and thought I'd take a crack at it."

Behind that simple statement lies the following story of the whys and wherefores of Crosby's entrance into the hectic world of weekly TV.

Danny Seymour, a former radio announcer who is now president of the J. Walter Thompson Company, one of the largest advertising agencies in the world (annual billings: $480,000,000), has been trying for years to get Crosby to do several TV specials for some of the Thompson clients, such as Lever Brothers and Ford.

HIS AGENT'S TOEA

When last year he expressed the same desire to Meta Rosenberg, one of Bing's agents, she said quickly: "There are now so many specials on TV that there's nothing very special about the special. What would be special is if we could ever talk Bing into doing a weekly series."

Seymour enthusiastically agreed and said: "If you ever do, consider us in. I'll get you a firm offer from Lever Brothers, not on the basis of one show or a pilot, but on the basis of 26 shows."

Meta Rosenberg, brunette and brilliant, trim and 45, a former story editor at Paramount studios, a top literary agent before she went to work for her husband's General Artists Agency, which represents Bing Crosby Productions, has a woman's instinctive sense of timing.

"I felt," she says, "that Bing had reached that point

Bing, first wife Dixle and their 4 sons. Boys have large trust funds on which they are now living.

in his life where he was a bit bored with things, that he would welcome a new challenge.

"After all, good motion picture roles for him are exceedingly difficult to come by. But he's still a fine actor, in good physical condition, with an excellent mind and great stores of energy. So one evening several months ago we went to him, and I said, Bing, let's give up these TV specials we've been doing. Enough of that. You ought to be doing something every week. This sort of television is a facet of your career you've never investigated. I think you could be a smash. I know how you feel about overexposure, but once the TV public goes for a star, they go for him year after year. Look at how long Red Skelton's been on TV. Look at Lucy and Gmismoke and Donna Reed and all the rest of them. The Bing Crosby Show could go on for years and years. Nobody's ever seen you every week on television. Won't you just consider the idea?"

Crosby not only considered. He agreed to do a weekly half-hour TV show, providing I like the format."

The burden of coming up with a suitable show idea thus fell upon Crosby's agent.

According to Meta Rosenberg: "We asked every single professional comedy writer in Hollywood to think up a show for Crosby. Nobody came up with a blessed thing. All these great creative brains in town—nothing! Not a word. So Mike Levee, who is one of our associates, and I sat down together and came up with the format of the show. I went to New York and told it to Danny Seymour, and he loved it."

The Bing Crosby Show is a family situation comedy which finds Bing playing the role of Bing Collins, an engineer who is also a consultant to a near-by university. He has been married to wife Ellie (played by Beverly Garland) for 20 years. They have two daughters, Joyce, 16 (played by Carol Faylen), and Janice, 11 (played by Diane Sherry). Their household is also graced by Willie (played by comedian Frank McHugh), a wartime buddy of Bing's who came to dinner 15 years ago and never left.

Admittedly, this is a stock cast of characters. What appealed to Bing, however, was how they were treated. Unlike the father-idiot in the typical TV situation comedy, Bing in this one does not act the family schnook. He is educated, witty, intelligent, hep. He plays himself. He sings in each program, and the musical numbers are carefully integrated into the story lines. His relationship with his wife is mature and earthy.

With his daughters, he is both loving and sensible. To his 16-year-old, in answer to her parental plea for an equal-terms relationship, he explains: "You want to be us. And you can't. And you force us into trying to be you. And we can't. We're not meant to be friends, baby. I'm your father. And you're my kid. And if that's an outmoded parent-child relationship, I'm all for it."

Generally, most half-hour TV shows are budgeted at $50,000 to $60,000 per program. The Bing Crosby Show is budgeted higher, at about $70,000. Bing's "take" from this package, which he owns entirely, ranges from $15,000 to $20,000 per week. In addition the show's residual rights are worth several million dollars, providing the series is a success.

After he had finished the first five half-hour shows last month, I called Crosby at his hotel in Los Angeles. (Der Bingle no longer lives in Holmby Hills, swank Los Angeles suburb, moved his family several months ago to Hillsborough, a suburb of San Francisco.)

"How are things shaping up?" I asked. Drawled the world's most relaxed human being:

by Jack Carter

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jack Carter, New York-born comedian in his late 40s, has come a long way in show business since his discovery by radio audiences in 1939 as a winner in a Major Bowes talent show. After wartime service in the Pacific, Carter started out in the small-time night club circuit, soon graduated to TV vatiety programs. For a while he replaced Milton Berle on the Texaco Star Theatre, then became an irregular on the Jackie Gleason, Ed Sullivan, Perry Como and Judy Garland video shows. Basically a monologist, Carter also sings and dances, has taken a crack at character acting. He has appeared in all the major night clubs of America, would like most to become an established screen star. Carter is married to Broadway actress Paula Stewart. Herewith some of Jack's latest and favorite jokes:

During the recent primary elections in California, a drunk walked into a voting booth, closed the curtain and proceeded to take off all his clothes. After he had been in there for about 30 minutes, one of the voters waiting in line yelled to him through the curtain: "Hey, c'mon—hurry up and vote!"

"Vote?" hollered the confused inebriate. "I'm trying to take a shower!"

No matter how foolish we Americans may look in our political campaigning, I want to tell you we really know how to live. We Americans spend $10,000,000 each year on get-well cards and $2,000,000 on medical research!

A little old maid from a small town went wandering through New York's Central Park one day. Suddenly a man stepped up behind her. He slipped one hand around her neck, the other around her waist and commanded; "Give me your money!" When the little old lady didn't respond, the thug tightened his grip around her waist and again barked: "I said, 'GIVE ME YOUR MONEY!"

"I haven't any money with me," finally replied our heroine, "but don't stop—I'll mail you a check."

An obviously intoxicated man staggered down Main Street dragging a chain behind him. A policeman stopped the drunk and said, "Look, mister—I can understand your having a little too much to drink, but why are you dragging that chain?"

The man steadied himself, got the policeman into focus and replied, "Did you ever try to push one?"

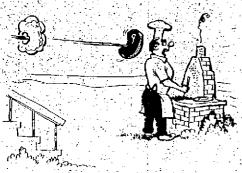

A gorilla ambled into a bar and ordered a drink. When it was served, he pulled out a roll of greenbacks and gave the bartender a 10 dollar bill. Thinking the gorilla didn't know much about money and could be easily duped, the bartender gave him one dollar in change. He watched while the gorilla downed his drink. Then, because his curiosity got the best of him, he said: "We don't have very many gorillas come in here."

"It's no wonder," answered the gorilla. "At $9 a drink, who can afford to?"

Anecdote of the Week

■ Walking into the office of Secretary of State Dean Rusk, a visitor recently overheard a secretary answering the telephone: "I'm very sorry, sir," she said, "but Mr. Rusk has just stepped out of the country for a minute."
